WOMAN FOUND OVERCOME AS COLD HITS CITY

Victim Discovered Lying Unconscious in Street, Slowly Freezing.

MERCURY SINKS TO 7; RISE EXPECTED TODAY

Three Seriously Injured, Others Slightly in Collision Series.

STREET CAR AND AUTO CRASH MAY KILL MAN

Driver Is Taken to Hospital, Where Skull Is Reported to Be Fractured.

Near-zero weather caused one case of exposure and three serious injuries in automobile accidents yesterday in Washington. Following a snowstorm Saturday, the temperature fell to 7 degrees at 6 o'clock yesterday morning and remained there for two hours.

Bright sunshine dispelled some of the rawness later yesterday morning and afternoon, but the mercury failed to rise above freezing. The highest point came about 4:30 o'clock, when the temperature at the United States Weather Bureau was 25 degrees.

Warmer weather with increasing cloudiness is predicted for today, with fair and warmer on the program for tomorrow.

Came From Staunton.

Letters and cards on her person revealed that she was Mrs. Mary Clark, of Staunton, Va., residing in Washington at a boarding house on L street near Thirteenth street northwest. She was found by a pedestrian, who gave his name to police as A. G. Davis. His address was not obtained.

When found, the woman was in an unconscious condition and was still unconscious at a late hour yesterday at Emergency Hospital, where she was taken. Hospital attendants described her conditoion as serious. Doctors said that she was badly frozen.

The woman was well dressed. At her boarding house it was learned that she had come to Waashington about two weeks ago and was seeking employment. Roomers at the boarding house did not know when Mrs. Clark left the house, and police had no way of determining how long she had been exposed to the icy blasts.

Taxi Driver Burned.

Scalding water, shooting out of the radiator of a taxicab, severely burned Milton Davis, 25 years old, of 1233 Shepherd street northwest, driver of the cab, yesterday morning. He was treated at Emergency Hospital for face and head burns.

Davis, a driver for the Black & White Cab Co., was examing his car in front of the Willard Hotel at the time of the mishap, police reported.

Slippery streets made driving dangerous early yesterday morning.

Herbert L. Moon, colored, 23 years old, of 2256 Twelfth street northwest, received possibly fatal injuries when the automobile he was driving collided with a street car at Seventh and R streets northwest, according to Second Precinct police.

Moon was taken to Freedman's Hospital, where he was reported to be suffering from a fracture of the skull and other injuries. His condition is serious. Police reported that the conductor on the street car was William B. Grigsby, of 1253 C street northeast, while the motorman was Elmo A. Conrad, of 813½ Seventh street southwest, police said.

Another Seriously Hurt.

Harry Furr, 59 years old, of 414 Sixth street northwest, was seriously injured when he was struck by an automobile yesterday morning while crossing the street at Pennsylvania avenue and Third street northwest, Sixth Precinct police reported.

He was taken to Casualty Hospital, where it was reported that he was suffering from a fracture of the left hip and contusions. His condition was reported to be serious. Police said that the driver of the automobile was Willard Morse, of 666 Maryland avenue northeast.

Truck Damage $1,500.

Two firemen were injured and a fire truck badly damaged when the truck collided with a street car at Ninth and N streets northwest yesterday morning.

The truck, from No. 4 Truck Co., was returning from a fire in the 1200 block of Eleventh street northwest, when it collided with the street car. The truck was traveling east on N street and was struck by the street car while crossing Ninth street.

Infant Closed Broadway Show and Started Court Suit.

HELEN HAYES MacARTHUR.

"An act of God," in the form of a baby girl, was born yesterday to Helen Hayes, who rose from amateur theatrical ranks of Washington to the pinnacle of success on Broadway. In the York House in New York City, the baby that closed a Broadway show was born.

The infant, whose coming precipitated one of the most fiercely fought theatrical law suits in stage history, is an object of pride and some concern to its father, Charles MacArthur, playwright and former newspaperman.

It was last July in Los Angeles that the show "Coquette in which Miss Hayes was starring, was folded up with the announcement of her coming maternity. Jed Harris, manager, refused to pay the company for the two weeks' notice that he was supposed to give.

In subsequent law suits, he maintained that the baby was "an act of God" and that he, therefore, was not required to give advance notice of the termination of the show. An arbitration board ruled against him.

In her early childhood she played with the Columbia Stock Co. here in "Little Lord Fauntleroy." Periodically she left the Sacred Heart Academy to play juvenile roles in major productions.

OIL MAN MISSING; FOUL PLAY FEARED

PRIVATE SEARCH FAILS

Missing since last Thursday, Alfred Joseph Lefebvre, 32 years old, local representative of the Continental Oil Co., was being sought last night by police, who feared foul play in the absence of any apparent motives for his disappearance.

Leaving the residence of Mrs. Margaret M. Bachtell at 1902 Calvert street northwest, where he has made his home for almost a year, Mr. Lefebvre at 7:40 o'clock Thursday morning drove his automobile to his usual parking place in front of a filling station of the company he represents at Tenth and E streets northwest, and has been missing since he was seen by employes there to walk away from the machine.

An intensive search conducted by R. W. Berry, manager of the station, and W. E. Buckingham, district engineer of the company, stationed in New York, proved fruitless and the case was turned over to police yesterday. Mr. Buckingham last night returned to New York after no clue to the whereabouts of the man had been uncovered.

Mrs. Bachtell said that a small handbag and military brushes which Mr. Lefebvre customarily took with him on trips were in his room. She declared that Mr. Lefebvre upon leaving the house told her that he planned to meet officials of his company at a downtown hotel, naming a well-known hostelry.

Mr. Barry said he knew of no company conference on Thursday at a hotel. He declared that employes at the filling station saw Mr. Lefebvre park the car and walk away. He said the man frequently left the machine at its parking place for several hours at a time and that no one suspected that he was missing until considerably later in the day. He declared that in the machine were found Mr. Lefebvre's keys in the ignition lock, his driver's permit and several letters.

Mr. Barry said that a check of the company's finances failed to reveal any shortage.

Mr. Lefebvre came from Troy, N. Y., where is mother, Mrs. M. Lefebvre, resides. Other relatives are in Albany, N. Y.

CAPITAL MAN KILLED IN FALL DOWN STEPS

Joseph Leo Slingland Hits Head on Radiator; His Skull Fractured.

TWO DETAINED BY POLICE

A fall down a flight of steps, believed by police to have been accidental, caused the death yesterday morning of Joseph Leo Slingland, 33 years old, of 1009 North Capitol street, a native of Washington and well known in local business circles.

The fatal fall occurred at a lunch room and rooming place on North Capitol street between G and H streets, police said. Chris James, 35 years old, proprietor of the place, and Donald William King, 32 years old, of Eighteenth street northeast near M street, who was with Mr. Slingland at the time of the fall, according to police, are being held at the Sixth Precinct pending the outcome of an inquest to be held at 11 o'clock this morning.

After falling down the flight of steps, Mr. Slingland struck his head on a radiator, receiving a skull fracture which caused death, according to a story given police by Mr. King.

Mr. King is quoted as having told police that he and Mr. Slingland went to the lunch place about 8 o'clock yesterday morning. The proprietor called from a room on the second floor that he was ill. The two men went up to the second floor to see him, police learned. A conversation ensued through a closed door.

"We decided to leave," Mr. King said, according to police, "and started down the stairs. Mr. Slingland was ahead of me. I saw him stumble and crash down the stairway. He struck his head on the radiator."

Police and a physician were then called. Mr. Slingland was pronounced dead on the arrival of the doctor. A priest was summoned but was denied admission. After headquarters was called and informed of the situation a bicycle policeman was dispatched from the Sixth Precinct and the Rev. Joseph J. McLaughlin, of St. Aloysius' Church, was permitted to enter the room and administered the last rites of the Catholic Church.

Born in Washington, Mr. Slingland was educated at local schools. He graduated from Gonzaga College. He

17 More Left on Ship When Breakers Capsize Lifeboat and Prevent Use of Breeches Buoy; Rescue to Be Attempted Again.

Astoria, Oreg., Feb. 16 (A.P.).—Lifting of the heavy fog from the mouth of the Columbia River today disclosed the coastal liner Admiral Benson fast aground and 39 of the passengers and crew scattered along a 3-mile beach on the Washington side of the river. Three women and fourteen men remained aboard the vessel.

The Admiral Benson, a coastal liner of the Pacific Steamship Co., ran aground last night en route from San Francisco to Portland. Attempts by crews of Coast Guard cutters to effect a rescue failed until a beach howitzer cast a line aboard the ship early today.

An attempt to land passengers by a breeches buoy proved unsuccessful when one, Mrs. A. B. Reynolds, of Portland, was bruised severely in the breakers. A lifeboat was then launched from the Admiral Benson and a boat crew rowed 30 of the passengers to the beach. The lifeboat followed the breeches buoy line successfully until the last trip, when, returning empty, the craft overturned in the choppy sea. The rest of the passengers then decided not to risk the trip.

Rescue work will be resumed if an attempt to float the vessel is unsuccesstful. The boat is resting lightly, but firmly. The shaft alley is taking a small amount of water. Steam has been kept up and lights kept burning. The ship is lying about one-quarter of a mile north of the north jetty and about 225 yards off shore. Two tugs were sent to the Columbia River from Puget Sound. They will attempt to float the Admiral Benson at flood tide. Marine observers, however, said they did not believe the steamer could be removed from the grip of the sand.

Passengers from the stranded steamer met their predicament in the spirit of a lark. They laughed and joked with one another on the beach.

HEARINGS BEGIN TODAY ON QUIZ IN PROHIBITION

ROBSION ADDRESS CITES DRY GAINS

HOUSE STUDYING CRIME LEGISLATION

Blaine Move for Repeal of Eighteenth Amendment Pends in Senate.

With resolutions asking for an investigation of the enforcement bureau and for repeal or amendment of the eighteenth amendment slated for hearings before the Senate judiciary committee, prohibition is likely to hold the boards on Capitol Hill again this week.

Senator Wheeler's resolution, proposing a searching inquiry of the enforcement of the 10-year-old dry law, will be taken up by the judiciary group today, and the resolutions proposing repeal or modification of the prohibitory amendment will come up for hearings beginning Wednesday morning.

Scouting all charges and allegations concerning prohibition, Senator John M. Robison (Republican), of Kentucky, in speaking at the Frances E. Willard memorial services, sponsored by the District of Columbia W. C. T. U. in Statuary Hall of the Capitol, characterized demands for a referendum on the question as "pure politics."

Sees Increase in Dry Strength.

Prohibition forces are constantly increasing in Congress, he pointed out in assuring the assemblage that there is little likelihood of the eighteenth amendment and Volstead act being repealed.

Whether a showdown will be reached at today's hearing on the Wheeler resolution remains to be disclosed. Senator Wheeler was out of Washington last night, but is expected to be on hand when the resolution comes up and to press for action.

Whether the Republican leaders of the Senate will be able to head off the proposed investigation also is uncertain. Senator Norris, of Nebraska, who has frequently complained that prohibition enforcement is mixed with politics, is chairman of the judi-

NEW LEHLBACH PLAN OPPOSED BY NAVY GROUP

MANY PROVISIONS HELD DETRIMENTAL

RESOLUTION URGES EARLY HOUSE ACTION

"Forfeitures" in Case of Death Are Placed Under Fire of Employes.

Contending that the recently introduced Lehlbach retirement bill, offered as a substitute for the Dale-Lehlbach measure, is objectionable and that many of its provisions are detrimental to the best interests of civil service workers, employes of the Washington Navy Yard, at a mass meeting at the Avenue Grand Theater yesterday, voted to petition for a favorable report on the Dale-Lehlbach bill in the House.

In a resolution adopted it was pointed out that the substitute amendment has not been approved, after careful study and thought, by the several employes' organizations in the Government service, "and, in fact, many of its provisions have not been fostered, proposed or encouraged by them."

It was declared in the resolution that the proposed Lehlbach bill "grants too liberal powers to officials charged with the administration of the bill, and also that it provides for forfeitures in case of death of amounts credited to an annuitant rather than a return to his estate."

Inequitable Features Cited.

"Such a provision," the resolution states, "would place an inequitable mandate on those who are engaged as skilled mechanics, laborers and those engaged in hazardous occupations, in that they are more or less subject to occupational disease and extra physical strain, which in the event of death soon after retirement would result in forfeiture of their vested rights."

It was charged further that the $1 to be impounded monthly from the contributions of employes would be "a perpetual source of bitter complaint every time an employe receives his retirement fund deductions on separation from the service and every time a poor widow receives the retirement fund deductions made

American Reclaims Air Altitude Record

Rises 27,350 Feet in Try at St. Louis; Coste Sets New Marks.

St. Louis, Feb. 16 (A.P.).—America apparently reclaimed another world's air record today when D. S. Zimmerley, Marshall, Mo., piloted a Barling NB-3 to a mean altitude of 27,350 feet.

The old record of 22,250 feet for light planes was held by Paul Baumer, of Germany, and had withstood assault since July 8, 1927.

Zimmerley carried two barographs, one registering 27,800 feet and the other 26,900 feet. The record will not become official until the instruments have been checked by the National Aeronautic Association and the mark honored by the Federation Aernautique Internationale, Paris.

Maj. Luke Christopher, secretary of the contest committee of the association, was official observer of the flight, which was staged in connection with the international aircraft exposition.

He experienced a temperature of 32 degrees below zero at top ceiling and nearly exhausted his entire supply of oxygen before circling down for a landing 2 hours and 10 minutes after the take-off.

At an altitude of 15,000 feet, he was struck by a 120-mile wind from the west which forced the light ship backward over the Mississippi River and into Illinois. The plane was powered with a 90-horsepower Lambert engine.

Zimmerley, who is also holder of the world's duration record for planes of the class, wore a wool-lined flying suit over a jumper and heated helmet and goggles. He experienced no ill

The pilot's feat adds a second world altitude mark to America's credit Lieut. Apollo Soucek, Navy flier, holds the seaplane record of 38,549 feet Willi Neuenhofen, of Germany, holds the altitude record for airplanes with a mark of 41,794 feet. Zimmerley's new record is in the light plane class.

Marseille, France, Feb. 16 (A.P.).—Dieudonne Coste and Pilot Codos broke the world endurance, distance and flight duration records for planes carrying one gross ton of cargo today, flying 2,048 miles in 18 hours 1 minute 20 seconds.

The former distance record was held by the German pilot, Herman Steindorf. Fritz Harm, another German, held the duration record for this type of load. The Frenchmen took turns at the controls during today's flight.

Coste and Jacques Codos beat another of Steindorf's records January 18 last when they flew 210 kilometers an hour with a load of 1,400 pounds. Steindorf's record for that weight was 205 kilometers.

FRENCH AIMS MENACE U. S.-BRITISH PARITY; TARDIEU ILL IN PARIS

Premier's Indisposition Will Delay Work of Conference.

BRIAND CARRIES ON IN LEADER'S ABSENCE

No Date Can Be Set for Sick Minister's Return to London Debate.

Paris, Feb. 16 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Premier Andre Tardieu has been compelled to haul down his colors before an attack of influenza and will be unable to return to the London naval conference on Tuesday or Wednesday as arranged.

If M. Tardieu's return to London is long delayed, his absence from the negotiations there is expected to delay progress. While Foreign Minister Artistide Briand will represent France in discussions of two of the most important problems before the conference, the French demand for a navy of 724,000 by 1936 and the Franco-Italian parity dispute, it is improbable that any major decisions relating to these would be taken without Tardieu being on the spot. Despatches from London indicate that conference circles are exercised over the possibility of a prolonged illness of the French premier retarding work there.

News of M. Tardieu's indisposition startled the public with which the dynamic prime minister has become very popular, but did not surprise his friends who feared that even his robust constitution would ill withstand the extravagant demands he has made upon it since he took office on November 2.

Has Worked Incessantly.

In the three and a half months since then he has worked like a beaver preparing France's cases for presentation at the second reparations conference at The Hague and at the naval conference. At the same time he has been wrestling with domestic problems, particularly concerning himself with the issue revolving about civil pensions.

M. Tardieu has had a slight fever which was a little above 100 when the doctors visited him at 8 o'clock tonight, leaving orders that he should see none of the political leaders calling at his home. A formal medical bulletin announced that he is suffering from "grippe," complicated by laryngitis.

A cabinet council called for tomorrow has been temporarily canceled. If the premier is well enough by Thursday, the meeting may be held then. No date has yet been fixed for his return to London conference. That will depend upon how rapidly he returns to normal health.

Assumed Task on October 31.

M. Tardieu, who was Premier Clemenceau's lieutenant at the peace conference and head of the French war mission to the United States, assumed the task of forming the present French cabinet of "Republicans of good will" on October 31. M Tardieu announced his cabinet of liberals and moderates, with M. Briand in the key position of foreign minister, on November 2.

Seven days later, after a stormy session in the Chamber of Deputies,

PARLEY TALKER

REED STRIKES NOTE OF HOPE ON PARLEY

SEES GAIN IN GOOD WILL

New York, Feb. 16 (A.P.).—Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania, delegate to the five-power naval conference at London, today told an international radio audience that although the conference can not succeed in abolishing the submarine, the proposed "humanizing" of submarine warfare is an important accomplishment.

Speaking from London over an American and Canadian network of the Columbia Broadcasting System, the majority leader of the Senate said that "Great Britin and ourselves had hoped that submarines might be wholly abolished, for we have feared that in any war the temptation to use the submarine in ways that kill humanity would be so great as to be nearly irresistible."

"Our French and Japanese friends do not share these views," he continued, "and it is evident, therefore, that this conference can not succeed in abolishing the submarine. But, we were delighted to see the prime minister of France arise and propose that all of the nations should agree that hereafter submarines shall be forbidden to attack merchant ships, in the same way that international law requires service vessels to do.

"If this treaty is respected, and we believe that it will be, the events that characterized the submarine in the last war will not again occur."

Senator Reed said that the American delegation "has been unanimous in every step that we have so far taken," and that "every point of view has been considered before decisions were arrived at."

He declared there had been great "improvement of the spirit between the nations" in recent years; to illustrate, he pointed out that at the Geneva conference in 1927, Great Britain made an estimate of its cruiser needs that, in the opinion of the American delegation at Geneva, would have made it necessary for the United States to build 37 new ships

Catapult Blast Kills Flier Aboard Battleship Nevada

Lieut. Walter George Maser, Honor Graduate of Annapolis in 1918 and Noted Aviator, Loses His Life in Cuban Waters.

(Associated Press.)

The Navy Department was informed yesterday that Lieut. Walther George Maser had been killed by an explosion which destroyed his plane as it was being catapulted from the U. S. S. Nevada, at Guantanamo, Cuba.

Few details regarding the accident were available, other than that a charge of powder exploded in the catapult, shattering the plane. The Nevada will participate in the joint fleet maneuvers in the Caribbean Sea and off the Panama Canal early next month.

Maser enlisted in the Navy June 10, 1915, in North Dakota, and was given his present commission on June 3, 1922.

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 16 (A.P.).—Lieut. Walter George Maser, attached to the U. S. S. Nevada, now in Cuban waters, was killed aboard that ship today while taking off from the deck of the vessel in an airplane, according to reports received here.

A charge of powder used in the catapult by which the plane was launched was said to have exploded, blowing his plane to bits. Lieut. Maser was the son of Frederick Maser, of Dickerson, N. Dak. His widow and 4-month-old baby are in Norfolk.

Lieut. Maser, who was 31 years old, graduated from Annapolis in the class of 1918 as one of the class honor men. He had been stationed here and on the West Coast at various times as well as on ships and for three years was an instructor in flying at Annapolis. He was considered one of the best aviators in his squadron.

While official details are lacking, it was said in reports of the tragedy received here that the catapult used in launching the plane in which Maser met death is a new type in which a powder charge is the starting force. In some manner unexplained, the powder charge exploded before the plane was clear.

England to Meet Gallic Threat Against Her Sea Supremacy.

POSSIBILITY LOOMS OF BUILDING RACE

CRISIS IS SHADOWING ALL ELSE AT PARLEY

Probable Security Treaty Is Seen as Only Way Out of Impasse.

By JOHN L. BALDERSTON.

London, Feb. 16 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The word "crisis," never used before in these dispatches about the London naval conference, is strictly applicable to the situation created here by France's demand for a navy of 724,479 tons by 1936, regarded by the British as a challenge to British supremacy in European waters which can not be ignored. In meeting the challenge new British building plans would inevitably upset the tentative Anglo-American parity agreement, forcing the United States to enlarge its program tremendously to achieve parity with Great Britain.

With the conference barometer pointing to a storm warning, the influenza germs that have laid Premier Andre Tardieu low in Paris will hold up the progress of negotiations here this week, assuming, which is doubtful, that progress could be achieved if he were here.

Foreign Minister Aristide Briand will return to London tomorrow night, but without the power to commit his country to anything.

Quandary of U. S. Delegation.

Meanwhile, the Americans are wondering what people will think of our parity agreement with Great Britain if the figures already tentatively set up are scrapped and the United States faces prospects of having to build more and more ships to keep pace with British naval expansion motivated by fear of France.

A section of the British press is beginning to take up what British naval circles regard as the French challenge implied in M. Tardieu's announced plans for an increased French fleet, including the fastest battle cruiser or cruisers afloat. This question so completely dominates every other that almost nothing else is discussed.

There will be talks among all the delegations on minor points and on how to handle France this week, but whispers that the British sea lords want more light cruisers, three more 8-inch-gun cruisers, or alternately, a new battle cruiser or two and 50,000 tons more in destroyers, as it is reported they would, have gained currency today and will be published here tomorrow.

New Building Race Looms.

The cries of alarm raised in the more responsible Sunday newspapers will be reinforced tomorrow by an editorial in the Daily Telegraph which puts bluntly what there is reason to believe is the British service attitude now towards the French program and may be the public attitude in the near future. Either France must recede, the newspapers say, or Great Britain must accept a new building race, and the wholly tentative parity agreement with the United States be discarded. Great Britain, it is suggested, cannot permit her security to be menaced by a power at her front door to please the United States, who is, of course, welcome to duplicate the British fleet.

Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and his Labor colleagues will no doubt fight the claims of the sea lords for more ships if France does not climb down, but all records of such struggles between politicians and the admiralty show that the admir-

NEWS of SUBURBAN Washington and the Surrounding States

Appears on Pages 3 and 14 Today

MacDonald's Hands Are Tied.

Inquiries in parliamentary circles over the week-end, which I have been making, in the belief that here is the real crux of the situation, indicate that practically no Tories and few Liberals would support Mr. MacDonald in a treaty which accepted the present understanding with the United States, provided France stands pat. Accordingly, the prime minister's hands appear to be tied.

The American delegation seems to have been taken by surprise at the Anglo-French deadlock that developed in the last two private meetings of the big three—Stimson, MacDonald and Tardieu. No responsible American would talk to me about this frankly since the crisis developed and Secretary of State Stimson's orders for absolute silence are being well observed, but from previous expressions of American opinion about the French, it is clear that Mr. MacDonald, with perfect sincerity and through his own optimism, misled the Americans as to the French attitude.

This applies not only to the conversations here, but to all the informal negotiations from the commencement of the talks between Mr. MacDonald and Ambassador Charles Gates Dawes.

Big Change in Attitude.

There has been an extraordinary shift in the general attitude toward the world naval situation in the few days since Premier Andre Tardieu announced the French naval program, providing for a French navy of 724,479 tons by 1936. It had been generally assumed by the Americans and Japanese and by British Labor politicians, though not in naval circles here, that this conference, like the Washington one nine years ago, was primarily between the three great naval powers.

The Americans certainly came here with this view and for three weeks did everything possible to make the French feel equals rather than inferiors and to remove the impression of what most Frenchmen considered the humiliations inflicted on them at the Washington conference. But our delegation, as their talk throughout has shown, never regarded France as in any sense dominating this conference.

Suddenly, as the mists clear away and hard realities are faced, the main problem of the conference is seen to be, not Anglo-American parity, not Japan's claim for an extra 10 per cent of relative strength, not Italy's demand for parity with France. All these problems remain. No progress has been made toward solving the last two and even Anglo-American understandings, wide reaching though they are, are now threatened with the melting pot.

New Problem Most Real.

For the conference faces the announced intention by France—now supreme on land and in the air, with the second largest gold reserve and the only nation whose industries work full time and who has no unemployment problem—to build a modern fleet of a size and power immensely distasteful to Great Britain.

Is M. Tardieu bluffing? Until the last three days the impression was general that he would come down, but two sessions Thursday and Friday between the British, French and American chiefs have caused a wave of pessimism and doubts. The belief is now general that France means business. She will scrap 100,000 tons or so of obsolete tonnage put in her program to be scrapped, no doubt, but that does not soothe the lords of the British admiralty, faced by the prospect of a French fleet of 100 submarines backed by the world's biggest, fastest destroyers and a growing fleet of modern speedy cruisers.

Only one thing will make France withdraw, it is now believed in responsible British circles, and that is a security pact with teeth in it. It can be said categorically that in the present state of British public opinion a guarantee, presumably directed in part against Italian disturbance of the status quo in the Mediterranean, is impossible. Any government that proposed it would not live a week. The House of Commons and the country would rather build against France, as they built against Germany. And Americans who at first interpreted British reasonableness and quiescence as meaning that England could not find more money for battleships are not now so sure they were right.

One Sort of Pact Possible.

A security pact without teeth is possible. Great Britain would cheerfully sign it. There are American delegates who think our Senate would approve it, but there is strong reason to believe that the logically minded M. Tardieu not only does not want any pact that fails to provide for armed assistance, but has poured ridicule in private conversations on suggestions that France would scrap warships in exchange for soft words.

This situation may simmer for days, but its shadow will overhang the conference while minor matters are dealt with. The American-Japanese and Italian-French disputes are not considered so serious because, while the Americans most prayerfully desire to satisfy Japan, that power could not build against the United States and that fact conditions all negotiations. Italy is also unable seriously to build against France.

France, on the other hand, can, under present circumstances, build against Great Britain, and if she continues on present lines will hold the food supplies of these islands at her mercy, for the British do not take too seriously the French delegation's promise to sign a pledge humanizing submarine warfare in view of the fact that a similar but more drastic pledge was agreed on by France at Washington and later repudiated by the French Chamber of Deputies.

Man Falls Two Stories; Is Booked by Police

A fall from the roof of a two-story building yesterday morning didn't bother Leroy Grant, colored, 36 years old, resident of a hotel at Seventh and N street northwest, to any great extent.

He was treated at Casualty Hospital for slight scalp lacerations and then taken to the Second Precinct, where he was charged with disorderly conduct. Grant fell from a building on Sixth street between O and P streets, police said.

LITTLE HOPE SEEN FOR GERMAN SHIPS

Budget Limitation Expected to Prevent Construction of Four Cruisers.

ONE TO BE READY SOON

Berlin, Feb. 16 (A.P.).—The worries of Premier Tardieu of France about Germany's cruisers of the Ersatz Preussen type were said by officials today to evoke disdainful smiles among those who know the contents of the German finance ministry's budget, soon to be submitted to the Reichstag.

The Associated Press was informed today that the budget provides 9,000,000 marks (approximately $2,250,000) for continuing work on the Ersatz Preussen. The cruiser has been under construction since 1928, and contracts for a total of 80,000,000 marks (approximately $20,000,000) have been let for work on the vessel.

The defense ministry's program calls for construction within 15 years of four of these new armored warships, which have been described as a cross between a battleship and a cruiser, and fulfilling the purposes of both. Popular sentiment, however, especially among the industrial population is unmistakably against burdening the taxpayers with the cost of additional cruisers on top of reparations payments, the Ersatz Preussen, and other extraordinary expenses.

Realizing this, the defense ministry tried to accumulate a fund by inserting in the budget an item of 100,000 marks "for preliminary preparatory work" on the second cruiser of the proposed series of four. This was blue penciled by the finance ministry's experts, who believed the item had no chance of passing in the Reichstag.

The Associated Press was informed that Minister of Defense Wilhelm Groener for form's sake would move for inclusion of this 100,000 marks in the budget, but would bow to the will of the majority after the motion was defeated.

TARDIEU SUFFERS ATTACK OF GRIPPE

lasting until 3:30 a. m. and marked by eloquent appeals by M. Tardieu and M. Briand for the nation's support, he won his first vote of confidence by a majority of 71 votes. On November 13 a vote of confidence in his government's budget was won with a majority of 60 votes.

From that point on, the strength of the Tardieu government has been on the increase, although the Socialists and the Radical Socialists remain a strong opposition.

Wins Laughter and Support.

Defending himself against a recent attack by Louis Frossard, Socialist, and Julien Durand, Radical, M. Tardieu won a laugh from the chamber—and a vote of support—by quoting a "Wild West" phrase he learned while in the United States.

"Don't shoot the piano player. He's doing the best he can."

The last important vote taken in the chamber was December 27, when M. Tardieu asked for support for his policies at The Hague and the London Naval Conference. The vote was 353 to 231 in his favor.

at a cost of about $600,000,000, in order to reach equality.

"In the three years that have elapsed since that time," he continued, "international confidence has been so greatly improved that Great Britain now estimates her cruiser program at a total of 50 ships and we can secure equality with that British cruiser fleet with approximately $450,000,000, part of which has already been expended."

Would Deal With All Categories.

Senator Reed pointed out that "the American delegation has insisted throughout that we must not deal specifically with some categories and leave others unlimited.

"There is no use in saving on the battleships only to be extravagant on cruisers or other craft. Merely to transfer competition from one category to another is not a real step forward," he said.

In conclusion he announced that when the conference "results begin to come, they will come fast and in the meantime we trust that you will not become too impatient."

"We know," he said, "that America intends to have a first class navy and to keep it thoroughly efficient. But we also know that our people at home will approve of any reasonable reduction or limitation."

Credit Men From Eight States Meet Here Today

The third annual session of the Columbia regional conference of Credit Bureau Executives of Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia opens today in the Hotel Mayflower. Sessions are to continue through Tuesday.

David J. Woodlock, of St. Louis, manager-treasurer of the National Retail Credit Association, is coming here to take part in the program. This is the third meeting of representatives of credit organizations from this section of the country. Stephen H. Talkes and Charles W. Prettyman, secretary and assistant secretary, respectively, of the Association of Retail Credit Men of Washington, are in charge of arrangements.

Girls' Glider Club Forms With Mrs. Lindbergh's Aid

She Is Charter Member of Group Which Takes Her Name.

San Diego, Calif., Feb. 16 (A.P.).—The Anne Lindbergh Fliers, of San Diego, was organized yesterday with Mrs. Anne Lindbergh, wife of the famous transatlantic flier, as a charter member, and with 20 other young women as members.

They signalized organization by buying a new seaplane.

The girl gliders in the club include Ruth Alexander, who holds the women's record for altitude in all classes of airplanes; Miss Guinevere Kotter, a veteran airplane pilot; Miss "Peaches" Wallace, second woman in the United States to get a glider license. Mrs. Lindbergh was the first woman to get a first class glider license.

The San Diego club is the second girls' glider club in the United States, the first having been organized in Buffalo, N. Y.

HOME OF MAGNATE WRECKED BY BOMB

NONE INJURED BY BLAST

Marion, N. C., Feb. 16 (A.P.).—Explosion of a home-made bomb beneath its foundation last night wrecked the home here of R. W. Baldwin, president of the Marion Manufacturing Co., which was the scene of a bitter fought textile strike last fall.

A side wall of the house was blown in and the roof fell. The remaining walls were blown away and the entire structure apparently was irreparably damaged. No one was in the house at the time. Baldwin and members of his family have been in Baltimore this winter where he also maintains a residence.

The explosion is believed to have occurred about 9:30 last night. The Baldwin home is located near the outskirts of Marion. The nearest residents reported hearing a dull "boom" at that time, but it was several hours later before it was learned that the house had been bombed.

Sheriff Oscar Adkins, who is conducting an investigation, said the bomb apparently had been made of heavy iron pipe and dynamite. He said tonight he had no clews to the persons responsible for the bombing.

Baldwin tonight was reported on his way here from Baltimore. In his absence no estimate was made of the damage.

Union Aiding Strikers.

A strike was called in the Marion Manufacturing Co. plant last summer by the United Textile Workers of America. Once declared settled, it was called again when, union officials charged, the mill violated the agreement settling it.

The mill has been running and, according to its officers, has a full complement of workers. Union officials, however, are still conducting relief work among approximately 200 strikers. Sporadic disorders followed the strike.

On October 2, six strikers were killed in a gun battle with officers in front of the mill. The battle was precipitated when strikers refused to let nonstriking workers enter the mill and threatened officers who sought to drive them from in front of the mill gates.

Blast Last Summer.

Eight McDowell County sheriff's deputies later were tried on charges of murder as a result of the six strikers' deaths. All were acquitted. They testified they fired in self defense.

During the fall and early winter the strike was continued, but mill officials said the majority of the strikers had returned to work and the places of those who did not return had been filled with other workers. The United Textile Workers abandoned relief efforts among strikers in December and urged those still affiliated with it to seek employment elsewhere.

Last summer a charge of dynamite was exploded in the Clinchfield Manufacturing Company mill here where a strike was in progress. Valuable machinery was destroyed. Mill officials charged the dynamiting to strikers, but no charges were ever brought against any individuals.

Science Honors Nun.

River Forest, Ill., Feb. 15 (A.P.).—Sister Mary Ellen O'Hanlon, head of the biology department, Rosary College, has been elected to a fellowship in the American Association for the Advancement of Science. The election was in recognition of botanical research.

WRECKAGE OF PLANE IS MYSTERY OF SEA

CLEW FOUND IN SYMBOLS

San Diego, Calif., Feb. 16 (A.P.).—A silent mystery of the sea in the shape of a battered, faded mass of airplane wreckage, picked up in Mexican waters off Ensenada, puzzled aerial authorities along the Pacific Coast today.

Symbols painted on the torn fabric of the ship, together with the lack of detail in reports from Ensenada, made it impossible to identify the wreckage immediately. The wreckage carried the lettering, "Curtiss Airplane and Motor Company." It also bore the following symbols: "Contract 6651 Mar. 5-1928 No. 16, FCC-3."

Officers of the fleet aircraft squadrons said they knew of no Curtiss seaplanes in naval service. They added that the symbols did not follow the naval system of marking ship, although the substitution of "FPC" for the reported "FCC" would be the official designation for a Curtiss Hawk.

E. E. Mouton, Department of Commerce aeronautical inspector for the San Francisco area, said the symbols identify the ship as built for the Navy. The same view was held though not so positively by James Nall, Los Angeles inspector and by Army and Marine Corps officers here.

A Curtiss Hawk, piloted by a Lieut. Parker, crashed in the ocean between Point Loma and the Mexican border a year ago, the officer said, when its propeller was shot off during gunnery practice. Parker saved his life with his parachute.

Dowd Is Expected To Testify Today

Grand Jury Is to Resume Its Inquiry of Dreyfus Death Case.

The grand jury investigation into the death of Mrs. Aurelia Fischer Dreyfuss, young divorce, who was killed by a fall from the top railing of the Potomac Boat Club here last October, will be resumed today. James E. Dowd, Chicago broker, friend of Edmund J. McBrien, of New York, who was with Mrs. Dreyfus at a dance the night of her fatal mishap, will testify.

Relatives of Mrs. Dreyfus, among them two sisters, are trying to convince the District Grand Jury that she was deliberately put out of the way because she knew to omuch about the murder of Dot King several years ago in New York.

The grand jury took up this case upon the advice of United State District Attorney Leo A. Rover, who was appealed to by the mother and sisters of the dead woman, to reopen the case. The result of the inquiry should be announced this week.

Mayflower Department Heads to Be Entertained

Daniel J. O'Brien, president and managing director of the Hotel Mayflower, will entertain department heads at a dinner and dance in the garden of the hotel tomorrow evening at 8 p. m.

This entertainment marks the fifth anniversary of the opening of the Mayflower. A number of employes and department heads who have been with the hotel since its opening will receive special recognition. Entertainment is to be furnished by the staff members.

Airplane Engine Builder, Mechanical Genius, Is to Carry On.

Detroit, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—The oldest living pioneer of the automobile, Henry M. Leland, who made tools for the manufacture of rifles during the Civil War and produced airplane motors during the World War, observed his eighty-seventh birthday at home here today.

It was a quiet observance spent in reminiscences with a few close friends. In unusually good health, he reiterated that he had no intention of relinquishing his interest in public affairs but proposed to be active "to the end."

A mechanical genius, Mr. Leland introduced storage battery ignition, electric lighting, electric starting and thermostatic control of engine temperatures to the automobile industry. He organized the Cadillac Motor Car Co. in 1902, and years later when he had passed his seventy-fifth birthday founded the Lincoln Motor Co., chiefly for the production of the Liberty motor. "Beautiful engines they were, too," he said. "They would have won the war if the kaiser hadn't run away so soon."

Invention of the modern hair clippers was another of Mr. Leland's achievements. It brought him an increase of 50 cents a day in his wages in a machine shop in the late '80s.

To his younger well-wishers who called today and asked how it felt to be 87 years old, he repeated an earlier remark. "I'm a bit embarrassed; you see, it's the first time I ever was 87."

SENATE TO ATTEMPT MORE TARIFF SPEED

CONFERENCE IS PLANNED

(Associated Press.)

With more than 500 committee and individual amendments to the tariff bill acted upon, the Senate will endeavor to speed up its revision work this week with a view to passing and sending the measure to conference with the House early in March.

Leaders of all factions are anxious to have the long-pending legislation, last of the Hoover-recommended tasks for the special session that ended in November, whipped into shape for final passage so the Senate can get down to other important business.

The tariff bill has been before the Senate since September 9. Leaders on many occasions predicted Senate passage long before this, but interjection of extraneous subjects have served to delay final action.

May 1 Would Be Early Date.

Republican and Democratic chieftains now look for passage by March 10. But if the measure is through the conference stage and ready for dispatch to the White House by May 1, there will be many lifted eyebrows. Six weeks are the least leaders give for reconciliation of differences between the two houses.

So complete has been the Senate ovrhauling of the House bill passed last May, that some observers feel if there is to be a bill at all it will take at least two months for compromises in conference that would meet both House and Senate approval.

House Republican leaders already are preparing the way for the tariff conference. Chairman Hawley, of the ways and means committee, has notified agricultural and industrial interests, as well as all House members, to send to the committee for consideration in the conference with the Senate any additional data bearing on commodities on which import levies have been raised or lowered by either house.

House Democrats Undecided.

House Democrats are not certain whether they will go through with their effort to have the House approve all the rate schedules, which with the exception of the agricultural section have been revised downward by the Senate as contrasted with the House measure, and let only the administrative features go to conference. Several weeks ago they made overtures to farm State Republicans to approve of such a course, but the latter said they wanted to see the rates in final shape before acquiescing in a step of this nature.

Senate Democrats, who in coalition with the Republican Independents, are striving to rewrite the House bill in a fashion which they say will be more in line with President Hoover's recommendations for "limited" revision, will continue their efforts today by concentrating on important rates in the metals schedule.

Two amendments of the minority that are pending would lower the existing rates on aluminum to the level of the Underwood levies of 1913 and eliminate proposed increases in tariffs on hollow bars and hollow drill steel.

Plans Under Way For Horse Show

Event at Riding and Hunt Club Will Be Held on March 1.

Plans are being completed for the horse show to be held at the Riding and Hunt Club on March 1 for the benefit of the Soldiers and Sailors and Marines clubhouse at Eleventh street and Massachusetts avenue.

The show will be divided into two parts, one to take place in the afternoon and one in the evening. The afternoon show will feature a parent and child class in which fathers and mothers will ride with their children. Eight events will be included on the evening program. These will include hunt teams and an exhibition by the famous Fort Myer cavalry team.

Mrs. William Jeffries Chewning, the former Margo Couzens, has entered her mount in various events in the evening program. Favors and programs will be sold at the show by the season's debutantes. U. S. Marines will act as ushers. The Navy Band will furnish music in the afternoon while the Marine Band will play at night. Mrs. Frank M. Andrews is chairman of the committee in charge of the show.

He is survived by a brother, John Slingland, and a sister, Miss Margaret Slingland, both of Washington. Mr. King had been a friend for many years of Mr. Slingland.

Hurley to Attend Sigma Chi Meeting

College Fraternity Will Hold Regional Parley Here Soon.

Secretary of War Hurley, one of the distinguished alumni of Sigma Chi, national college fraternity, will take a prominent part in the regional meeting in the Hotel Mayflower February 28 and March 1.

Delegates from a dozen States along the Atlantic seaboard and Canada are to join with the chapter at George Washington University in conducting the meeting. The main event of the convention will be a banquet, when Secretary Hurley, Harry S. New, former Postmaster General; E. Lee Trinkle, former Governor of Virginia, and others are to speak. Some of the Sigma Chis who may be present are Brand Whitlock, former United States Ambassador to Belgium; George Ade and Booth Tarkington.

Rush L. Holland, former assistant Attorney General, heads the general convention committee. Other members are Dean Davis, of the Board of Tax Appeals; R. S. Doyle, local attorney; John G. Harlan, of the Treasury Department; T. C. Larey and W. T. Snow, of the local chapter; H. B. McCawley, local attorney; John A. Purinton, of the Board of Tax Appeals, and William Warfield Rossa and C. E. Randall, of the Forestry Service.

FARM BOARD FOES FLAYED BY CAPPER

Senator Warns Country to Beware of Proganda of Selfish Groups.

CITES ATTACKS MADE

Charging that private interests were stirring up distrust of the Farm Board among farmers and farm organizations, Senator Capper, of Kansas, last night urged the country to "give the Farm Board a chance" and "beware of the propaganda from selfish interests."

"It looks like a two-way attack," the Kansas Republican said in a statement. "One by the grain trade and its allies, to frighten the business man and consumer; the other, to persuade the farmers that the board is not acting in their interests."

He expressed belief that the board in its work through cooperative organization was on the right track and added:

"Being flooded with propaganda from Chicago, Minneapolis, Kansas City and other grain centers—and from some financial interests also—against cooperative marketing and especially against the grain cooperatives.

"Perhaps one of the most extraordinary of these efforts is the campaign being waged against the Canadian wheat pool, evidenced by a recent article by James E. Boyle, reprinted by that old-time friend of all opponents of the farmer, the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce."

Senator Capper said that "the Canadian wheat pool is the greatest cooperative selling organization the world has ever seen—which may be one perfectly good reason why the grain trade is weeping such bitter tears about it."

He concluded with an assertion that the Farm Board was composed of strong men.

"They should be given every chance to function," he said. "They should have freedom of action."

PROHIBITION LAUDED IN ROBSION SPEECH

ciary committee, and Senator Borah, of Idaho, who has charged that open saloons are running throughout the nation, is a member of the committee.

It was reported that Republican leaders were exerting pressure in an effort to ward off a probe, but Senator Watson, of Indiana, Republican thus leaving the issue up to the decision of the Senate.

A counter maneuver, a substitute to the Wheeler resolution calling upon the judiciary committee to determine whether the law can be enforced, probably will be offered with a view to confining the inquiry solely to whether the law has been enforced, and it is believed the substitute will attract greater support.

Regardless of the decision of the committee on the investigation, however, the Senate must also act upon the inquiry resolution, and that resolution probably will be the first issue on which the wets and drys square away following final disposal of the tariff bill. Notice already has been served by the dry forces of the Senate that they are ready to vote on the resolution by Senator Blaine, of Wisconsin, to repeal the eighteenth amendment.

Transfer Measure in Committee.

The Senate judiciary committee also has before it the House bill providing for the transfer of the Prohibition Bureau from the Treasury to the Justice Department, and may consider it today. Senator King, of Utah, introduced the bill, which has been referred to a subcommittee headed by Senator King. The Utah senator, however, is in a hospital, and Chairman NUorris announced he would reappoint another subcommittee to consider the bill.

In the meantime the House judiciary committee will return to work tomorrow on the legislative program recommended by the Commission on Law Enforcement and Observance. It is doubtful whether the House group will make a favorable report on its bills for repeal and modification of the prohibition law, and thus the only chance for a show down and straight out vote this session on prohibition apparently is on the Blaine repeal resolution in the Senate.

Robsion Scoffs at Opposition.

Alluding directly to a group of women appeared before congressional committees last week, asking for a referendum on prohibition, Senator Robsion declared: "Those women boasted that they represented 100,000 people. Well, maybe so. Anyway I am sure theer are 25,000,000 women in the country who are ardent prohibitionists."

The senator likewise scouted statements of that group concerning drinking in educational institutions, and that prohibition was enacted without a voice of the people.

"Why, when I was in college," Senator Robsion said, "a lot of the boys did not have regular rooms. They lived in the saloons where free lunches were served. No such conditions now exist in any college."

Concerning enforcement, he contended that violations are not proof of the wrongfulness of a law. There were 60,000 arrests for traffic violations in Washington last year, he said, yet no one would say those laws should be repealed. Likewise murders are daily committed, but no demands are made for repeal of homicide statutes.

Senator Robsion also referred to persistent demands for strict law enforcement. "Instead of so much enforcement demands," he averred, "there should be more emphasis placed on law obedience."

Miss Willard Praised.

Praising the work of Miss Willard, the senator declared there is an equal need today for the W. C. T. U. in the work of building homes and helping childhood, which were the principal endeavors of their leader.

In a biographical address, Mrs. Andrew McCampbell declared Miss Willard represented the "flower of temperance chivalry, and her power of leadership and organization ability have never been equaled."

"Miss Willard, with a true crusader's spirit, gave her very life to the temperance movement," Mrs. McCampbell said. "For 22 years she spoke daily and traveled constantly. She died at the early age of 58 years."

DR. OLIVER IS SPEAKER

The librarian possesses the material from which to create an antidote to the materialistic atmosphere in which we are forced to liv, according to Dr. John Rathbone Oliver, the principal speaker at the morning session of the escond annual meeting of the Columbian Li- Saturday at Johns Hopkins University.

The association voted to retain the officers of the past year for 1930. Miss Adelene Jessup Pratt, of the Maryland Public Library Advisory Commission, is president; vice presidents, Frederick W. Ashley, of the Library of Congress, and Miss Eleanor W. Falley, of Goucher College, secretary, Miss M. Grace Barnes, of the University of Maryland, and treasurer, W. Taylor Purdom, of the Public Library of the District of Columbia.

After luncheon in Levering Hall the group visited the Baltimore Museum of Art. A trip to the Welsh Medical Library was followed by a tea at Goucher College, where the delegates were welcomed by Dr. Dorothy Stimson, acting president. Miss Margaret Jackson, librarian of the Hoyt Library, Kingston, Pa., talked on the books of 1929.

Dr. Gilbert Chinard, professor of French literature at Johns Hopkins University, the speaker of the evening session, shose as his subject, "The Librarian and the Scholar." In small libraries throughout the United States are many treasures in the form of periodicals and newspapers which cannot be found in the larger centers of learning, he said.

History, according to Dr. Chinard, is nto made up of the lives of great men. These were exceptions. But it is the life of the folk, their ways of living, and their reaction to events. The life of Main street, he declared, must be studied carefully to comprehend history.

Righteousness by Law Held Religion Threat

Reformers who endeavor to create righteousness by law rather than by personal relation to religious worship are leading many Americans to believe in a false civil-religious combination, said Dr. B. G. Wilkinson, dean of theology of Washington Missionary College, last night in the L'Aiglon Auditorium, Eighteenth street and Columbia road.

He explained how it is possible for people to become so engaged in business that they forget the importance of religious worship and the price paid for it. Such people will fail materially and spiritually.

Dr. A. W. Truman, medical superintendent of Washington Sanitarium and Hospital, Takoma Park, spoke on "How to Cook to Save the Minerals and Vitamines in Foods."

SUSAN B. ANTHONY'S MEMORY IS HONORED

REFORMS ARE RECALLED

More than 100 women and several men paid tribute to the memory of Susan B. Anthony, pioneer suffragette, yesterday afternoon on the occasion of her 110th birthday anniversary at the Young Women's Christian Association.

The 50 years of courageous fighting in the interests of women's rights, particularly the vote, were reviewed at length by several speakers. Miss Belle Sherwin, president of the National League of Women's Voters, which is an outgrowth of the women's suffrage party, Miss Anthony organized, reviewed the pioneer work of her predecessor, citing many of the hardships that beset the famous reformer's path.

Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, chairman of council of the National Woman's Party, spoke especially of the reform movements in which Miss Anthony took a part. In her early days the reformer was a leader in the temperance campaign, though later she centered her work on woman's suffrage. She also was a vigorous advocate for Negro suffrage, women school teachers and law improvements.

Miss Janet Richards, of Washington, dwelt particularly on the heroism of Miss Anthony during the days when the battle for woman's right to vote was ridiculed. She said that now many foreign countries honor the woman's memory. Mrs. Bertha Yoder Werthner made a brief talk.

Among those sitting on the platform were two friends of Miss Anthony, Mrs. Ida Houston Harper, her only biographer, who was closely associated with the reformer for a number of years, while Mrs. Adaleid A. Johnson carved the statue of Miss Anthony that is now in the Capitol. Others on the platform included Dr. William Tindall, who has been a life long woman's suffrage worker. Mrs. Caroline B. Stevens and Mrs. William E. Chamberlin, both of Washington.

Mrs. Anna E. Henley, who presided, used the gavel Miss Anthony employed in calling many women's conventions to order.

Miss Gertrude Lyons sang two solos, accompanied by Miss Bowie Grant. The Rev. U. G. B. Pierce, pastor of All Souls' Universalist Church, pronounced the invocation.

Charles Taft Spends Day With Sick Father

(Associated Press.)

The condition of William Howard Taft was described as unchanged in a bulletin issued yesterday by his physicians through the White House.

The bulletin, issued by Dr. Francis R. Hagner and Dr. Thomas A. Claytor, read: "There is no change in the condition of the former Chief Justice. His son, Charles P. Taft, came on from Cincinnati Saturday night and is spending the day with his father."

'Peiping Man' Was Woman Declares Canadian Expert

Months Will Be Taken to Remove Skull, Believed to Be That of Prehistoric Female, From Rock in Which It Is Imbedded.

Peiping, China, Feb. 16 (A.P.).—Dr. Davidson Black has decided that the "Peiping man" probably was a woman.

Dr. Black, Canadian custodian of the skull which gave rise to the "Pieping man" theory and startled the world with evidence that men or menlike creatures had lived near here approximately a million years ago, made the new announcement today, after he had partially chiseled away the stone in which the skull was embedded. The fossil was found in a quarry near Peiping last year. Roy Chapman Andrews believed the discovery the most important ever made in the study of human evolution.

"There are many certain characteristics indicating that the skull was that of a woman," Dr. Black said. "It is apparently that of a young female adult."

The skull's sutures are deep and unfused. The brain capacity was clearly larger than that of the pithecanthropus erectus or Java "ape man." The skull still remains embedded in part in the rock in which it was found.

Dr. Black, using most delicate instruments gradually has been chiseling the stone away. The task will require months, much care being taken so the parts of the skull will remain undisturbed. When the rock has been removed it will be possible to measure its thickness and also to determine the brain capacity definitely. So far the skull has been prepared only down to the eye sockets.

PAYLESS POLICEMEN SET ARREST RECORD

ROBBERIES CUT IN HALF

Chicago, Feb. 16 (A.P.).—Chicago's payless policemen set a new record for arrests today in continuing their current war on crime. More than 1,100 suspects had been taken into custody in a 24-hour period ending early tonight.

Three hundred and twenty-four known hoodlums, most of them having police records and seven picked up while carrying guns, were held for a show-up before crime victims.

The antigangster drive was accompanied last night by a radical depression in robberies. Only 35, less than half the normal number, were reported.

Notorious gang leaders and racketeers continued to evade the police net, although district patrolmen and flivver crews joined detective bureau squads in combing the territories ruled by the Capones, Gusicks, O'Donnells, Nittis and Bugs Moran.

Under the system recently adopted by State's Attorney John A. Swanson, the gun carriers face indictment and trial in the criminal court along with the score of others against whom indictments were returned last week.

Police Commissioner William F. Russell revealed a new angle of the city's attack on criminals today with the presence of two immigration officials at the "show up." These will investigate the entry of every foreigner picked up with a view to deportation if his presence in this country is illegal or if he has forfeited his right to citizenship.

Airmail Pick-Up Device Will Be Given Test Here

Tests of an automatic airmail pick-up device, recently perfected, will be made Thursday at Hoover Field. Members of Congress and officials of the Postoffice and Commerce Departments will witness the tests. The device is expected to permit the unloading and picking up of mail pouches by planes in flight.

Brickbats & Bouquets

By JAMES HAY, JR.

THE prohibition agent, admitting that he fired the bullet which grazed the scalp of one of the young women riding in the automobile, said he aimed at the ground.—From a news story from a mid-Western State.

Obviously, that man should be reprimanded for poor marksmanship! In this era of magic bullets and miracle shooting by prohibition agents, the careless and inept fellow who merely grazes a scalp violates all the traditions and ideals.

Usually the agent who opens fire on a "suspect" in a fleeing car shoots with the deadly accuracy of Jesse James, Dick Deadeye and Two-gun Tom.

• • • •

GRIM, gaunt and determined, he's off in hot pursuit! His own automobile hurtles through space, careening crazily, swaying wildly and doing a Spanish fandango on one wheel. The car in front throws into his face a whirlwind of dust and grime, and from its exhaust come clouds of burning oil worse than a dozen smoke screens.

To expect a man to shoot straight in such circumstances is like asking a cowboy on a bucking bronco to thread a needle dangled before him by a lady suffering from St. Vitus dance.

But the agent of the law has a bee-line eye, a granite arm and a steel fibered wrist. He is as much of a wizard on angles as Willie Hoppe and Welker Cochran. In his uncanny sensing of space and timing he puts it all over Jack Dempsey and Dr. Einstein.

HE draws! He is about to fire! Though all the world about him is a dizzy, blinding, dancing hullaballoo, he is steady as a rock, calm as a cloudless morn in May.

He aims at that particular spot on the ground from which his richocheting bullet will do the swift angle and the rapid trajectory that will inevitably carry it through the rear curtain of the speeding car and into the center of the bony but yielding skull of the luckless wight on the rear seat seat.

His performance is marvelous. To score a bullseye when shooting from one runaway car at a target in another bouncing, bounding and unbalanced machine would be great stuff for the average man. But to do it by aiming at the ground, after carefully calculating the algebra, geometry and calculus wrapped up in the swiftly changing situation—that, we submit, is marksmanship in which not even Senator Smith Wildman Brookhart could find a flaw!

• • • •

AND the achievement can't be accidental. Note how frequently an agent, when charged with skillfully imbedding the lead in a suspect but escaping the cranium, modestly explains that he did it by "aiming at the ground!"

Therefore, when an exemplar of this miraculous shooting fails from grace so far as to graze a scalp instead of penetrating the exact mathematical center of a skull, we are all discouraged and sad. That is, we despair, do we not, of human perfection in anything?

Hospital for Millionaires To Open Today in New York

New $4,250,000 Institutioon, Near Hell Gate Bridge, Headed by J. P. Morgan Partner, Built and Owned by Ultrawealthy.

New York, Feb. 16 (A.P.).—Built and owned by millionaires who, having helped to build hospitals for the rest of the world, decided they might as well have one of their own for a change, the new $4,250,000 Doctors' Hospital, overlooking the East River and Hell Gate Bridge, will open tomorrow.

It has a French chef, the orange juice will be served in delicately frosted crystal glasses surrounded by crcked ice, and there's not a white iron bed in the place.

Thomas Cochran, a partner in J. P. Morgan & Co., is president of the board of directors. Instead of a superintendent, the hospital has a resident manager, A. J. Gertenbach, with 25 years' experience in some of New York's leading hotels. Mrs. Charles H. S bin did the interior decorating.

There are gay chintz curtains at the windows in this hospital, bedspreads quilted in colors, and thick, soft blankets of rose, pale blue and jade green. The beds are metal, in accordance with hospital regulations, but they are in period design and are finished to look like walnut. The rest of the furniture is period, too. And in each room is a handsome writing desk. All the dishes are gold banded and smartly crested.

As far as possible, Doctors' Hospital is going to be run like a high-class hotel. The lobby is exactly like the lobby of any ultra-smart apartment hotel. There is a florist shop, valet, barber and hair dresser.

In equipment for surgery and for the care of patients, Doctors' Hospital is practically perfect, physicians say. It has on its board of governors some of the most distinguished surgeons and medical men in New York.

There are no charity wards, and the most desirable rooms rent for $50 a day. But a room may be had for as little as $8 a day.

estimated at $1,500. Passengers on the street car were shaken up but none was injured. The firemen injured, A. P. Burgess and A. L. Craver, were treated by Fire Surgeon Marburry.

The fire from which the truck was returning was in the furnace room of a house at 1218 Eleventh street northwest. It caused about $50 damage.

James Dixon, 45 years old, of 1325 M street northwest, suffered a broken bone in the right shoulder and a bruised upper lip when he was knocked down by an automobile while crossing the west side of Thomas Circle yesterday morning, Second Precinct police reported.

Police said that Dixon was crossing the street in face of a green light. He was treated at Emergency Hospital. His condition was not believed to be serious. The driver of the car, police said, was Frank C. Choat, of 1730 M street northwest.

Motorist Flees After Accident.

Howard Hayes, 48 years old, of Clarendon, Va., suffered a compound fracture of the left leg at 8 o'clock last night when he was knocked down by a hit-and-run motorist at First street and Maryland avenue northeast. He was taken in a passing machine to Emergency Hospital, where his conditoin was reported as not serious.

Crashing into a tree on the sled he was piloting down a hill in the Forest Heights section of Rock Creek Park, Joseph Wells, 23 years old, of 4536 Twenty-eighth street northwest, suffered a fracture of the right ankle at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon. He was taken in a passing automobile to Emergency Hospital and admitted.

Four Hurt in Single Crash.

Four persons, the occupants of two automobiles, suffered injuries not believed serious in a collision at 6:15 o'clock last night at Forty-first and Ingomar streets northwest.

In one machine, which received a broken wind shield and damage approximating $100, were Emmons L. Kitchin, 23 years old, of 6713 Second street northwest, the driver, who suffered cuts on the head; Walter Rollinson, 24 years old, an employe of the Chevy Chase Dairy, of 1811 Thirty-fourth street northwest, a fracture of the right knee and lacerations about the right eye, and his 20-month-old son, Walter, jr., slight lacerations of the head. They were treated at Georgetown Hospital.

William Loy, of R street near Sixteenth street northwest, the driver of the other machine, was treated at Emergency Hospital for minor bruises and booked at the Fourteenth Precinct Station on charges of driving while drunk.

Joseph Eroesky, 32 years old, of 1819 G street northwest, received possible internal injuries and a fracture of the skull when an automobile he was driving collided with another car at Twenty-first and E streets northwest late yesterday afternoon.

He was taken to Emergency Hospital, where his condition was reported to be serious. Police said that the other car was driven by Joseph Mendez, of G street near Eighteenth street northwest. He escaped injury.

Woman Wounded in Leg As Pistol Is Discharged

Accidental discharge of an "unloaded pistol" wounded Mrs. Annie M. Jones, 35 years old, of 4011 Thirtieth street, Mount Rainier, Md., in the left leg early yesterday afternoon while she was visiting in the home of Thomas Reed at 4007 Thirtieth street. The two were said by police to have been examining the weapon at the time.

Mrs. Jones was treated at Casualty Hospital by Dr. J. Rogers Young.

THEFT COUNT FACED BY THREE IN VIENNA

Trio Said to Have Confessed Stealing Chickens From Franconia Houses.

HEARING SET FOR TODAY

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 243, Vienna, Va.
Phone Vienna 64.

Harvey Lacey, 20; Everett Lacey, 28, and George Brown, 17, all of Franconia, are in the Fairfax Jail awaiting a hearing on a charge of chicken stealing. Robert Lacy and Flemming Gorham, arrested at the same time as being implicated in the theft, were released on the alleged confession of the trio. Their arrest followed the complaint of Mrs. Edmund Davidson, of Franconia, that someone had stolen 56 dozen of eggs and about 30 chickens sometime Friday night.

Sheriff Eppa Kirby and Deputy Sheriff Henry Magarity made an investigation and found that several other persons in the neighborhood had also missed their chickens during the week. Suspicion was soon centered on the Laceys. The sheriff made a search of the Lacey home and found a half gallon of alleged liquor in the possession of Herbert They were all taken on the liquor charge.

The first statement was made to the sheriff by Robert Lacey. The sheriff said that he was told "that Friday night Robert told his brothers to go to his chicken house and kill the fourteen chickens there. He put the water on to boil, then laid down and soon fell asleep. He was later awakened by his brother who returned with fourteen dead chickens. The next morning they went to the market at Alexandria and then to Washington. They carried with them fourteen dressed chickens and fifteen that were alive. Also a large quantity of eggs." On arresting them the sheriff said that he counted seventeen chickens in the Lacey chicken house, where there were only fourteen at first, according to Robert's story.

The sheriff stated that on finding that Robert had made a statement, the others confessed that they had stolen chickens from Chester Taylor, Edmund Davidson and Talbert's store, all at Franconia, and from George Smith at Springfield, and a man by the name of Dewey on Telegraph road near Alexandria. They were sold at the wholesale markets in Alexandria and Washington, it was said.

They will be granted a hearing in Fairfax today on both charges.

The Falls Church Evening Study Club will meet tonight at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel H. Styles. Miss Bessie Stewart will read a paper on "John Brown's Body."

The regular meeting of the Arlington and Fairfax Counties Fireman's Association, which was scheduled to be held tomorrow evening with the Vienna Volunteer Department at Vienna, has been postponed until February 25, at which time the association will meet in Ballston.

At a recent meeting of the Home Demonstration Agent's Advisory Council of Fairfax County, Mrs. J. U. Kincheloe, of Fairfax, was reelected president of the council. Mrs. Charles Babcock, of Vienna, was reelected vice president. Mrs. J. B. Davis, of Burke, was reelected treasurer, and Mrs. D. J. Garber, of Accotink, was elected secretary.

Miss Maud Wallace, of Blacksburg, State agent in charge of home demonstration work in Virginia, was the guest of the council at its meeting. She asked that a delegation for the county attend the annual institute of rural affairs and the meeting of the Home Makers Association which will be held in Blacksburg this summer.

The Northwest Citizens Association of Falls Church will meet tonight at the home of Dr. Joseph Allison, in West Falls Church.

Mrs. Joseph Hagins was elected president of the all-day study class for foreign missions of the Southern Methodist Church at Floris; Mrs. Wilson McNair, vice president; Mrs. Sara Middleton, secretary, and Mrs. Edgar E. Beard, treasurer.

The Sharon Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, at McLean, will meet tonight in the Masonic Hall there. They plan to hold special services for members of the Sharon Masonic Lodge and the Sharon Chapter next Sunday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, in the Presbyterian Church at Lewinsville. The Rev. J. Harvey Dunham will address the meeting.

The annual election of officers of the Ladies Guild of St. Mary's Church, at McLean, will be held today.

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Presbyterian Church at Herndon, will meet this evening at the home of Mrs. William E. Miller. The election of officers for the coming year, beginning April 1, will be held at this time.

The troop committee of the Annandale Boy Scouts will meet tomorrow night with a special committee, consisting of the Rev. W. H. Gray, James Nash and P. S. Anderson, of the Southern Methodist Church, at Annandale, in regard to plans for using the old church social hall as a permanent scout headquarters.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Southern Methodist Church, at Floris, have elected Mrs. Benjamin Middleton as president for the coming year. Other officers elected are: Mrs. Harry Presgraves, vice president; Mrs. M. T. Wooten, secretary and treasurer, and Mrs. William Brogden, assistant secretary.

A special meeting of the board of directors of the Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce has been called for this evening at 8 o'clock in the chamber's offices at Fairfax.

Workmen of the force of the county engineer during the past week have been repainting the interior of the addition to the courthouse. Several changes will also be made to the interior of the courtroom before the workmen complete their work on the courthouse and the windows will be fixed so the upper sash can be lowered.

The annual business meeting of the stockholders of the Great Falls Grange Building Corporation will be held tonight in the Grange Hall at Forestville.

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Vienna Volunteer Fire Department will hold a card party in the town hall at Vienna Wednesday evening. This party will be given for the benefit of the fire engine fund.

J. HAMILTON NEWHOUSE.

Hoovers Secluded On Trip Homeward

President and Party Are Returning to the Capital After Fishing Trip.

Aboard President Hoover's Train En Route to Washington, Feb. 16 (A.P.).—President Hoover was headed back to work and cold weather today after a week of sport in the warm waters of the Gulf Stream.

The Chief Executive and Mrs. Hoover stayed in the seclusion of their private car throughout the day, spending their time reading or talking with friends. With them on the car were Associate Justice Stone, of the United States Supreme Court and Mrs. Stone, Dr. Vernon Kellogg, of the National Research Council, and Mark Sullivan, Washington newspaperman, and Mrs. Sullivan. All were fishing companions of the President and Mrs. Hoover during the week they spent aboard the houseboat, The Saunterer, off Long Key, Fla.

Mr. Hoover will arrive in Washington early tomorrow. Bronzed by the sun, he was perfectly satisfied with the efforts of his week of rest and sport, although from the standpoint of fishing, the expedition was only moderately successful.

NEWHOUSE NAMED TO OFFICE IN LEGION

1929 REPORT IS GIVEN

Special to The Washington Post.

Culpeper, Va., Feb. 16.—Despite his protests that he was unable to continue in office longer, J. Hamilton Newhouse last night was drafted by the executive council to continue as chairman of the American Legion Welfare Association and affiliated bodies, being elected to this position for the third successive term. Upon being promised more assistance and a stronger active committee, Newhouse accepted the office.

Letcher Longerbeam was elected secretary, replacing J. Herbert Vaughan, and Judge C. E. Reams, was reelected treasurer. The new active committee, appointed by J. C. Albright, commander of Culpeper Post, No. 44, to assist Newhouse in investigating and aiding charity cases reported, is made up of P. W. Fore T. I. Martin and Walter Roy.

The report for 1929 showed that 151 calls were made by representatives of the organization, in addition to which 50 visits were made by doctors. Food, clothing and medicine were furnished a number of families and 16 stranded people were helped on their way.

Six dental patients were cared for and 32 tonsil operations were paid for. Glasses were furnished for one school child and an ambulance was furnished nine times to take patients to Washington or Charlottesville hospitals. Thirty patients in all were sent to hospitals for treatment, employment was found for six jobless men and three children were placed in private homes.

The treasurer's report showed that this work had been carried on with an expenditure of just a little over $500 of the welfare association's funds.

These reports do not cover the work done following the Woodville tornado, at which time $4,600 was raised and disbursed in rehabilitating the destitute, nor does it cover the throat clinic sponsored by the legion for school children.

Each organization contributing is represented on the executive council and calls attention to all cases which come to its notice, thereby covering the county more thoroughly and eliminating duplication of effort.

Drive May Enlist 100 Local Churches

Committee on Spring Religious Campaign to Meet Today.

Probability that at least 100 churches in the District will join in the city-wide religious census and evangelistic visitation campaign to be conducted here during March and April by the general committee of pastors and laymen was seen yesterday.

The committee of ten District chairmen for the advance survey, which is to take place from March 9 to 21, will meet today at noon at the City Club, under chairmanship of the Rev. J. R. Duffield, who is in charge of the survey. Pastors of the Presbyterian Church will meet on Tuesday afternon at the Church of the Covenant to plan for wholehearted cooperation among their own churches.

Members of the survey committee are the Rev. Freeley Rohrer, Roscoe Brane, the Rev. Moses Lovell, the Rev. George F. Dudley, the Rev. A. E. Barrows, the Rev. O. O. Dietz, the Rev. P. C. Edwards, Dr. Joseph White, the Rev. Thomas S. Davis and the Rev. Percy Mitchell. Their districts cover the entire area of Washington, with adjoining sections of Maryland and Virginia.

Musician Loses Banjo When Thief Steals Car

When Hugh F. Alexander, of 1341 Clifton street northwest, local musician, lost his automobile yesterday morning he also suffered the deprivation of his banjo which he values at $325, he told police.

Alexander told police that he parked his car on Columbia road east of Eighteenth street northwest early yesterday morning, and left his banjo in the car. When he returned the automobile had disappeared together with the banjo.

Miss Johnston Is Honored in Arts Exhibit

Photographic Studies of Virginia Towns Hang in Library.

THE first exhibition to be held under the auspices of the newly organized division of fine arts of the Library of Congress is the work of a Washington woman, Miss Frances Benjamin Johnston, a pioneer in the photographic field, who has been devoting herself of late to the photographing of historic gardens. The present exhibit, the first to be hung since the chair of fine arts was established by gift of the Carnegie Corporation to the Library of Congress, with Mr. Leicester B. Holland as its incumbent, is a pictorial survey of the architecture and gardens of Fredericksburg, old Falmouth and nearby Virginia towns.

These photographic studies, which interpret the spirit of an age which is passing in a most sympathetic fashion were undertaken at the instigation of Mrs. Daniel B. Devore, a quondam Washingtonian, who is now chatelaine of Chatham, a beautiful and historic estate which overlooks Fredericksburg from the heights across the river. It was her desire to preserve a record of the quaint old town as it is today and it is her hope that this record may be extended to other cities and towns of equal historical importance in other parts of the country.

The negatives of this series, exquisite in composition, highly artistic in their effects of light and shadow, as well as tremendously interesting historically, are the property of Mrs. Devore. But Miss Johnston has placed many of her other plates, between 5,000 and 6,000 of them, in the keeping of the Library of Congress so that they may be available to the public with certain restrictions in the same manner that the Museum of Chalcography, established at the library under the will of the late Joseph Pennell, permits the reprinting of etchings, engravings, &c., from Government-owned plates.

As a girl, Miss Johnston interviewed and photographed most of the celebrities of the day—long before the camera man had become as ubiquitous as he is now—and her collection of negatives has valuable historical aspects. Beside this series the collection of plates which she has turned over to the library includes a fine series of photographs of Italian gardens and a great variety of other subjects.

Garretts Entertain In Rome for Miss Carroll.

The Ambassador to Italy and Mrs. John W. Garrett recently entertained in Rome in honor of Miss Nancy Carroll, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Gordon Carroll, of Baltimore, who is traveling abroad. Miss Carroll, who will be one of next season's debutantes, will visit in Germany and later in Paris, where she will be the guest of her uncle and aunt, Capt. and Mrs. William Bleck, who have a house in the Rue Spontini.

Miss Alice Huston entertained a company of twelve at the supper dance at the Club Chantecler on Saturday evening.

Miss Nellie Gregg Tomlinson, U. S. collector of customs, Des Moines, Iowa, arrived at the Willard yesterday for the conference of customs officials being held at the hotel for the next three days. Miss Tomlinson and Mrs. Jeanette A. Hyde are the only two women customs officials who will be here for the conference. Mrs. Hyde was national Republican committeewoman from Utah and is now stationed at Honolulu.

Mrs. Peter A. Drury will entertain at tea at her home in Rhode Island avenue on Friday afternoon from 4:30 until 6:30 o'clock, in honor of Miss Alma Kruger, of New York, who is in the city as guest director of the forthcoming Drama Guild production of "The Honeymoon" to be given on February 28 and March 1 at McKinley Auditorium.

Among Mrs. Drury's guests on Friday afternoon will be members of the Community Drama Guild of Washington, the board of governors, the Guild committees and the cast of Washington players who will apear in the play.

The Minister of Albania, Mr. Faik Konitza, entertained at dinner on Saturday evening at Brooke Manor, the dinner being served in the picturesque old kitchen of the mansion which was built in 1727.

Distinguished English Novelist Is Visitor.

Mr. Hugh Walpole, distinguished English author and lecturer, is staying with Representative and Mrs. J. Mayhew Wainwright at their residence on R street.

Mrs. R. P. Robinson, of Beloit, Wis., is at the Dodge Hotel for a brief visit.

Mrs. Cloyd Heck Marvin, wife of the president of the George Washington University, has been called to the West Coast unexpectedly owing to the illness of her mother, and has had to cancel all social engagements.

Mr. John C. McBride, of Juneau, Alaska, is a guest at the Willard for several days.

Mrs. and Miss Wall Hosts To Capital Debutantes.

Mrs. Joseph Stiles Wall and Miss Frances Wall entertained at tea yesterday having the debutantes of this season and of last season in honor of Miss Mary Ruden, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Ruden. Spring flowers in pastel shades decked the table and drawing rooms.

Mrs. B. Scott Young spent the week-end at Augusta Military Academy in Virginia as the guest of her son, Mr. Schuyler Young. Mrs. Young is sailing on the Ecuador for Caracas, Venezuela, where she will be the guest of her cousins, Col. and Mrs. Hamilton Hardy Schuyler, later cruising through the Panama Canal with short stops in San Salvador and other Central American ports. She will not return to Washington until June.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Ward, of Akron, Ohio, are spending some time at the Potomac Park Apartments.

Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Young and Mrs. J. C. Fitzhugh, of McKeesport, Pa., are guests at the Cairo Hotel for several days.

Capt. and Mrs. H. W. Hardman have moved from their home, 3511 Thirteenth street, and have taken an apartment at the Cavalier.

K. A. T. Alumnae To Be Entertained.

The Washington Alumnae Chapter of Kappa Alpha Theta will be entertained at the home of Mrs. Thomas Taylor, 3905 Jocelyn street, Chevy Chase, tomorrow evening, at 8 o'clock. All Thetas in Washington are cordially invited to attend.

Mrs. Nettie David has returned to her home in Philadelphia after a visit with Mrs. Estelle Nordlinger, of Beverly Courts.

Massachusetts Society Meets Tomorrow Evening.

The fourth meeting of the 1929-30 season of the Massachusetts Society of Washington will be held Tuesday evening, in the gold room at Wardman Park Hotel. Dancing will begin at 9 o'clock and continue until 1 a. m.

The Washington Alumni of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology have been invited as guests of the evening.

The dancing will be in charge of Mr. Lewis W. Hart, Mr. Robert H. Kempton and Mr. John H. Springer. The music will be arranged by Mr. Frank E. Hickey and Mr. Charles F. Sharkey.

Mr. Sanford Bates, director of Federal penal institutions, was elected president of the society at a meeting of the board of trustees in the office of Representative Frederick W. Dallinger, chairman of the board, last Monday. Mr. Bates succeeds Mr. George R. Farnum, who recently went to Boston to take up a law practice there.

Lady Flower And Daughter Will Be Feted

Noted English Women to Arrive Friday for Capital Visit.

Lady Flower and Miss Evadne Flower, wife and daughter of Sir Archibald Flower, will arrive in Washington from England on Friday and will be guests for the week-end of Mr. John Rutherford, who will give a dinner in their honor on Monday, February 24. After the arrival of Sir Archibald Flower, the party will be at the Willard.

Many delightful festivities are being planned for Sir Archibald and Lady Flower and their pretty daughter. The Minister of Canada and Mrs. Vincent Massey will give a luncheon in their honor on March 2, and that afternoon there will be an informal reception at the Arts Club, at which Sir Archibald will speak informally on the new Shakespeare Memorial Theater. He is chairman of the board of governors. Before going to Philadelphia on March 4, the visitors will fill many other pleasant engagements, including a tea to be given for them on March 3, at the clubhouse of the Association of University Women and the Celebrity Breakfast of the League of American Pen Women, on February 28.

Society Girls Take Up Variety of Sports.

"Gym and swim"—or gym and golf as fancy dictates—is the slogan of the society girls who are going in for spring sports under the auspices of the Young Women's Christian Association. Organized by Miss Betty Thorpe, Miss Junia Culbertson and Miss Bina Day Deneen, the group meets in the big gymnasium of the "Y" on Tuesday and Thursday mornings and occasionally varies its routine with a lively game of badminton, so popular in England and Canada and rapidly gaining ground in the United States.

Miss Alice Hutchins Drake will conduct the Booklover's Hour this evening between 8 and 9 o'clock at the Young Women's Christian Association when the Ohio Girls Club will be the honor guests in recognition of Miss Drake's family alliance with the State of Ohio. For many years her father was assistant to the Attorney General of the United States, was a member of the Ohio bar and a figure in the progress of the State.

The talk this evening, which is open to the public, will center about "books we are glad to have read" and will be followed by a group of Negro dialect stories given by Miss Helen Colhoun. Miss Drake has presented lectures on literature for a period of twelve years.

Mrs. Hal C. Temple, of Nacogpoches, Tex., is a guest at the Willard, having with her her daughter, Miss Helen Temple, who is a student at Goucher College, Baltimore. They will be in town during Miss Temple's midwinter recess.

Representative James M. Beck, of Pennsylvania, will be the principal speaker at the annual celebration of George Washington's birthday by the Sons of the Revolution in the State of New York, which will be held on Saturday morning in Carnegie Hall, New York. More than 40 patriotic societies will join in the celebration. Maj. John V. Bouvier, jr., president of the Sons of the Revolution, will preside.

In addition to the patriotic societies, nearly a score of other societies have been invited to participate, including the Washington Continental Guards, the Women's Overseas Service League, the American Red Cross, &c. In the evening the organization will hold their annual dinner in the Plaza.

The Notre Dame de Namur Alumnae Association will give a pre-Lenten dance in the main ballroom of Wardman Park Hotel on Monday evening, March 3. The proceeds will be used to increase the scholarship fund.

Miss Ellen M. Briggs is chairman of the general committee.

Princess Boncompagni Heads Lecture Subscribers.

Princess Margaret Boncompagni heads a new list of subscribers to Dr. Louis K. Anspacher's lectures on Shakespeare at the Willard Hotel, which will continue on Wednesday morning with "Julius Caesar." Another recent subscriber is Miss Victoria Powell, of London, who is in Washington in connection with the forthcoming American tour of the Stratford-on-Avon Shakespeare players, while other new subscribers are Mrs. Ollie James, Mrs. Wilbur Turner, Mrs. H. R. Shares, Mrs. Charles Henry Butler, Mrs. Gilbank Twigg, Mrs. Robert Dulaney Cummin and Mrs. E. St. John Greble.

New to Official Ranks

Underwood & Underwood
MRS. PAUL J. KVALE, wife of Representative Kvale, of Minnesota, who is one of the most charming of the younger Congressional hostesses.

Lovers of Wagnerian music are looking forward to the lecture and interpretations of Mr. Kurt Hetzel at the Willard this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. His subject is "Richard Wagner and the Modern Orchestra Conductor," and his talk will be illustrated with themes from the Wagner operas.

This is the opening lecture of the series given under the auspices of the Junior League of Washington, who have secured an unusually brilliant list of speakers for the series to be given on successive Mondays at the Willard through March and April.

This afternoon a group of debutantes taken into the league this year will act as ushers. It is the plan of the committee, of which Mrs. H. L. Rust, jr., is chairman, to have a group of girls act in this capacity at each lecture.

Next Monday Alexander Woollcott, critic and author, noted for his sparkling wit and pungent criticism, will give "Confessions of a Dying Newspaperman." It is promised that the confessions will be anything but doleful.

Kappa Kappa Gamma Alumnae Association will meet tomorrow at the Burlington Hotel. Supper will be served at 6 o'clock. Miss Alice Atwood, Mrs. Gilman W. Smith and Miss Ruth Forbes are hostesses for the evening. The program will be a valentine surprise arranged by the social committee.

The Judge Lynn Chapter, D. A. R., will celebrate the twenty-second anniversary of its organization with a dinner at the University Club this evening. Mrs. Charles C. Haig is regent. Mrs. Bertha M. Robbins, founder of the chapter, will be present. Mrs. J. Milton Jester is in charge of the event, assisted by Mrs. Donald M. Earll, Mrs. Harry R. Fulton, Miss Corita Hunter and Miss Rebecca Reily.

Featuring patriotic talks and a social hour, the Society of Natives, District of Columbia, will assemble Friday evening at 8 o'clock at the Washington Club for the first in a trio of midwinter programs. Among those speaking on American statesmanship will be Mr. James A. Duhamel, Mr. Washington Topham and Mr. Jesse C. Suter, vice chairman of the joint citizens committee on national representation.

The hostesses will be Mrs. William H. Groverman and Mrs. Zell Weaver Oatley, who will be assisted by Miss Margaret E. Forbes, Miss Nan Hungerford and Mrs. John Green Slye. The hosts will be Mrs. Irwin L. Rose, Judge Gus A. Schuldt, Mr. Johann Kondrup and Mr. Jefferson Middleton.

The meeting on March 21 will feature a cantata, and the annual dinner of the society, marking the tenth anniversary, will be held in the ballroom of the Hotel Raleigh on April 25.

Jefferson Davis Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, is holding its regular meeting this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the cabinet room at the Willard.

Mrs. Childress Buckner Gwyn and her daughter, Mrs. Helen Gwyn Harper, and Miss Mary Beatrice Gwyn will give a musicale tomorrow evening in their home on Park road for members of the Independence Bell Chapter, D. A. R., and other guests.

Tea to Honor Debutantes of Present Year

Staff Assistance Classes of Red Cross to Be Host Thursday.

The debutantes of the season and the younger members of the congressional group will be the honor guests at a tea on Thursday given by the staff assistance classes of the American Red Cross for 1927, 1928 and 1929. The tea will be given at the Women's World War Memorial Building and will be of particular interest, as Miss Mabel T. Boardman, national chairman on volunteer service of the American Red Cross, will explain the object of the staff assistance course of lectures. These are given without charge and present a resume of activities of the organization throughout the world.

The group of young women arranging the tea and organizing classes includes Miss Eleanor M. Connolly, chairman; Miss Elise H. Alexander, vice chairman; Miss Lucy Larner, Miss Harriett Whitford, Miss Mildred Tytus, Miss Alice Abadie, Miss Bina Day Deneen, Miss Jane Love, Miss Elizabeth Brawner and Miss Margaret Stringer.

Mrs. John A. Remick, of 300 Marlboro street, Boston, has taken an apartment at the Martinique for the remainder of the winter and spring.

Mrs. Gann Patroness Of Mrs. Keefer's Concert.

Mrs. Edward E. Gann heads the list of patronesses for Mrs. Flora McGill Keeper's concert on April 4 at the Mayflower, which includes also Mrs. James J. Davis, Mrs. Charles Deneen, Mrs. Charles McNary, Mrs. Carl Chindbloom, Mrs. Avery Coonley, Mrs. E. A. Harriman, Mrs. Walter Bruce Howe, Mrs. George Mesta, Mrs. Eugene Meyer, Mrs. Adolph Cappar Miller, Mrs. Lawrence Townsend, Mrs. Charles Warren and other lovers and patrons of music in the Capital.

Mrs. Keefer is popular with many circles in Washington, and has been heard in private recitals both here and in New York in the last two or three years.

Recently Mrs. Keefer was guest artist at thte exclusive Old Colony Club in New York, and following her concert appearance here will be heard in recital in the metropolis.

The Samuel Gorton Chapter, D. A. R., will hold a dance at the Raleigh Hotel Friday evening. Mrs. Anne E. Thrall is chairman of the committee. The Samuel Gorton Chapter is named for one of the outstanding figures in the history of Rhode Island, and is based on the principles for which he stood.

District of Columbia Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, will hold a card party at the Willard on Wednesday in the Willard suite. Mrs. W. E. Hutton is in charge of all arrangements for the entertainment.

Tea to Be Given At Baptist Home.

Commemorating the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the Baptist Home, the board of women managers will give a tea at the home, 3248 N street northwest, on Saturday, from 2 until 6 o'clock.

Under the chairmanship of Miss Rose Kruger, the Junior Hadassah of Washington will hold its eighth annual dance next Sunday evening. Arrangements have been completed and the dance will be given at the City Club.

Mrs. R. B. Whitehurst is serving as chairman of the card party announced by the District of Columbia division of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, which will be given at the Willard Hotel on Wednesday evening. Mrs. Albion W. Tuck, Mrs. N. F. Rabner and Miss C. Blanche Sinclair are chairman of committees completing plans for the party.

Dr. C. C. Taliaferro, jr., of Pittsburgh, and his son, Mr. C. C. Taliaferro 3d, of Plainfield, N. J., are guests at the Willard for several days.

The names of the Acting Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Ernest Lee Jahncke have been added to the list of patrons for the concert to be given by Abraham Haitowitsch, blind Russian violinist, on Monday afternoon, February 24, at the Mayflower.

Other patrons and patronesses are Mrs. Everett Everett Gann, Rear Admiral Joseph Strauss, Mr. A. J. Pack, of the British Embassy; Mrs. Robert Lansing, Mrs. Frederick C. Hicks, Judge and Mrs. W. R. Turner, Mrs. Charles H. Harlow, Mrs. Edward E. Robbins, Mrs. Charles J. Train, Mrs. John McGowan, Mrs. K. V. H. Wylie, Mrs. Percy Hamilton Davis, Mrs. Frank C. Letts, Mrs. Charles J. Bell, Mrs. Henry Wells, Mr. and Mrs. Christian Heurich, Mrs. Arthur Jeffrey Parsons, Miss Anne Squire, Mrs. John J. Esch, Mrs. Frederic Atherton, Mrs. Frank C. Baldwin, Mr. Edward H. Droop, Dr. Davenport White and Mr. Wade H. Cooper.

Representative Florence P. Kahn, of San Francisco, entertained some of the California delegation in Congress and their wives or daughters at breakfast yesterday at the National Woman's Country Club, opened this winter on Bradley boulevard, Bradley Hills, Md. In the company were Representative and Mrs. Clarence Freedrick Lea, of Santa Rosa; Representative and Mrs. Harry Lane Englebright, of Nevada City; Representative and Mrs. Albert E. Carter, of Oakland; Representative and Mrs. Joe Crail and Miss Gladys Crail, of Los Angeles; Representative and Mrs. Henry E. Barbour, of Fresno; Representative and Mrs. Arthur M. Free, of San Jose; Representative and Mrs. William E. Evans, of Glendale; Representative Philip D. Swing, of El Centro; Miss Sarah Welch, of San Francisco; Miss Ruth E. Allen, of Letonia; Mr. and Mrs. James J. Hogan, of Calisto; Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Davis, of Santa Fe; Miss Ruth Fleming, of Donleville, and Charles J. Evans, of Piedmont.

Miss Janet Richards, at her weekly review this morning of the outstanding questions of the hour, will bring up to date the most interesting developments in affairs congressional and international during the last week, including special mention of "The Opium Farce at Geneva—Greed and Hypocrisy in the Saddle;" "Juryless Trials, and Can We Reform the Jury System;" "Riviera and Kemal: The Way of the Dictator Is Hard;" slow progress at the London conference and continued congressional conflict. The talk will be given this morning at 10:45 o'clock in the Masonic Temple, Thirteenth street and New York avenue.

Taxicabs Wrecked in Berlin Strike.

EPISCOPAL FINANCE PROGRAM REVISED

Reorganization Affects All Departments of Church's National Council.

NEW DIVISION CREATED

New York, Feb. 16 (A.P.).—The National Council of the Episcopal Church announced tonight that a reorganization affecting all the departments of the council has become effective.

Under the new plan, the work of the departments of finance, field and publicity will be coordinated under Dr. Lewis B. Franklin, vice president and treasurer of the council, while a new division, to be headed by an official selected later, will coordinate the work of the departments of missions, religious education and social service.

The head of the new division, the announcement said, would not be named until a new presiding bishop of the church has been elected to succeed the late Bishop Anderson. The election will be held at a special meeting of the house of bishops, in Chicago, March 26.

Under the reorganization plan, the department of missions is divided into two autonomous divisions, one of which will promote home missions, the other foreign missions. The announcement said greater efficiency of service and economics would result under the reorganization.

The council also announced that in about a month, the National council, facing a deficit of $895,263, due on pledges, was able, through an appear by Dr. Franklin, to collect all money pledged, despite the depression following the Wall Street collapse.

Dr. Franklin's appeal brought 100.3 per cent response, the announcement said, $10,853 more than was pledged being contributed to the church treasury.

Presence of Mind Saves Doolittles

Former Army Pilot Turns Off Ignition as Plane Crashes at Take-Off.

Mitchel Field, N. Y., Feb. 16 (A.P.).—The presence of mnd and speed of hand that helped make Lieut. James H. Doolittle one of the Army's most successful stunt fliers today saved him and his family from possible injury or death in an airplane crackup.

Lieut. Doolittle, who recently left the Army to enter commercial pursuits at St. Louis, was taking off for that city with his wife and two sons, James and John.

As he taxied across the field and attempted to turn, the wind caught his plane and flipped it over, breaking the wings and propeller and smashing open the gas tank.

But in the brief instant that it took the craft to turn over, Doolittle had reached for the ignition switch and shut it off, thereby preventing the escaped gasoline from igniting.

He and his family were unhurt. He planned to depart with them for St. Louis by train late tonight.

Glider Enthusiast Dies As Craft Crashes on Ice

Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 16 (A.P.).—Edgar F. Siekemeyer, of Muskegon Heights, Mich., died here Saturday night following a glider accident. He was a sophomore engineering student of the University of Michigan.

Siekemeyer was at the controls of a glider being towed by an automobile over the ice of Barton Pond. The glider went into a tail spin and fell 150 feet to the ice. His death is the first among the glider enthusiasts of the local school.

Convict, Who Escaped At Canon City, Caught

Canon City, Colo., Feb. 15 (A.P.) Leo W. McGenty, convict, who escaped from the State Penitentiary here, was apprehended last night and returned to the prison.

Having "hidden out" all day in nearby woods, McGenty ventured onto the highway leading toward Pueblo and walked into the arms of guards searching for him. The convict, sentenced from Denver for robbery, offered no resistance.

Matzenauer Quits Opera in New York

Diva Rejects Contract That Would Place Her in Secondary Roles.

New York, Feb. 16 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Margaret Matzenauer has sung her last role with the Metropolitan Opera Co. The singer, for 19 years one of the leading contralto members of the organization, has refused the contract offered her for next year by Mr. Gatti-Casazza. It is understood she objected to provisions which would have confined her to secondary roles. Her future, she indicated, will be devoted to concert, movietone and radio work.

In 1912 she married the Italian tenor, Edoardo Ferrari-Fontana, by whom she had a daughter, Adrienne, now 17. She divorced him five years later, and in 1921 startled her friends by marrying Floyd Glotzbach, a Del Monte Calif., chauffeur. She divorced him in 1923. In 1926 she filed a petition in bankruptcy, listing liabilities of $48,410 and assets as zero. Mme. Matzenauer is the third of hreet Metropolitan stars who have withdrawn this year. The others were Frances Alda and Amelita Galli-Curci.

Five of Fishing Fleet Lost Off Louisiana Coast

New Orleans, Feb. 16 (A.P.).—Five trawlers and ten fishermen were lost last night off the southeastern Louisiana coast, according to information received here.

The boats, members of a fishing fleet, failed to reach Buras, La., near the river mouth, with the other members of the fleet, because of high winds.

15 Entombed Miners Found Playing Cards

Saint Etienne, Conn., Feb. 16 (A.P.).—Fifteen miners entombed in the pit of the Lorette coal mine since last Thursday were rescued today. All were well and in good spirits.

The men were trapped by a slide which closed a tunnel. The relief party said they found two groups playing cards by lamplight, hungry but cheerful.

EASTERN STAR DANCE GROUP

Old Man Joe Warns That Time Is Short for Contestants to Collect 100,000 Extra Votes for Each $20 Worth of New Subscriptions.

Only three more days remain if you are going to get the 100,000 extra votes for each $20 worth of new subscriptions to The Post in the $20,000 Opportunity Campaign, Old Man Opportunity warned last night.

The first period of the contest ends at 9 o'clock Wednesday night. Contestants who take advantage of the first offer must have the necessary subscriptions in the campaign headquarters at The Post by that time, if they live in Washington, or in the mail if they live outside the capital.

"The contest is young yet," remarked Old Man Opportunity, "and no candidate has so great a lead that he can not be overtaken by a go-getter. Oh, if I only had my youth again!"

Washington and surrounding territory have been divided into eight districts, with prizes alloted to each. Twelve automobiles, ranging from a Cadillac to a Ford and Chevrolet, and sixteen radio receiving sets, are the principal prizes. In addition, there is a large fund for cash commissions, to be paid to those who do not win the big awards.

"All it takes is a little spare time and energy and ambition," commented Old Man Opportunity. "You can't lose, because if you don't get an automobile or a radio you'll get 10 per cent commission on all subscriptions turned in. There's almost a good living in that alone."

Nominations of any candidate on blanks carried in advertisements of the campaign count for 5,000 free votes as a starter. Subscriptions can be taken for three or six months, or a year or more, the number of votes ranging from 5,000 to 60,000 for each. The contest runs until April 5.

NAVY YARD WORKERS ATTACK SUBSTITUTE RETIREMENT ACT

from her husband who died before he retired.

"These forfeitures would result in an unbalanced retirement plan not founded on a basis of equity for both the Government and its employes, but simply secure an easier method of payment of a larger annuity to those in positions considered less hazardous and of minimized physical strain, and create a breakdown of a true retirement plan designed to relieve anxieties and want in old age, and create instead of retirement salaries for some and mere annuities for others."

Another Objection Seen.

Another point raised in the resolution was that the necessity of selecting options on retirement that may result in a very considerable loss to meager estates would be a source of distress of mind to many aged employes approaching retirement age.

Calling attention to the increase in employes' contributions from 2½ per cent to 3½ per cent in 1926, the resolution declared that Representative Lehlbach's latest offering would require additional contributions from employes in the form of forfeitures from their 3½ per cent contribution.

In conclusion, the resolution held that whereas the Congress has held hearings and made studies of costs and agreed almost unanimously to the provisions of the Dale-Lehlbach amendment which has just been passed again by the Senate, the Navy Yard employes therefore petition the civil service committee of the House to make a favorable report of the Dale-Lehlbach bill.

Addresses Are Heard.

The resolution was signed by H. T. LaClair, William H. Smoot, R. M. Carnahan, John H. Jaeschke, Rufus B. Kelso, R. G. Ladd and Charles C. Gillikin. Before adopting the resolution, the employes listened to addresses by Robert H. Alcorn, chairman of the joint conference on retirement; N. P. Alifas, president of District 44 Machinists, composed of all Government machinists; Leo E. George, national president of the National Federation of Post Office Clerks; M. T. Finnan, national secretary of the National Association of Letter Carriers; Frank S. Bennett, national vice president of the Railway Mail Association, and William H. Smoot, president of Columbia Lodge, No. 174, Machinists Union, who presided at the meeting.

Post Bureau to Supply Data on Lehlbach Bill

How will the new Lehlbach retirement bill affect me? What will my retirement annuity be?

Sixty thousand Federal and District employes here and six times that number in the States are asking these questions now.

The Post, in conjunction with the National Federation of Federal Employes, has established an information service which will supply the answers. Queries, however, must be made by mail.

Letters should be addressed to "Retirement Editor, Washington Post, Washington, D. C.," and should contain a self-addressed and stamped envelope.

The employe should give full particulars as to his position, age, length of service and salary.

Automobile Trade Body To Scrap 400,000 Cars

New York, Feb. 16 (A.P.).—The "collegiate flivver" and other wheezing, palsied automobiles of venerable vintage are doomed to the scrap heap.

The National Automobile Chamber of Commerce announced today that the industry would expend $15,000,000 this year in removing unsafe cars from the highways. The plan, indorsed by the chamber's board of directors, involves the scrapping of 400,000 machines in addition to the normal scrapping by the motor companies, and proposes that the manufacturers provide a fund for removing permanently those automobiles that menace the safety of other highway users.

Bullets From Curtained Auto Kill Brooklyn Man

New York, Feb. 16 (A.P.).—Fifteen shotgun slugs, coming from a curtained car in a series of volleys that awakened the neighborhood, ended the life of Casper Scaminacia, 45, early today on a sidewalk close to his home in Brooklyn.

Detectives said they found papers in Scaminacia's home indicating he had been affiliated with a band of gamblers. They arrested Giacomo Napoli, 42, father of five children, in his home in Brooklyn. Napoli, who said he had not seen Scaminacia for four weeks, was charged with homicide.

Killer of Two Children Is Sent to Reformatory

Trenton, N. J., Feb. 16 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Gladys May Parks, convicted recently in Camden, N. J., of second-degree murder and manslaughter for the slaying of her wards, Dorothy and Timothy Rogers, 4 and 2, respectively, and sentenced to a total of 25 years in prison, was transferred yesterday from the State Home for Girls here to the New Jersey State Reformatory for Women at Clinton.

Officials announced she had been found mentally sound.

Ohio Minister Offered Highest Lutheran Post

BETTERMENT IN TRADE IS SLIGHT

Reviews Report Moderate Expansion in Retail Business.

AUTO OUTPUT INCREASES

New York, Feb. 16 (A.P.).—Gradual broadening out of the recovery in trade and industry was reported during the past week, although gains continued irregular and for the most part small.

Of particular interest were the weekly mercantile reviews reporting slight though tangible expansion in both wholesale and retail trade, the first improvement to be noted in several weeks. Wholesalers reported more active buying in anticipation of spring requirements and retail sales were undoubtedly helped by less severe weather over large areas.

Steel mill operations continued to gain slowly, ingot production for the industry reaching an aggregate of about 79 per cent of capacity. The gain, however, was attributed primarily to large purchases of rails and rolling stock by the railways. The decline in steel prices appeared to have been checked and steel scrap prices were firmer.

Commodities' Price Drop Checked.

The rather sharp drops in commodity prices, unsettling factors of the past fortnight, appeared to have been checked, and partial recovery was achieved here and there, notably in grains. The cotton market fluctuated uncertainly, but managed to work a little higher. Inquiry for cotton textiles improved a little, although it was still held in check by uncertainty over the prices of raw material.

The petroleum industry continued to have its difficulties. The reductions of about 25 per cent in crude oil purchasing price posted about a month ago by Standards of New Jersey and New York were finally met by Sinclair and Standard of Indiana, although, as Harry Sinclair explained, "reluctantly."

The next day Prairie and Ohio oils fell into line, and it remaines to be seen how long other companies would continue to pay higher prices than their competitors. The price cuts are acknowledgedly designed to reduce crude production to levels justified by requirements and are regarded in some quarters as constructive, despite widespread ill-feeling which they have caused.

The January copper statistics showed a further gain in stocks, although smaller than that of December, despite somewhat larger shipments and further cutting down of production. This encouraged consumers to defer buying in hope of an eventual reduction in the 18-cents-a-pound price level for the red metal.

Little Change Seen in Prices.

In a review of the general raw material price situation, Standards Statistics Co. saw little indication of a sustained reversal of the price trend during the current year, but while pointing out that the situation does not justify extensive forward purchasing, stated that it is probable that the accumulation of deferred needs and the likelihood of a spring revival of activity warrant some modification of the hand-to-mouth buying practice.

Automobile plants continued to expand output slightly, particularly manufacturers of small cars. Farm implement makers also were active. Manufacturing of radio sets, furniture and cotton goods continued dull, while silk and rayon mills were fairly active. Few visible signs of the expected upturn in building activity were seen, and lumber, brick and tile plants were quiet. Shoe manufacturing was a little more active in the Middle West, but held quiet in the East.

The Boston and Kansas City Federal Reserve Banks joined the New York and Chicago institutions in lowering rediscount rates to 4 per cent. Easing in credit rates to commercial borrowers, however, has been slight so far.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, Feb. 16 (A.P.).—Lumber orders were about 6 per cent less and shipments were about 7 per cent less than production for the week ended February 8, it was indicated in reports from 793 hardwood and softwood mills to the National Lumber Manufacturers Association. These reports gave combined production as 295,862,000 feet, with new business 13 per cent and shipments 11 per cent, respectively, above that figure. A week earlier 827 mills gave production as 258,086,000 feet.

Phenix Hosiery Co. had net income of $321,935 last year, equal to 50 cents a share on the common. Earnings in the preceding year were $371,175, or 58 cents a share.

The Tolhurst Machine Works, of Troy, N. Y., a subsidiary of the General Laundry Machinery Corporation, expects an increase of about $500,000 in 1930 sales over those of 1929, following the introduction of a new machine designed for removing impurities from fine paper.

Benefits totaling $1,008,465 were paid last year to sick and disabled employes and dependents of deceased employes of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation and its subsidiaries, according to the fourth annual report of the company's relief plan.

NEW FINANCING CUT INTO BOND TURNOVER

PRICE TREND UNCERTAIN

New York, Feb. 16 (A.P.).—The bond market has lost most of the impetus given it by the reduction in Federal Reserve discount rates. Trading last week was mixed and the trend uncertain.

Much of the irregularity, however, was due to another heavy block of new financing. Offerings totaled $150,465,000, representing the second largest week of the year and the largest number of separate issues. Considerable attention was drawn to the Morris & Essex Railroad's $25,000,000 issue of 4½s and to Western Union's $35,000,000 loan in 5 per cent gold bonds. These, among other new issues of the week, met with lively inquiry, again illustrating the current taste for high grade bonds at attractive terms.

Opinion is varied as to the immediate future of bond financing. Many loans are awaiting flotation, but some observers hold that they will be withheld as long as possible to give the slow-moving market further opportunity to expand and improve, and to absorb any congestion which may now exist in recent issues which have not been so readily taken. On the other hand, many dealers insist that bonds are not piling up on their shelves and that numerous new issues will soon be forthcoming.

Evidence that the convertible bond has lost little of its appeal is seen in the decision of the Baltimore & Ohio to offer a large loan in this form on a rights basis and in the report that the Rock Island Railroad is planning a $25,000,000 issue of the same description.

Foreign obligations continue to receive attention. The French Republic issues were not so active last week, which had only four and a half trading sessions because of the Lincoln birthday interruption, but held up well. Other prominent Government loans likewise met with support.

Volume of trading tapered off last week and fluctuations in the high grade issues were narrow.

UTILITY STOCKS RISE TO PEAKS FOR WEEK

CREDIT RATES DECLINE

New York, Feb. 16 (A.P.).—A selective bull movement was kept in motion by powerful operators for the advance, despite constant opposition in the stock market during the last week.

Some twoscore leading industrials and utilities and a few rails were bid up to new high levels for the recovery and ended the week with substantial net gains despite considerable profit-taking. These advances, however, were largely offset by declines elsewhere in the list.

The index of 90 leading stocks closed the week practically unchanged, after narrow fluctuations. The index of 20 leading utilities, however, showed a net gain of 8¾ points. The index of 20 rails was off nearly a point, and that of 50 industrials off more than 2 points.

Week-End Proves Reactionary.

The final session of the week saw a substantial reaction, as many traders hurried to take profits in belated response to precautionary advices by several commission houses, which for several days had been uneasy over the technical position of the market.

Bulls shifted their point of attack from group to group as the week progressed, and many observers interpreted the success of their maneuvers as indicating that the market was in strong hands. Others, however, recalled that similar tactics have at various times indicated that distribution was in progress. Trading, however, held to moderate proportions, the daily turnover for full sessions averaging less than 3,500,000 shares.

Credit conditions continued to ease gradually. For two days of the week call money was available at 4 per cent all day. The rate was stepped up to 4¼ Friday afternoon, as funds were withdrawn to meet mid-month disbursements. The Boston and Kansas City Federal Reserve Banks joined the New York and Chicago institutions in reducing their rediscount rates to 4 per cent.

Brokers' Loans Up $48,000,000.

The weekly brokerage loan figures showed an increase of $48,000,000, on top of the previous week's upturn of $57,000,000, but traders paid little attention to the loan figures, pointing out that stocks prices had already rallied out of all proportion to the gain in loans, indicating a large measure of cash buying.

Foreign exchanges generally sagged, although with the exception of the Spanish peseta, which broke sharply, movements were narrow. The peseta was influenced by the uncertain political situation in Spain. Sterling and French francs sagged to new low levels for the year. It was reported that Europeans were again investing in stocks in this market, and the transfer of funds to New York for that purpose appeared to be depressing the exchange rates.

Elk Point, S. Dak., Feb. 15 (A.P.).—Seven persons, six of them women, were injured here last night when the floor in the lobby of the Florence Theater gave way beneath the weight of scores of persons waiting to see the second show. None of the injuries was believed to be serious.

Those injured are Mrs. Earl Stewart, ankle crushed; Mrs. Louis Beaubeln leg cut; Mrs. George Pierson, nose broken, head injured and ankle broken; a Mrs. Easton, leg bruised; Rosella Collins, leg cut; Mrs. William Smith, leg injuries, and John Anderson, injuries to legs.

Strike Is Threatened By Spanish Students

Barcelona, Spain, Feb. 16 (A.P.).—Students at the university here today threatened to declare a general strike tomorrow unless the Berenguer government accepts their demand for the resignation of the civil governor of Catalonia, Milans Del Bosch.

They oppose the governor because of his opposition to the rector of the university. It has been reported that the rector may go to Madrid to offer his resignation. Some of the students refused to attend classes on Saturday.

ARMIES IN THE DARK.

Politicians of both parties are making a sorry mess of it in trying to make capital out of the liquor controversy. Every Republican setback is balanced by a Democratic split somewhere. The prohibition question cuts through both parties and makes it impossible for either to be wholly dry or wholly wet. Mr. Hughes during the last campaign insisted that prohibition was not an issue, while Mr. Borah said it was the leading issue. Mr. Beck declares that the Republican party can not survive half wet and half dry, but he could have applied the remark with equal truth to the Democratic party. Yet both parties are surviving.

If the majority of the people are now in favor of a change in the liquor situation, and if they regard this question as more important than any other, the only practical course for them to pursue is to leave the Republican and Democratic parties and organize a party of their own. Neither the drys nor the wets can swing either party to their way of thinking.

Enthusiastic wets are looking forward to a national convention, in which they hope to evolve a modification plan that will command their united support. This convention, if it is ever held, will probably be the most discordant and futile gathering in the history of American politics. The Madison Square convention of the Democratic party in 1924 holds the present record for discord and futility, but a wet convention in 1930 would easily surpass it. The more numerous the delegates the more numerous would be the proposals for evading the eighteenth amendment.

The probable truth is that the majority of the people do not favor repeal of the eighteenth amendment. Until this majority develops it does not seem likely that a new party will appear, because there is no proposal short of repeal upon which the dissenters can unite. In the meantime wet and dry Democrats and wet and dry Republicans will stick to their party, searching for some means for putting the opposition in a hole on the liquor question.

On economic questions, including tariff revision, the two parties are as badly split as upon prohibition. If the tariff bill should become a law it will be with the aid of Democrats, although it bears a Republican label. Democrats will not find much material in such a situation with which to make a campaign issue, either in 1930 or 1932. They need not expect to make gains in the East, which has been denied the protection it demands. They have tried to give protection to some Southern industries, but in doing so they have contributed to the enactment of a Republican administration bill. Insurgent Republicans will not be quick to urge Western voters to vote for Democrats as evidence of gratitude for increased agricultural duties. If any credit is to be claimed in the West the insurgents will claim it, and they are Republicans when running for office.

Nothing is to be gained by either party in killing the tariff bill. Both parties pledged themselves to maintain prosperity by judicious tariff revision that would prevent ruinous foreign competition. If Congress should fail to do this the blame will fall upon both parties. Neither can enact the bill alone, but neither can afford to be responsible for killing it. Tariff revision has cut through the parties and made them half up and half down, as prohibition has made them half wet and half dry.

During these times of political confusion every incident is magnified under a microscope in the hope of discovering some indication of what is to come. No reliable omens are discoverable. The two old battle-scarred parties are approaching another campaign like armies marching in the dark. Neither has any strategic plan, but each knows that it has the same old enemy to face, and not a new army inspired by a new issue.

LIMITATION OF CROPS.

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's address on what New York State is doing to improve agricultural conditions serves as a reminder that the Federal Government is not the only political unit dealing with this problem. Many of the States are trying to solve their agricultural problems in their own way. To what extent are the Federal and State programs in conflict?

Gov. Roosevelt considers the farm problem social as well as economic. One objective on which he lays great stress is the improvement of social life, health and educational opportunities in rural communities, so that farm life will not be less attractive than city life. The time has come, he says, to halt the migration from farm to city. In fact, he looks for "a swing of the pendulum in the other direction." How many other States are trying to keep their population on the farm?

This policy is in contrast with the program of the Federal Farm Board, which is centering about limitation of production. Urgent pleas are being made for a reduction of the acreage planted to wheat, cotton, and other staple crops. The mechanization of farms, now making progress, means that fewer people will be needed to produce adequate crops. The Department of Agriculture is trying to convince farmers that they should no longer cultivate marginal land. If this purpose is accomplished the agricultural population will again be diminished.

Efforts to improve economic and social conditions on the farm are commendable, but it is doubtful that they will check the reduction of farm population. Overproduction is driving farmers out of business. Thus far they have been unable to agree upon any general plan for limitation. They are like the great naval powers—each favors limitation by somebody else.

BICENTENNIAL DIRECTORS.

The George Washington Bicentennial Commission has appointed Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d and Representative Sol Bloom, of New York, as directors of the celebration which is to make the year 1932 notable for national and world-wide homage to the memory of George Washington. Col. Grant and Mr. Bloom will cooperate, each within his sphere of authority, in devising and executing ceremonies and festivals in honor of Washington, and in pushing forward such permanent memorials as may be approved by the bicentennial commission.

Some time has been lost by the commission because of the lack of a medium through which to concentrate upon and direct the plans for the bicentennial. Col Grant and Mr. Bloom are admirably qualified for the duties that will fall upon them as executive directors. Both have had experience in organizing and directing impressive public ceremonies in which they demonstrated qualities of imagination and executive ability. Col. Grant's planning and management of the Hoover inauguration ceremonies, the reception to Col. Lindbergh, and the direction of the National Capital's magnificent park development have given him valuable experience. Mr. Bloom made his mark as an impresario at the Chicago World's Fair and in many subsequent enterprises. Both are public-spirited and energetic men who can be depended upon to devote their best services to the cause of the bicentennial.

The bicentennial commission owes it to the two directors to give them full authority and loyal support, besides providing them with sufficient funds to enable them to make the year 1932 forever memorable for its expression of the Nation's homage to its founder. An inspiring opportunity is given to Col. Grant and Representative Bloom in acting in behalf of the American people, who are anxious to give noble and unprecedented honors to Washington.

A FANTASTIC LEAGUE SCHEME.

The United States has refused to participate in the international conference sponsored by the League of Nations in the interest of tariff limitations. This attempt to bring about a holiday in tariff making chiefly concerns Europe, but it is not without interest in this country.

The experiment is worthy of note because it is the first step in the idealistic scheme to create a United States of Europe. M. Briand and others who cherish this fanciful dream plan to wipe out economic barriers before attempting political unity. To begin with, the right of each country to revise its tariff must be surrendered for a definite period. If that part of the experiment should chance to work out satisfactorily, the next step would be, no doubt, to lower the tariff walls of every country The imagination need not be stretched further than that.

Americans will have no place at this conference table because the United States tariff is levied by Congress. Tariff-making by treaty is not favored by Congress. Duties are levied for the protection of domestic industry, agriculture and labor. The degree of protection needed is a domestic and not an international issue.

The League of Nations is sponsoring a fantastic step toward economic internationalism at a time when the nations are finding it necessary to revise their tariffs upward.

THE NAVY PROMOTES PEACE.

So much is being said in connection with the naval conference on the subject of national security that it is interesting to find Admiral W. L. Rodgers giving attention to the background on which American security is based. In his address at the New York Civic Forum he refers to history to show that this country has defended its policies as well as its territory, and points out the urgent need for a continuation of that practice.

Admiral Rodgers refers to the "three great principles of our foreign policy" as equal opportunity with other nations in foreign markets, support of United States business and business men overseas, and the Monroe Doctrine that the Americas are not to be controlled by transoceanic powers. Maintenance of these principles as well as protection of American territory calls for an adequate Navy. The United States has become the greatest commercial power in the world. This country has no intention of encroaching upon the commercial rights of any other nation, but is nevertheless engaged in intensive trade competition with the rest of the world. The problem is: How can America hold and extend its trade while promoting the peace of the world?

"No one of the nations leading in manufactures and commerce," observes Admiral Rodgers, "is yet prepared to lay down its economic competition, and thereby gain additional security through prospective poverty and reduction of its standards of living. On the contrary, nations prefer the risks of war involved in international economic competition rather than an endeavor to increase the prospects of peace through the renunciation of trade." He considers one other means of security—international law—and concludes that it does not afford the desired protection, because there is no means of enforcing international law except through war.

The only alternative is to maintain a Navy adequate to insure the safety of American territory and policy. "It is our national duty," Admiral Rodgers says, "to hold right views as to peace and order in the world, but it is equally imperative to be able to maintain them, and it would be despicable in our great and powerful country to put itself in a defenseless position in which others could impose their standards of right upon us."

When its enormous trade and its great internal wealth are considered, failure of the United States to maintain a Navy adequate for protection might be considered provocative of war. Weakness of the United States in this respect would be an international crime. Peace can best be obtained through security, which only an adequate Navy can give.

SENSELESS SPEED TRIALS.

Sometime next month Kaye Don will attempt to wrest the world's speed record from Maj. H. O. D. Segrave, who in March, 1929, set an all-time record of 231.36 miles per hour at Daytona Beach. March will mark the twenty-seventh anniversary of these speed trials. Don, with the official sanction of the A. A. A., will pilot the Silver Bullet, which he hopes will prove to be the fastest automobile in the world. Louis Coatalen designed the 4,000-horsepower vehicle. The bullet-like body is two and one-half feet wide and its total height is three and one-half feet. It clears the ground at seven and one-quarter inches and has a wheelbase of fifteen feet. The car will be driven by two aircraft, supercharged, twelve cylinder engines, through two propeller shafts, each shaft driving one of the rear wheels. Don hopes to attain a speed of 250 miles per hour.

Shortly after Maj. Segrave set the world's speed record last March, Lee Bible tried to better it and was killed in the attempt. Demonstrations of this nature are senseless. The bullet-like machines can be used only for racing; they have no practical use. This so-called sport should be discouraged.

COLOMBIA'S PRESIDENT-ELECT.

The election of Enrique Olaya Herrera to be President of Colombia is an assurance that the progress of that republic will be fostered by a competent hand. Few envoys from Latin America have made a deeper impression in Washington than Minister Olaya Herrera, and none of them stands higher in the esteem and confidence of the American Government.

Whatever domestic questions may be dominant during the administration of President-elect Olaya Herrera, it is to be presumed that they will be met with the same tact, patience and ability that have been exercised by Minister Olaya in handling his government's affairs during his service in Washington. As for the foreign relations of Colombia, that country is fortunate in having for chief magistrate an experienced diplomat whose wide acquaintance gives him exceptional opportunities for promoting friendship with all its neighbors.

Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, said he wasn't personally interested in the cornstarch schedule because the people in his State don't make cornstarch. What do they make out of corn?

G. Hawtrey, assistant secretary of the British treasury, says speculation caused the Wall street collapse. By jove, the lad's clever—what?

THE SEA SERVICE BUREAU

By C. W. SANDERS,
In Charge of Sea Service Bureau, Shipping Board.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: An editorial in The Post asserts that the Sea Service Bureau of the Shipping Board duplicates the work of the United States shipping commissioners and asks why the bureau should not be abolished.

First of all, let it be said that there is no duplication of effort in the work of the bureau and the work of the shipping commissioners. The bureau procures, examines and certifies (but does not employ) the men who man our ships. Shipping commissioners, on the other hand, do the actual "signing on" of the men, but do not procure or examine them. At no point is there any conflict or overlapping of the two activities. One may therefore be pardoned for wondering why th erroneous statement is made that the bureau duplicates the work performed by the commissioners.

In this work the bureau neither gives preference to nor discriminates against seamen who belong to labor organizations; and because it refuses to be beguiled from this attitude of strict impartiality, it has incurred strong antagonisms. Let us look for a moment at some of the work the bureau is doing to further the development of the American Merchant Marine.

The Sea Service Bureau certifies a yearly total of approximately 60,000 men in the various ratings of the deck, engine and steward's department of American ships. In procuring, examining and certifying these thousands of men, the bureau makes every effort to weed out those with bad records, thus enabling the shipping commissioners to sign on efficient crews. The benefit of all this to the American ship operator is obvious. But the weeding out process has for years been a thorn in the side of the interests which are now raising the cry of "duplication of work."

The Sea Service Bureau, acting in cooperation with the United States Public Health Service, makes a physical examination of all seamen applying for appointment. In some of the larger ports of the United States the bureau has its own medical examiners. The examinations assure an able-bodied personnel, at the same time going far to safeguard the shipowner or operator from fake damage claims.

The medical work tends to protect the sea personnel from the evil effects of close daily association with sufferers from noxious disease.

Another important activity of the Sea Service Bureau is its work for the Americanization of crews on vessels of our merchant marine. Before the Sea Service Bureau was established the number of Americans serving in the crews of American ships formed less than 10 per cent of the total. The records show that today 64 3-10 per cent of the crews are American citizens and that a large number of the others have declared their intention of acquiring citizenship. The Sea Service Bureau is the only Federal agency engaged in this most important work of manning American ships with American citizens.

NEW USES FOR COTTON.

If the world ever goes in extensively for lighter-than-air craft, a new use for the South's cotton will have been discovered which will offset much of the loss occasioned by the abandonment of the staple as the basis of the fabric used in making women's clothes. In Memphis a few days ago there was a display of cotton uses and aviation's requirements were well presented, according to the Houston Post Dispatch.

In the making of a dirigible, thousands of square yards of cotton goods are utilized. The Graf Zeppelin which flew around the world had a great covering made of cotton fabric. Were Zeppelins to become common in this country, their manufacture would bring an important new outlet for this great crop of the South. Cotton is also being used now in making airplane propellers. Not a great deal is used in each blade, but as planes multiply the requirements of cotton for parts about them will increase. It is well known, of course, that cotton is entering into the manufacture of motor cars and tires.

Readjustment in the consumptive channels of cotton is under way. There is no more important phase of the cotton problem today than that of finding new uses for the material, and progress is being made in that direction.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE COST.

They wanted only happiness,
They had my heart for care,
They tried in vain to miss the pain
All mortals have to bear.
And so they never had a child,
And gave this reason why,
They feared too much grief's cruel touch
If one they loved should die.

They thought they could select from life
Its easy joys to gain
And spend their years, secure from tears
And all the stings of pain.
And so they gave to trivial joys
Their hearts and minds, until
Their courage failed and pleasure staled,
As pleasure must and will.

And all they grasped time took away
And all they kept they lost,
For happiness, grows less and less
For them who count its cost.
And who would know the joy of life
The risk of grief must brave,
Men pay with pain for all they gain
And weep their smiles to save.

"How Brilliant I Am," Said the Dog, "to Keep Ahead of This Can on My Tail."

By ROBERT QUILLEN

The civilization they have created has enslaved them.

Consider the matter of haste.

It is not man's nature to hurry, and those who are free to set their own pace commonly move in leisurely fashion as the cattle do.

Left free to exercise his choice and his common sense, the modern would enjoy the leisure made possible by the invention of machines that multiply his productivity and quicken transportation.

But the whir and crash of fast machines quicken his pulse and excite him, as fast music does, and thus the tempo of his life is quickened without his consent or approval.

If all men would consent to the slower pace earned and justified by the harnessing of power, it could be established without financial hurt to any and with benefit to the health of all.

But the lash of competition keeps us all straining to the limit of endurance, and thus each slave of the system sets a faster pace for his brother and in so doing dooms himself to keep the pace or go under.

It is the tempo of modernism that denies us opportunity to meditate or measure values.

We live in the present moment, as a racer does.

We are dominated by our civilization, as a workman is by a giant machine he feeds.

And as the man and his machine are a unit, shut off from the world, so we become absorbed in our civilization and lose our sense of values.

A man far from machines and machine products is awed by the stillness and the majesty of a mountain and a realization of his own insignificance makes him a religionist or a philosopher.

But the modern, moving with frantic haste among machines and giant buildings made by men, is filled with a sense of his own importance.

"How wonderful men are!" he cries, as he gazes at a skyscraper.

"How swiftly we moderns move!" he thinks, as hard necessity spurs him on to get bread.

It is the oldest of human follies—making a virtue of necessity.

He is the helpless, harassed and harried slave of his environment, but vanity prompts him to find some compensation in his sorry plight and he boasts of his hurried pace!

Imagine a slave chained to a chariot wheel boasting of the pace he must keep to save his neck!

Little intelligence is required to make the ox step faster if the treadmill is geared higher to set a faster pace.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

IF BABE RUTH QUITS BASEBALL.

Ruth—What's that?

Mrs. Ruth—Another dividend. That makes more than $2,500 we've got on our investments this month. Lovely, isn't it?

Mrs. Ruth—Who?

Ruth—The Yanks.

Mrs. Ruth—I haven't the slightest idea. Are you still thinking about baseball? I thought you were a retired business man.

Ruth—Well, I am, but I think about the old game once in a while.

(The phone rings. Mrs. Ruth answers it.)

Ruth (after she hangs up)—Who was that, honey?

Mrs. Ruth—That was Mr. Glootz, the broker. He says you've made $10,000 on that steel stock and he's sending you a check. Great, isn't it?

Ruth—Who's pitching?

Mrs. Ruth—I say he's sending a check for $10,000. Isn't it nice?

Ruth—I'll bet they've got some bum playing right field.

Mrs. Ruth—Do get your mind off baseball, dear. Here's a letter for you.

Ruth—Read it.

Mrs. Ruth—It's the contract from the circus people. They want to sign you up for $50,000 a year just to appear with the show a few minutes twice a day. How wonderful!

Ruth—The trouble is there's no team work.

Mrs. Ruth—In the circus?

Ruth—With the Yanks, I mean. They should have won them last two games.

Mrs. Ruth—You promised me you wouldn't think any more about the Yanks after you retired.

Ruth—I'm not thinking about them. They're off my mind entirely.

Mrs. Ruth—You mustn't give them a thought.

Mrs. Ruth—That's the spirit!

Ruth—But they shouldn't be dropping games the way they are. They should murder that kind of pitching. Why, in the eighth inning——

Mrs. Ruth—Please, Babe, you're out of baseball and money is rolling in from other sources and we're very comfortable. Aren't you happy?

Ruth—Of course I'm happy.

Mrs. Ruth—That's fine.

Ruth—But they're not socking the old pill.

Mrs. Ruth (exasperated)—Dear, why must you go on talking about baseball? Anybody would think you were sorry you had quit the game and would give anything to be back with the Yankees.

To diminish the time between bites is the Hoover doctrine of recreati n for all the fishermen in the country, according to the New York Herald Tribune. It is pleasant to hear that the President is to resume his interrupted sport in Florida waters, taking his first days of real vacation since he entered the White House.

Angling seems to be establishing a tradition as a presidential pastime. Grover Cleveland practiced the art with such devotion and skill that a successor of his marked aptitude and accomplishment would not have been a likely forecast. Calvin Coolidge, however, when he took up the sport in methodical earnest during his summer on the Brule became an able initiate in the fraternity of rod and reel. And Herbert Hoover has long been a member and an expert of that clan.

President Hoover can whip a stream with the best. Students of form applaud his casting style and his precision in playing the hooked trout. His versatility is unusual, for the most enthusiastic anglers are commonly specialists of either inland or deep-sea fishing. Mr. Hoover is equally at home casting the fly on the Rapidan or trolling in the Gulf Stream. Last winter he tried for sailfish at Long Key; he was first on the fishing ground in the morning and last to leave.

It takes an accomplished angler to capture a sailfish with the light tackle that is de rigueur in that exciting sport. Mr. Hoover caught one weighing 53 pounds, which ranked twentieth in a list of 78 among last winter's important sailfish catches at the Long Key fishing camp. If all-American fishing teams were in fashion, Mr. Hoover's eligibility would have to be seriously weighed. The best of fisherman's luck to the President on his Florida holiday!

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

To the Editor of The Post.—Sir: There are many queer things in the world today.

1. We have wets calling the drys fanatics and these same people never think it possible that there may be wet fanatics.

2. According to the Senate method of allowing a member of that body to take his seat, one must first be elected by the people and then also by the Senate.

3. It takes the Senate longer now to pass a tariff bill than it took our forefathers to frame the Constitution of the United States.

4. A gold brick was handed the farmers outright when the Farm Board was proposed and adopted as a farm relief measure for the farmers, and the same can be said of the tariff bill now being considered, unless tht debenture plan is adopted.

5. It might be to the interest of our people to pay congressmen, especially the Senate, piece legislation instead of a salary as it is now—say $1 for each beneficial law enacted, and then charge them $1,000 each for every bad law, the people at the polls to be the judge of the laws so enacted.

6. It appears to a fellow outside that there should be 100 or more compressed air motors installed on the outside of the Senate chamber to pump cold air in the halls of Congress to free that place of "hot air" that has been emanating from the Senate since last June.

FARMER OF VIRGINIA.

Democrat Castigates Senate Minority for Its Attack on Supreme Court.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It will be a sad day for the people of this country if and when the appointment of members to the United States Supreme Court is based upon the merits of the appointee as measured and weighed by the 26 senators who voted against the confirmation of Chief Justice Hughes.

Most of the arguments presented by these senators in opposition to confirmation are of a nature which would furnish amusement to even the high school student of today. To those of us who have passed beyond that stage of life the spectacle, while humorous for the immediate present, reminds us that if the attitude expressed by these senators should become the opinion of the majority, we may yet reach the stage when Russia will be refusing to recognize this Government.

One of the consoling features of the spectacle is the possibility that the tactics of these agitators may be made an issue at the polls. If this is done and all the facts are presented, many of them should soon be in the "lame duck" procession, thus eliminating the possibility of the American people having to witness again what has just been enacted. A DEMOCRAT.

Female Drunkenness Said to Be Increasing in England.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I noted a little while ago in the press that Mrs. Charles Sabin, of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, proposed that we emulate England in regard to the drink question.

I noticed in a report before the royal commission to investigate the liquor problem in England the following:

"We are told that drunkenness among women is increasing. There are quite a number of old ladies who take a glass of beer or a little gin on an empty stomach and have a great deal of difficulty in getting home. They have to be taken out very often because they lie down on the tram lines."

On the whole, the 72 per cent decrease in female arrests for drunkenness in Boston seems to the writer more worthy of emulation.

McGuffey's Blows at Mars.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Having spent some time this winter in reading the famous McGuffey readers, I am impressed at the efforts of the great author to dethrone Mars. I have sets and broken sets of these readers dating back into the forties and extending to the latest in seventy-nine.

In some single volumes he uses about half a dozen selections to accomplish his purpose. He makes a small boy apply the yardstick to Alexander the Great. When the boy is through with his work that bloody butcher stands forth as a puny pygmy. The curiosity of another boy is carried up to a point where he can find no other label to put on war but wholesale murder. In the Battle of Blenheim old Kaspar finds it impossible to explain to the boy and girl who find the soldier's skull "what they killed each other for."

Surely we see in the great peace movement of this day some fruitage of the great McGuffey's work.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: If in the face of honest trial the prohibition law should in time prove a mistake, there is a way in which that mistake can be remedied, but that way is not to be found in evasion or legal fiction. The prohibition law was honestly passed and can only be displaced by methods equally honest.

Above-board efforts for repeal, sincerely engaged in, are respected for their sincerity. But so long as prohibition is the policy of America, loyalty is the policy of every right thinking American. GORDON BARNES.

TARDIEU MAY AGREE TO BREAK WITH REDS

MYSTERY SHIP RECALLED

Paris, Feb. 16 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Premier Tardieu is not likely to oppose a rupture of diplomatic relations with the Soviet government should this be demanded by Parliament as the result of the alleged terrorist activities of Soviet agents in France and French colonies, it is believed in well-informed circles here.

Several deputies have already served notice that they will bring up the alleged kidnaping on January 26 of Gen. Koutiepoff, leader of Russian royalist military organizations in France, whose disappearance has caused such excitement in Paris.

The deputies are expected to urge an immediate break with the Soviet government on the grounds of the Koutiepoff affair and also because of the Yenbay rebellion in Indo-China, which it is generally believed was stirred up by Bolshevik agents.

It is understood that Premier Tardieu will not take the initiative in the rupture, but in view of the growing hostility to the Soviets he is ready to consider the possibility.

Detectives are impressed by the testimony of men who saw a gray limousine similar to that in which the general is supposed to have been captured, speeding toward Trouville on the afternoon of January 26.

On that same afternoon, according to members of the coast guard, a mysterious ship was seen standing off Courseulles, near Trouville, sounding its fog horn as if signaling.

To Soviet ships are known to have put out from Havre on the same day and naval experts say it would be easy for conspirators to have taken the general out to such a ship in a motorboat or fishing smack. The larger vessel could then make for Russia unhindered.

23 Nations Work For Tariff Truce

Representatives to Meet Today in Effort to Keep Present Duties.

Geneva, Feb. 16 (A.P.).—A formidable concerted attack on "obstacles to trade" will begin here tomorrow when representatives of 23 national governments meet to seek an agreement for a tariff truce.

This diplomatic conference has arisen from the growing realization of Europe's acute economic disorganization. It was called for by the League of Nations assembly last September when that body envisaged "the establishment, if necessary, of a program of subsequent negotiations" for tariff reductions. The immediate aim of the conference is to engage nations not to raise present customs duties during a stated period—perhaps two or three years—and not to create in this period any new duties.

The United States declined to participate in the conference but will be represented by Observer Edwin C. Wilson, first secretary of the Paris Embassy, who attends "with a view to obtaining information regarding the development of the conference."

YOUR INCOME TAX

NO. 15.

The vast majority of taxpayers are salaried persons, and entitled, therefore, to a 25 per cent credit on their earned net income. Correctly to compute this credit, the taxpayer first must compute the amount of tax which would be payable without the earned-income credit, and from this amount 25 per cent is to be deducted, the balance being the amount of tax due.

Earned income is defined as "wages, salaries, professional fees and other amounts received as compensation for personal services actually rendered." However, all net income up to $5,000, whether actually earned or not, is considered earned income for the purpose of this credit.

A taxpayer may have received in 1929 a salary of $3,500 and from a real estate transaction a net profit of $1,500. Nevertheless, the entire $5,000 is considered as earned income.

| Net income | $5,000.00 |
| Less personal exemption | 1,500.00 |
| Balance taxable at one-half of 1 per cent | 3,500.00 |
| One-half of 1 per cent | 17.50 |
| Less 25 per cent of $17.50, earned-income credit | 4.38 |
| Balance of tax payable | 12.12 |

They Call It Politics

By CARTER FIELD

HOUSTON, Tex., Feb. 16.—The same desperate effort to get the Hoovercrats back in the Democratic fold as voters, but at the same time prevent their obtaining any of the State offices, which has caused a schism over Tom Heflin in Alabama, is going on here. Tom B. Love, old McAdoo lieutenant, former national committeeman, and confrere of Daniel C. Roper, Senator Simmons and other last-ditch anti-Smith Southern leaders, now wants to be governor.

But the State Democratic committee has held that no one can run for office in the Democratic primary who did not support the national head of the ticket in 1928. Then along came Attorney General Robert Lee Bobbitt and held that the Democratic party had no legal right to deny any one a right to run in its primary.

"Provided, no person shall ever be denied the right to participate in a primary by reason of former political views or affiliation, or by reason of membership or nonmembership in organizations other than political parties."

THIS last line, Mr. Bobbitt explained, was put in because of the Klan. This law was rushed through the Legislature in 1927, when there was no thought of the complications that the Al Smith candidacy might produce. Its immediate motive at that time was that many of the "regulars" had bolted Ma Ferguson, Dr. George C. Butte having run as an independent and having polled more than 300,000 votes.

The regulars, having bolted, did not like the idea of the majority, who had supported Ma Ferguson, reading them out of the party or denying them the right to fight in the next primary, so they hurriedly amended the law.

"Does this law, in your opinion, actually give a former bolter the right to be a candidate in the Democratic primary, or does it merely insure his right to vote in that primary?" I asked the attorney general.

"It seems to me the word 'participate' is pretty broad," said Mr. Bobbitt. "I do not see how that could be construed to prevent Mr. Love or any one else being a candidate in the primary, any more than it could be construed to prevent his voting in that primary. But look here, if you are going to print anything about this situation, don't forget that I am a regular. I am always regular. I was not for the nomination of Al Smith, but as soon as he was nominated he became my candidate. But the law is the law, and I do not see how I could hold otherwise."

• • • •

MEANWHILE the Regulars, much disturbed at the attorney general's ruling, are trying to figure out some candidate on whom they can all agree, but who would also have enough strength to beat Love.

"You see these blamed Hoovercrats are in the majority," said one leader in making an estimate.

"But they only were in the majority when they had the Republicans voting with them," retorted a colleague, more sanguine about beating Love and incidentally the old McAdoo faction of the party which was so strong in 1924 at Madison Square Garden.

"Well, it was Democrats and not Republicans who gave Hoover his 26,000 majority in Texas," retorted the first speaker, "even if we did elect 17 out of the 18 members of the House at the same time."

Incidentally Tom Love led the bolt for Dr. Butte, and was one of those anxious for the passage of the very law which now protects him under the attorney general's ruling. Also, as in the Heflin case, the real motive behind those fighting him is not because he was for Hoover as against the regular party nominee, but because of other reasons for wishing to eliminate him from the State's political set-up.

APPARENTLY, however, they will have to do this eliminating in the Democratic primary, if they are going to do it at all, Texas having invoked the law to control her Democratic primaries back in days when other problems seemed to make it necessary. In Alabama there is no such control by law over the Democratic primary, the State committee being the supreme power so far as the party is concerned.

The situation reminds observers of that which existed back years ago in Nebraska, and which still holds, though with two radical senators now there is no longer any paradox about it. In those days the regulars could control most things to suit themselves, but they could not decide who should represent them on the Republican national committee. By law that had to be decided in a primary in which any one who wished could vote.

Jefferson Celebration Approved by Hoover

New York, Feb. 16 (A.P.).—The Thomas Jefferson Memorial Foundation today announced receipt of a letter from President Hoover approving its suggestion that next April 13, Thomas Jefferson's birthday, be "specially marked by proper celebration of the founding of religious freedom."

In a letter to Felix M. Warburg, of New York, member of the board of governors of the foundation, Mr. Hoover said he believed it desirable that the board of governors of the foundation make arrangements for the celebration. On the board of governors are former President Calvin Coolidge, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University; Patrick Cardinal Hayes, archbishop of New York; Lady Astor and others.

Three Die, Two Are Hurt When Train Strikes Auto

Donalsville, Ga., Feb. 16 (A.P.).—Three persons were killed and two seriously injured today when an eastbound Atlantic Coast Line Railroad train struck a touring car at the grade crossing at Jakin, 7 miles west of here. The victims were residents of Jakin Community.

The dead: S. D. Zorn, 35; Mrs. S. D. Zorn, 32; Emmett Zorn, 14. The injured: Dixie Zorn, 12; Barney Justice, 33. Emmett Zorn was driving the automobile. When he reached the crossing at the Jakin Depot he saw the train approaching and turned the car toward the train, hoping to escape. The locomotive struck the automobile with full force, picking up the car and hurling it and its occupants into a box car standing on a nearby side track.

SOVIET DENOUNCED BY BISHOP MANNING

MORE CHURCHES CLOSED

New York, Feb. 16 (A.P.).—Bishop William T. Manning, of the Episcopal Diocese of New York, from the pulpit of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, today denounced the Soviet government as "seeking by propaganda and by force to destroy religion and to destroy also those moral ideals which religion has given to the world."

"Its attacks are directed," he said, "not against those of any one faith, but against all who believe in God."

Bishop Manning spoke in response to the appeal of Pope Pius for international and interdenominational union in prayers on behalf of "those suffering persecution and their oppressors."

Moscow, Feb. 16 (A.P.).—Despite the clamor of protests abroad against the closing of churches in Russia, Soviet authorities in various parts of the country today ordered conversion of a score or more additional churches, synagogues and mosques into workers' clubs, schools, grain warehouses and workshops.

This action was taken, officials declared, "in response to the massed demands of the workers." In most cases church bells were removed and converted into metal for industrial purposes.

In a number of towns the municipal councils, following the Moscow government's recent action, have forbidden the ringing of church bells. A total of eleven churches were abolished in the Serpukhoff district alone, while three additional churches in the Tarussky district soon will be closed.

Three Children Die In Log Cabin Fire

Father Fails in a Heroic Attempt to Save Boys From Flames.

De Soto, Mo., Feb. 16 (A.P.).—Three children were burned to death last night when fire destroyed a two-story log house in which they resided with their parents on a farm 6 miles southeast of DeSoto.

They were Gerald, 14; Vernon, 9, and Roy, 7, sons of Mr. and Mrs. William McFarland.

The fire was believed to have been caused by a defective flue. All three children slept in two upstairs rooms. Their parents were awakened by smoke about 10 p. m. They discovered the house afire and found the single stairway leading to the upstairs rooms cut off by smoke and flames.

McFarland tried frantically to scale the outside wall and to cut a hole in the ceiling, but the building was quickly enveloped in flames and the children, apparently suffocated in their beds, were burned. Their charred bodies were recovered this morning from the embers of the dwelling which burned to the ground.

COOK COUNTY PLANS TO PAY OFF IN SCRIP

CHICAGO STILL HOPES

Chicago, Feb. 16 (A.P.).—Chicago and Cook County entered another week of financial chess today with the county resolved to pay its employes in scrip and bankers and merchants determined not to accept it.

Emmett Whealan, acting president of the county board, said today the 4,000 county workers will receive tax anticipation warrants of small denomination Monday or Tuesday in lieu of their salaries from December 15. He expressed confidence in many store owners taking the certificates at face value in spite of the popular prediction the employes will not be able to cash or bank them or trade them for food or clothing.

Despairing of immediate help from the citizens relief committee, the county board voted to issue $1,339,658 in tax anticipation warrants to meet the long overdue payroll at an emergency meeting yesterday.

Heads of numerous retail stores united last night, however, in declaring they will not accept the scrip as payment on accounts or in exchange for goods. The action was identical with that of the Cook County Bankers Association, which recently advised its members not to cash or make loans on the warrants.

Meanwhile Chicago looked forward with tempered optimism to a second meeting this week of city administration representatives and members of the citizens relief committee.

MOTHERS' HOPES

What Chance Have They if Real Music Must Be Sacrificed to Machine-made Sound?

Today change—speed—unrest work to thwart her longing for contentment. . . . The ruthless spirit of the Machine Age threatens to crowd out all humanizing culture. . . . Men and women whiz heedlessly through life to the clatter of the eternal machine. . . . Now, the machine has entered the realm of the musical art. Is this the Song of Progress? No! Machine-made music can never provide a substitute for the mellowing cultural influence of Real Music. Those concerned for the future of the race will resent the strangling of the art of music by a mechanical substitute in the theatre. Yet the art WILL BE strangled if this false economy is not halted by public demand. . . . Here is opportunity for Mother and all who share her hopes to cast a vote for preservation of Living Music. # Customs Change In Medicine, Too

The Trend of Modern Medical Practice Is Away from Needless "Dosing"

Back in the old "horse and buggy" days, Vicks VapoRub was the pioneer of a new idea in the treatment of colds. The custom then was to give large doses of internal medicines for colds and almost every human ailment. Vicks originated the better method of treating colds without "dosing."

Modern External Treatment

From the very first, Vicks has been appreciated, especially by mothers of young children, because it checks colds without the risk of upsetting delicate stomachs. Of course, it is equally effective for adults.

Just rubbed on, Vicks acts through the skin like a poultice or plaster, and, at the same time, it gives off medicated vapors which are inhaled direct to the inflamed air-passages.

In Over 60 Countries

Today the whole trend of medical practice is away from needless "dosing," and millions of families in more than 60 countries use Vicks for all cold troubles.

To keep pace with this ever-growing demand, the figures in the familiar Vick slogan are again being changed. First announced when Vicks reached "17 Million Jars Used Yearly"—later raised to "21 Million," there are now "Over 26 Million Jars Used Yearly" in the United States alone.

MURDER, KIDNAPING LAID TO DRUG AGENT

Federal Man Also Accused of Theft in Arrest on Canadian Charges.

GUN BATTLE DESCRIBED

Houston, Tex., Feb. 16 (A.P.)—Fred H. Mertz, Federal narcotic agent, was arrested here last night on charges of murder, kidnaping and theft of an automobile preferred by the Canadian government.

Judge J. C. Hutcheson, jr., of the Federal District Court, released Mertz on his own recognizance after his arrest.

The warrant, which was sworn out before United States Commissioner Brantly Harris by Frederick William Paris, British consul for Texas, alleges that Mertz killed Amedee Bilodeau of Sherbrooke in May, 1925, near the Canadian border, in the district of St. Francis. It charges also that he kidnaped Robert Andrew Price of the same town, and forcibly removed him from Canada. Another count charged that he stole an automobile, owned by Mrs. Adelphine Begin, of Sherbrooke.

The Government agent said the charges were an outgrowth of work he did in conjunction with Canadian authorities in 1925 in an attempt to prevent smuggling of narcotics across the border.

Three men, he said, suspected of being narcotic smugglers engaged the agents in a gun battle. One of the men fell, wounded fatally. Another escaped and the third was arrested and placed in jail, Mertz said. An automobile containing a quantity of narcotics was seized, he added.

Mertz said Carro Bacarro, a special narcotic agent, was arrested in Baltimore February 2 in connection with the same case.

On the Rules of Traffic

By WILLIAM ULLMAN

That white line surrounding a pedestrian safety zone, under the traffic regulations, should be just as much of a barrier to the motorist as if it were a concrete wall. He may assume that he has a right to drive through such an area when it is unoccupied, but he is quite wrong in his assumption.

The regulations specify that at no time and under no conditions shall the motorist invade this area reserved entirely for pedestrians.

Example: A driver is coming down Wisconsin avenue from the District line. He passes several unoccupied safety zones and finally, coming abreast of another car, puts the wheels of his own machine inside the white line of the safety zone. He has violated the regulations.

Child Is Seriously Burned.

Serious burns were received by Thelma Sims, colored, 10 years old, of 1524 Levi street northeast, when her clothes caught fire when she was placing a pan of water on a coal stove yesterday morning. She was taken to Casualty Hospital where her condition was reported to be serious.

Fifth Ave. Fashions NEW YORK

A COMFORTABLE bloomer dress for playtime for wee tots of 1, 2 and 4 years in pale blue cotton broadcloth print.

All the fulness in dress falls from diminutive round yoke of plain blue broadcloth. The cute yoke is complemented by turnover collar and perky bow tie of grosgrain ribbon. The short sleeves have turnback cuffs and are finished at edge with blanket stitch, which is also used to finish edge of collar and yoke.

The generously full-cut bloomers of the plain broadcloth peep smartly beneath. They have elastic inserted at upper and lower edges.

Style No. 8286 is made with 2⅛ yards of 40-inch material with ⅝ yard of 32-inch contrasting in the 4-year size, which is a substantial saving over the original model.

All patterns of Lucille Lorraine styles are 15 cents each. Mail your order to our Fashion Department, The Washington Post, 259 Fifth avenue New York City. Be sure to write your name and address clearly and give the number and size of the pattern.

Washington, Sunday, Feb. 16—8 p. m.

Forecast—For the District of Columbia, increasing cloudiness and warmer Monday; Tuesday fair and warmer; gentle to moderate south winds.

For Maryland and Virginia, increasing cloudiness and not so cold Monday; Tuesday partly cloudy and warmer; moderate south winds.

The disturbance that was near Cape Hatteras Saturday night has advanced rapidly northeastward with greatly increased intensity, being central over the Gulf of St. Lawrence, Harrington, 29.20 inches. A second disturbance of slight intensity is moving eastward over extreme southern Florida, Key West, 29.90 inches. Pressure is also low north of Manitoba, Churchill, 29.50 inches, and a secondary of slight intensity is over Iowa. High pressure prevails over eastern Ontario, Cochrane, 30.42 inches, thence southward to Virginia and thence southwestward to the Texas coast. Pressure is also high over the middle Rocky Mountain region and the northern plateau. During the last 24 hours rains have occurred in the South Atlantic States and snows in the Middle Atlantic and North Atlantic States, the upper lake region, the upper Mississippi Valley, and the northern Plains States. Temperatures have fallen in the Atlantic States, and have risen decidedly over the Plains States, the upper lake region, the middle and upper Mississippi Valleys, and the north portion of the west Gulf States.

The outlook is for snow flurries on Monday in the lower lake region and the northern Appalachian region, and for rain or snow on Tuesday in northern New England. Elsewhere the weather will be partly overcast Monday and Tuesday in the Washington forecast district. Temperatures will rise on Tuesday over the entire forecast district, and on Monday, except in northern New England.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

She Was Saved From Worry

A WASHINGTON Merchant died, leaving no one to carry on his business. Fortunately his will named this bank as executor. The bank disposed of the business satisfactorily and invested the proceeds in good securities. It collects the income and credits it to the widow's account.

She did not have to add the burden of business worry to her grief. She and the children are living comfortably now because of the foresight of a thoughtful man.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

WITH the Senate progressives on the warpath and gunning for at least one Commissioner whose name the President is expected to send in, several of the Radio Commissioners with terms expiring at the end of the week, certain of neither reappointment or confirmation, are pretty much in the position of the little boy in the woodshed waiting for the bad news.

Inferring that the Radio Commission is handling the larger stations with kid gloves, some of the smaller broadcasters have raised the question as to why the commission arbitrarily ordered the frequency assignments of 18 small stations changed, while it merely proposed to shift the allocations of 28 high-power stations using 13 cleared channels.

In the latter case, polite letters have been written to the broadcasters asking their cooperation and for any objections or suggestions.

EACH instrument used by the Stradivarius String Quartet, whose concert will be broadcast from the Library of Congress this afternoon, is more than 200 years old.

Look out tomorrow night for the 80-voice Paulist Choir over WRC at 9 o'clock, the Belgian Ambassador at 10:30 o'clock, and the long-lost "Gamby" an hour later, the last two over WMAL.

Nothing since Bedlam has been heard like the mixup late Saturday night between WEAF, New York; WSM, Nashville, and WMAL, Washington, the first two stations being on, what are humorously called, cleared channels. WMAL, the broadest of the three, covered ten points on the dial.

Leslie Farony, English comedian, characterized as "a combination Irving Berlin and Al Jolson," will be heard from London over the Columbia Broadcasting System's coast-to-coast network this evening from 10:45 o'clock, over Station WMAL.

This program has been especially arranged as a part of the entertainment at the dinner and dance to be given this evening at the Wardman Park Hotel by the employes of the Federal Radio Commission, in honor of the five commissioners.

* * * *

"February 14, 1930.

"Dirty Crooks: Just why must the air be cleared for our most noble and exalted chain programs? Did you rotten-souled Chicago bandits know that some few of us might want to listen to something else besides Grand Hophead and other such material as is polluting the air of this hell-hole country of ours. Why in the devil can't some local farm stations have an hour or so on the air each day?"

"February 15, 1930.

"My dear sirs: This letter is in the form of apology and confession. I was, I am sorry to say, rather under the influence of liquor and listening to some radio station airing their troubles to the public, and the two didn't mix very well, as I fear I tried to air my own troubles in the form of a letter to you.

"I am afraid I said things in it that weren't very complimentary. So I hope you will accept this apology, and please don't misunderstand me that I have a habit of such things."

The funny part of this was that the writer, in his first letter subscribed to a large extent to views held by Ira E. Robinson, chairman of the commission, regarding chain programs, and that the judge, into whose hands the letters fell, was inclined to agree more with the first than the second.

Art Interprets the Mode

Paris, Feb. 16.

NO, SIR, I refuse to get agitated about "hair of awkward length." For there is a way to avoid this.

To spare yourself, not to mention others, the sight of a growing-out bob, it is so simple to have a sort of back piece made to exactly match one's own hair! It pins on from behind one ear to the other, and one just wears it the two or three necessary months until one's own hair is long enough to make into a chignon.

The same idea applies to the bobbed head that wants to be a coiffure at night.

Martial et Armand gave us the most gorgeous ensemble to sketch for you that you could very well imagine! In fact, it was so lovely that I will just have to show you three versions of it—the one today on the left, the coat of brown marocain trimmed with flat brown fur that is to be worn with—well, watch for it Wednesday.

Sometimes it's spelled "Mary Nowitzky," sometimes it's "Mary Novitzky" and osemtimes "Marynowitzky." In view of the fact that the letterhead reads "Mary Nowitzky" and on the same letter the interesting lady herself signs it "Marynowitzky," I'll leave you to figure out the whys and wherefores, while I tell you that it is pronounced, all in one breath, "mary-no-wits-kee."

* * * *

The limited pocketbook may be a source of annoyance to the conscientious mamma, but it holds no actual terrors for her if she just puts her mind to it! On paper, and actually, I have just had a complete spring ensemble made for Petite Adorable, which gives her at least sixty-leven changes, and which will last her clear into fall and do again for the following spring, no matter how eccentrically she may grow. And it cost about the price of one good dress and one good coat for her!

A stamped self-addressed envelope sent to the Dare Department of The Washington Post, and the illustrated leaflet, telling you how to make every one of the garments, will be yours.

Heim achieves an inference of high waistline without saying anything out loud, as it were, in this blue tweed coat sketched at the right—blue and grey tweed, to be exact, with greyish fur collar.

* * * *

The weekly Dare fashion letter is to be found in the Sunday Washington Post, and it's well worth looking for.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

"Thirty-Five Dollars a Week."

DEAR Miss McDonald—If there is a chance for this couple under these circumstances, let me know.

My brother and his sweetheart want to marry. He is 27 and she is 25. He has a position paying him $30 a week now, but is to get a raise soon. He has saved $100 this winter.

She is a very sensible girl and is capable of handling money wisely, even more so than he is. She lives in a small town in Western Maryland, with her mother, while he lives here. She owns all of her own furniture and is willing to use it in their home, when they marry. The mother will probably come to live with them, but will pay her way.

His father has promised to finance a small house for them, but does not approve of their marriage until they can earn more to live on. He claims that they could not run a house on $35 a week and make a go of it.

The girl will gladly take a position here, but she is not trained for clerical work. She is a school teacher, and it is questionable as to her getting a place here. I am told that the waiting list is large.

Now, Miss MacDonald, I was only 18 and my husband 19 when we married. We didn't have enough to get a license, and my husband borrowed a little. We had just graduated from high school, and all we knew was that we were awfully in love, and, thank heaven, we still are after five years.

For the first year we lived at his home because his father was alone and wanted us with him. My hubby went to work, and I mean work, with all capital letters. Soon enough we knew there was to be a third person in our family, and realized that more than ever we had to knuckle down. We had received several checks for wedding presents, and we saved them. It's a good thing we did, because we'd have had to borrow to pay my doctor and hospital bills when baby was born.

We are paying for a little house and have two dear babies. It is a strain on us even now, and I guess it will be for sometime to come. It has been 50-50 with us and I think my brother and his girl can make good, too, if they will.

We get $50 a week now, but we have two children. Could they get along on $35 without any?

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely, MRS. R.

There are probably many readers of this column who are living happily on $35 a week. But confess our ignorance of how it is accomplished. To us $35 a week seems the minimum that one person can live upon in any degree of comfort.

If any of those who have accomplished, what to us seems the impossible, will offer their budget, or their normal support in behalf of Mrs. R. we will gladly publish their letters. But our honest opinion is that any school teacher who marries on $35 a week is walking into disillusionment and sacrificing love. After all, how can love be expected to overcome such handicaps as bill collectors and last year's hat? Love is doing well today if it survives the ordinary complications of "Life," without being expected to hurdle such extraordinary handicaps as present themselves on $35 a week. Will some one more sentimental answer Mrs. R.'s question? Is it possible for two people to live in any city today on $35 a week? If so, how?

WORK ON BRIDGE

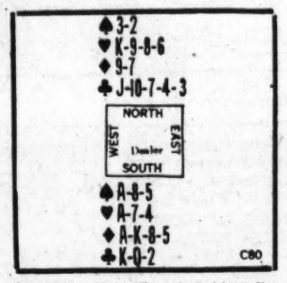
When a No Trump Declarer has in his two hands only one winning card of the suit originally led, it is generally advisable for him, when possible, to defer playing that card until the third round of the suit. When he has a total of five cards in the suit in his two hands, the adversaries have eight; in which case the leader is apt to have five, the other adversary three. By holding up until the third round, the adversary on the right is exhausted if the dangerous adverse 5-3 division exists.

For example, South should hold up his Ace of Spades until the third round in the following situation, if West opens with the Six of Spades and East plays the Jack.



Assuming that West led from five, East and West surely will take four Spade tricks if South wins the first or second Spade trick; but by holding up the Ace until the third Spade trick, West will not get in to cash his Spades until after Declarer has made game, unless he has the Ace of Clubs. With East holding that Ace, Declarer would win his game with one Spade, two Hearts, two Diamonds and four Clubs. If the eight adverse Spades are divided evenly the holdup will not gain or lose.

If South had held the King of Spades instead of the Ace, he would not dare to hold up because West would be marked with the Ace and South's only way to take a Spade trick would be by winning the first with his King. After that it would not make any difference which adverse hand had the Ace of Clubs; another Spade would be led as soon as the Ace of Clubs won and the adversaries would save game if West had five Spades. Declarer could not be sure about that and would have to make up his Clubs, praying that the adverse Spades were divided 4-4

BRIDGERS, ATTENTION!

Because of space limitations the answers given in our great Milton C. Work Home Bridge Contest which ended recently are necessarily abridged, but in order to satisfy the intense interest in the Questions and Answers, Mr. Work has prepared a splendid 48-page booklet entitled "Playing Problems," which reproduces the eighteen hands, the complete auction and contract bidding, with the reasons for each bid, the answers to every question and the reasons for such answers in complete detail, all written in Mr. Work's clear and interesting style.

This booklet, "Playing Problems," which will be of much greater value to the auction and contract player than many high-priced textbooks, is not for sale. It has been prepared exclusively for readers of this newspaper by special arrangement with Mr. Work. One copy will be mailed to you upon request if you will send self-addressed stamped return envelope, together with 6 cents in stamps to defray part of the cost of printing and handling this 48-page booklet. Requests not complying with these conditions will be ignored.

What Today Means to You

"AQUARIUS."

IF February 17 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 1:10 a. m. to 12:50 p. m., from 3 p. m. to 4 p. m., and from 9:40 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger periods are from 9 a. m. to 10 a. m., and from 6 p. m. to 7 p. m.

There is nothing of a spectacular or eventful nature predicted for this date, although a moderate degree of success will be generally experienced. A change for the better may be anticipated for those who have been "under the weather." Influences favor health.

The child born on this February 17 will be hypersensitive, and although wise and careful training is essential, it would be wrong to bring it up in a "silk-lined" world, or to inculcate the idea that it is different from other people. It must be prepared to meet the world on its feet.

You are lacking in perseverance and your powers of concentration are weak—your interest flies from one thing to another at the slightest pretext, and you have not yet learned to hold yourself to any one purpose. You are easily distracted, and it is very difficult for you to do things except under most favorable conditions. You have virulent attacks of enthusiasm, but they never become chronic. You do not realize the wisdom of saving your best wind for the "home-stretch"—you are "petered out" the first quarter. If you have met with repeated failures and disappointments, careful self-analysis will probably prove how hazardous these two failings are to you. You must take a tumble to yourself if you ever expect to become a real "winner."

There are admirable traits about you—you have a buoyant, sunny disposition, and others are always glad to do things for you. You make very favorable first impressions—you are thought to be both clever and pleasing. You are always the latter, and you could be the former. Your personality is your entrance key to many desirable fields from which others with more ability are excluded. You have a fund of good humor, and you take your falls with good grace.

THE NOSE OF A CHILD.

(Division of Education, Department of the Interior.)

Every child ought to be able, except when afflicted with a cold, to breathe freely through his nose, and his ability to do so can easily be tested by having him shut his mouth and breathe through his nose, or the potency of each nasal passage can be tested by pressing on one side of his nose and then asking him to breathe with his mouth shut. The teacher or parent will save time and words by showing by example what she wishes him to do.

Some children with normal noses breathe through their mouths, so that mouth-breathing is not necessarily a sign of nasal obstruction.

The teacher has the advantage in such examination over other examiners in that she can make sure whether the child is free from a cold at the time of examination.

F STREET

IN THE PLAYHOUSE

By JOHN J. DALY

A week of music is in store for theatergoers. At the National tonight Mitzi opens in a revival of the musical comedy that made her famous—"Sari." Over at Poli's Eleanor Painter will be seen in another revival, Victor Herbert's "The Fortune Teller."

* * * *

Tomorrow night all the local dramatic reviewers are going over to Baltimore. The lure is the American premiere of George Bernard Shaw's play, "The Apple Cart." It had a run in London. After the Baltimore engagement this Theater Guild production moves into New York with Washington as a possible stop next season.

* * * *

Even with the chaotic conditions affecting the theater throughout the United States, Washington still stands up as a great show city—when the fare theatric is what the people want. During the past week the Chicago Civic Shakespeare Society, with Fritz Leiber as star, came very near hanging up a new house record at Poli's—and with a repertoire of plays doing duty in the playhouse these 300 years. It all goes to show, as Mr. T. D. Bonneville says, "art never grows old."

* * * *

Years ago, when the old Garrick Theater flourished on F street, East of the Great Divide—which happens to be Seventh street—a play by Gladys Unger was uncorked there and it made a hit. 'Twas called "Enter, Madame." It had to do with a grand opera singer. Now comes Miss Unger with another play having grand opera as its thematic content. It is to be produced soon by Brock Pemberton, a Washington boy who has gone big on Broadway.

* * * *

"Love, honor and obey" is a stereotyped line about matrimony. The title of Miss Alice Brady's next play burlesques the celebrated thought, thusly: "Love, Honor, and Betray." The new play is scheduled for Broadway reviews about the 10th day of March.

* * * *

Since the Chicago Civic Shakespeare Society made such a hit in Washington, at Poli's, the rival house—the National—has hopes that a banner week will be staged there in early March when the Stratford-on-Avon players come through with a repertoire of the bard's best plays. "You must come over," says Mr. Harry Rapley, who likes his Shakespeare as well as anybody does.

California Group Will Stage Dinner

Secretary and Mrs. Wilbur to Be Honor Guests of Society.

Members of the California State Society have arranged a midwinter "get-acquainted" dinner in the garden of the Hotel Mayflower Thursday at 8 p. m.

Secretary of the Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur and Mrs. Wilbur are the guests of honor. Dr. Dwight L. Wilbur also will be present. President Charles W. Freeman also expects Senators Hiram W. Johnson and Samuel M. Shortridge, as well as the entire California congressional delegation, to be present.

The committee on arrangements includes Maj. Horace T. Jones, Robert Armstrong and Joseph A. Koons. Music is to be furnished by the Army Band Orchestra and the Lovett Choral Club. A number of the presidents of other State societies and "friends of California" also have been invited.

How to Keep Well

HOW TO STOP BELCHING.

THE gas brought up by belching is composed principally of atmospheric air and of intestinal gases. Cases secreted in the stomach from the blood make up a portion of the mixture. Those resulting from fermentation of the stomach contents are small in quantity and unimportant. It follows that remedies taken to prevent stomach indigestion and fermentation are founded on a false theory and are generally useless and sometimes are worse than that.

In the process of chewing and swallowing some air is carried down with the food. This is especially true with bottlefed babies. The mother who holds her baby upright on her shoulder and chest and gently pats his back after he has finished with his bottle does the right thing, although she may not know the reason.

Adults who swallow air generally do so because of some irritation near the diaphragm. The discomfort causes air to be swallowed toward the stomach or into it and there to be belched back. This is the explanation of nervous belching, belching due to nervous indigestion, and some of that due to other forms of indigestion.

An important type of belching is that due to reverse peristalsis. In this the gases belched come from the intestinal tract. This is the form of belching caused by gall stones, infection of the gall bladder, adhesions, in some cases of chronic appendicitis, spastic colitis, mucous colitis and chronic constipation. To take dyspepsia tablets or medicines to prevent stomach fermentation for this kind of belching is useless and yet it is in just this type of belching that most of the "medicines to bring up the gas" are taken. As a matter of fact bringing up the gas is just exactly the wrong thing to do. Relief comes when peristalsis starts in the right direction. Anything that tends to keep it going upward or in the wrong direction is harmful.

The proper method of handling this type of belching is to locate the condition which causes it and to treat that. Rarely is this underlying condition in the stomach itself.

There is considerable difference of opinion as to whether gases are excreted from the blood into the stomach, but the question is not one of much practical importance. Effort to prevent formation of gas by fermentative dyspepsia should be abandoned. There is no such disorder. The stomach contents are acid and fermentation does not progress in acid media. Food is in the stomach but a short time. All in all, gas formation in the stomach itself is slight. It may amount to something in old alcoholics with chronic alcoholic gastritis and distended stomachs, but that is about the limit of possibilities in that direction.

HELLO, EVERYBODY, I HAVE HERE A LETTER FROM ONE OF OUR FANS WHICH HAS GIVEN US A VERY GOOD IDEA, AND ONE WHICH WE SHALL FOLLOW! I SHALL NOW READ THE LETTER, AND PERHAPS SOME OF YOU, TOO, MAY WANT TO OFFER A SUGGESTION!!
IT SAYS "DEAR ART - HAVE FOLLOWED "MINUTE MOVIES" FOR A LONG TIME — I ENJOY ALL YOUR PRODUCTIONS, BUT THERE IS ONE THING I THINK YOU SHOULD TAKE INTO CONSIDERATION-
AND THAT IS THE FACT THAT YOU ARE CONSTANTLY ADDING NEW FANS TO YOUR LIST, AND THAT THE NEW ONES ARE NOT ONLY UNACQUAINTED WITH YOUR STARS BUT ALSO WITH THEIR PAST PERFORMANCES!!
FOR THIS REASON, I THINK YOU SHOULD SHOW, FROM TIME TO TIME, YOUR ACTORS' "FILM PASTS" NOT ONLY TO ACQUAINT NEW FANS WITH THEIR PERSONALITIES —
BUT ALSO TO SHOW THEM THE GREAT SCOPE OF THEIR TALENTS!! EVEN OLD TIMERS, LIKE MYSELF, I'M SURE, WOULD LIKE TO SEE THESE BITS FROM THE PAST — HOW ABOUT IT? YOURS FANATICALLY, GEO. WORTH!
WELL, GEORGE, WE THOUGHT SO MUCH OF YOUR IDEA THAT WE GOT BUSY ON A SPECIAL SET OF "FILM PASTS" OF ALL OUR STARS!! I HOPE YOU'RE "LISTENING IN"!!

Miami Match Now Labeled Title Bout

Magnolia Is Likely to Referee; Sales Pass $200,000 Mark.

By NED BROWN.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 16 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Word was received here from Eugene Buckley, of the Massachusetts Boxing Commission, Edward R. Foster, of the Rhode Island Box-Commission, and from the British Board of Boxing Control, that these three favor recognizing the impending battle between Phil Scott and Jack Sharkey as for the heavyweight championship of the world.

At the same time, Johnny Buckley, manager for Sharkey, submitted nine names of referees, any one of whom would be acceptable to him as referee of the fight. The name of Lou Magnolia, of New York, tops Buckley's list, just as it topped the list of nine submitted by Jimmy Johnston, Scott's manager.

They say the referee will be selected at a meeting tomorrow which Buckley, Johnston, Frank J. Bruen and the Miami Boxing Commission are to attend, but Johnston has just finished telling that he has a date to go fishing and he can't allow a meeting to interfere with the expedition.

Schmeling Rated As Contender.

The message from the Massachusetts Boxing Commission read in part as follows:

"This bout on February 27, is the world's championship bout. Both Sharkey and Scott have fulfilled all requirements, and so far as Massachusetts is concerned, at least, so far as I, the veteran member of this commission, am concerned, Schmeling is only a challenger and the winner of the Garden's stadium battle in Miami, will be the defender.

Schmeling has done nothing to warrant giving him such prestige. Sharkey has defeated all outstanding heavyweights in this country and is now the recognized heavyweight champion of America. He and Scott are entitled to full consideration, but Schmeling is not. I think entirely too much is being made of Schmeling, a man who has run out of his matches and too little of real fighters who deserve the full support of the American fight fan."

From the British Board of Boxing Control came the following cablegram: "Heartily in accord with the action of several leading American boxing commissions to recognize the winner of the Sharkey-Scott battle as heavyweight champion of the world, British board recognizes Miami fight as for title."

New York Body's Backing Sought.

Upon hearing all about this, Jimmy Johnston immediately sent a telegram to James A. Farley, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, asking that New York fall into line. Which, of course, Mr. Farley won't do.

Frank Bruen issued a statement today in which set set forth that up to date the ticket sale has amounted to $213,281, of which $163,281 already has been deposited in the bank, with the other $50,000 due on reservations that have been made. He adds that a corresponding time before last year's fight the cash banked amounted to only $101,000. That affair, between Sharkey and Young Stribling, drew about $400,000.

Wallace Memorial Five Seeks 145-Pound Title In Post's A.A.U. Tourney

WALLACE MEMORIAL CHURCH will be represented by a sturdy ban of lightweight courtmen in the 145-pound class championships of the District A. A. U. tournament to be held under the auspices of The Washington Post next month. Four of the regulars weigh in around 130 pounds, but they have given 145-pound and unlimited teams plenty of trouble this season and they have no reason to believe they are to be denied a place among the final survivors.

Undefeated last season, the Wallace Cagers failed to make a bid for the District title. This season they have triumphed in 14 of 18 games. Their most cherished victory was at the expense of the 145-pound Boys' Club Optimists, 32 to 22. The team also gave the strong Dixie Pig unlimiteds a close battle before yielding.

Al Hurwitz, manager of the quint, is making no great boast for his cohorts. No outstanding performers grace his roster. The quintet is made up of a group of fast, capable and fighting youngsters who like to play the game and play to win. He and his mates will be content to make a good showing in the approaching tournament but they are not sure that they will not be in there battling for the title when the final rounds are reached.

Although the field of contesting teams numbers but one-third of that which will seek the unlimited title, the 145-pound championship promises to furnish a real test. The eleven contenders appear well matched.

Local Scholastic Quintets Facing Another Busy Week

ALTHOUGH the interhigh basket ball series completed its play last Tuesday, high and prep school fives are maintaining the interest of scholastic fans in the court game with unusually attractive contests, and the coming week continues to offer games of high order. Only Business has hung up its high school uniforms for the season, but several of that quintet are still playing ball as the Business Whirlwinds, under which name they will enter the A. A. U. tournament next month.

Seemingly unimportant at the beginning of the schedule, frays involving Hyattsville with Western and Central, and St. John's with Eastern, are taking on an added glow of attractiveness as the result of the play of the Maryland Scholastics and the Vermont avenue lads during the current season. The local prep school lads have been displaying plenty of strength in all of their games, their strongest bid to fame lying in their two unexpected defeats of Central.

Hyattsville Proves Dangerous.

Hyattsville, too, has assured its right of meeting local teams on an even basis by performances against the last two high school teams which it faced, surprising even their most ardent admirers by scoring victories over both the championship Tech Team and Eastern. Western and Central, both of whom conquered Hyattsville earlier in the season, may find rougher sledding when they play their return games this week.

Opening the week tomorrow night, Western will try to stop the Catholic University Freshmen in a preliminary game at the C. U. varsity struggle, something that three other high school fives have failed to do. Central, Business and Eastern have all fallen before the Cardinal yearlings. Western will again hold the spotlight alone on Tuesday, when the aforementioned return clash with Hyattsville is played in the Western Gymnasium.

Three games on Wednesday will find as many high school teams in action, with Eastern facing the cocky St. John's team. Western will travel to Alexandria for a game with Episcopal, while Tech will step out of its class when it faces the St. John's Junior Varsity.

Central to Play Thursday.

Central's second game with Hyattsville will be played on Thursday, while Eastern stacks up against the Strayer College Five.

One of the best games of the week will undoubtedly be staged on Friday, when the high school titleholders face the Maryland Freshmen. The College Park yearlings have also registered over every scholastic five it has been their fate to meet, and may force Tech to the limit. What should develop into a spirited contest will take place on the same day, when two crack teams outside of the interhigh series come together. Gonzaga, which has improved considerably of late, will face the fast-stepping St. John's aggregation.

Hadley Fans 26 in 1st Bid For Fame

Nat Pitcher Started Diamond Career as Infielder

Best Work in Majors in 1927; Promises 1930 Comeback.

A BIG BOY, lacing a couple of inches of being 6 feet in height, but broad-shouldered, almost plumb, in fact, was pitching for Mercersburg Academy against Forrester Academy, June 4, 1924.

Three men came to bat for Forrester in the first inning. The Mercersburg hurler struck them all out. He also struck out the three who faced him in the second inning, likewise in the third, fourth and fifth innings.

The first man up in the sixth inning hit a grounder to third and then the young prep school hurler proceeded to strike out eleven more batters, 26 all told.

That was the first bid for fame by Irving Darius Hadley, Washington pitcher. The most unusual thing about that wonderful feat was that Hadley had been pitching but a few weeks. He had been the third baseman of his team, but Stickles, the regular pitcher, quit school and Hadley was impresseed into service upon the rubber.

Grid, Not Baseball, Scouts Sought Big Boy.

Strange as it may seem, his pitching did not attract as much attention as did his playing upon the prep school gridiron. No baseball scouts made him fancy offers and sought his signature upon the dotted line, but he was fairly mobbed by the football scouts. It was Brown that landed him, but although it was a gridiron scout that coaxed him to enter that university, he made no attempt to make the freshman eleven, but did pitch and play the outfield.

And, he never did remain at Brown long enough to even try for the varsity baseball or football teams. Instead he turned semipro and joined the famous East Douglass Baseball team and there learned so much about pitching under the coaching of King Bader he lost but one game that entire summer.

Incidentally, he also won a contract with the Washington Americans. Reporting to Bucky Harris the following spring, he pitched three innings in a championship contest.

Was Yanked in 3 Innings of Debut With Nats.

"If Bucky had left me in," admitted Hadley, last summer, "I believe the game would not be finished yet. I passed two and allowed six hits before I got the hook."

But "Bump," a nickname he acquired at Mercersburg, won fourteen and lost but seven for Birmingham that year, and won fourteen and lost only six for Washington in 1927. It was not surprising that Stanley Harris decided he had uncovered another star hurler, but Hadley was a victim of appendicitis in '28, winning twelve and losing thirteen, while he was almost a flop in '29, acquiring the "one bad inning" habit. He bore down too hard, failed to relax and could scarcely wait until he got the ball back from his catcher before he was hurling it up to the batter again.

As a result, the plump boy won six games while losing sixteen. But he will pitch better ball than that in 1930. To do so, however, he must regain his pitching poise and confidence. He has the stuff and pretty fair control, and Manager Walter Johnson plans to give him special and personal attention.

District A. A. U. Title Boxing Next Month

Planning to broaden the scope of its activities, the District of Columbia Association of the Amateur Athletic Union is making arrangements through its boxing committee to hold local boxing championships during the latter part of March. The proposed championships will be the first of their kind ever staged here, and the second titular competition scheduled by the District Association, which became a member of the union last October.

It has been proposed to allot the various bouts—preliminaries, semi-finals and finals—to the club having facilities for handling not only the competitors but the public as well. The committee as yet has not decided at which clubs the bouts will be held nor the opening and closing dates for the acceptance of entries.

Registered amateurs and college athletes in good standing will be eligible to compete. A large entry list is anticipated as there are thought to be more than 150 amateur boxers in Washington.

The committee is composed of Edward Rosenblum, of the Jewish Community Center, chairman; James A. Sullivan, Knights of Columbus; J. Bateman, Wardman Park Athletic Association, and James Dewey, Queensberry Club.

Business Whirlwinds Upset Stewarts, 29-28

Two teams, which are expected to be leading contenders in the 145-pound division of the A. A. U. tournament, fought it out yesterday in a preliminary to the Eagles-Paterson game. The Business High Whirlwinds provided something of a surprise when they defeated the Stewart Bros. Photographers, 29-28. Business enjoyed a 6-point lead with two minutes to go, but barely won when Daaye Keppel opened a long-distance barrage that netted three field goals.

IN THE COLLEGE CORNER

By JACK ESPEY

IF the Catholic U. Five wins its ball game tonight you can toss over the fence that twelve-game losing streak of the Cardinals, for the team that will invade the Brookland floor is none other than the best in the east—St. John's of Brooklyn.

St. John's of Brooklyn, a school not very well known in this section, annually turns out basket ball teams that can keep the pace with the leaders. This year St. John's has no peer in the metropolitan district, which means that St. John's is the best quintet operating in Eastern collegiate circles. It is a generally accepted fact that the strongest college fives of the East are those of the greater New York area.

Local fans during the past two seasons have seen two of these Gotham teams—Fordham, which lost but one game in 1929, and New York University, the team that gave Fordham that lone defeat. St. John's recently outpointed New York U., 23 to 20. Among other notable feats accomplished this year by the Brooklynites was a decisive defeat of the Crescent A. C., a team of former college stars, which holds the Eastern club championship. Crescent downed Georgetown earlier by 14 points.

St. John's uses the professional style and is said to have copied the big leaguers' stuff so well that it can be distinguished from a pro outfit only by its amateur standing, which, of course, isn't visible on the floor.

Judging from the records, it would seem safe to say that the lowly Cardinals' thirteenth straight loss already is under lock and key.

Track Popular In Far West.

It looks as if the California schools which offered to hold the 1932 outdoor championships of the Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America at Berkeley, Calif., are not unmindful, to say the least, of the great prospects the games hold from a financial standpoint.

Track and field sports are popular in the Far West. The average attendance at meets in that section is larger, it is said, than that of Eastern meets, although for years the East has been considered the stronghold of sports of this kind. The presence of the I. C. 4-A championships at Berkeley therefore should more than pay the expense involved in bringing all of the Eastern teams of the association across the country.

The intercollegiate games would be but preliminary steps toward the Olympic games, for the I. C. 4-A championships will, as usual, be one of the official elimination tests for those in search of Olympic honors, with the final tryouts held a week or two later. The proposed time for the college meet is the latter part of June or the early part of July.

The year 1932 should be a banner one for track and field athletics. The presence on the coast of a large number of the best intercollegiate athletes and the proximity of the I. C. 4-A and Olympic tryouts will tend to raise the interest of the competitors and the public to a high pitch.

G. U. Regaining Prestige In Relays.

It has begun to appear, with last Saturday's victory over Colgate, that Georgetown is returning to the heights in relay racing. With a continuation of the fine form already shown by the lue and Gray 1-mile and 2-mile teams, Georgetown well may b eexpected to regain the top ranking that was hers two or three years back.

When the Hilltop mile quartet defeated Colgate in the famous Sammy Reid Memorial Trophy race, it was the first time since 1928 that a Georgetown mile team has flashed home in front. The winning time, 3:26 4-5, stands as one of the fast-

Cordovano to Leave G. U. After W. & L. Bouts Tonight

SAM CORDOVANO, Georgetown football and boxing star, will be making his first and last home appearance in the ring tonight when the Hilltoppers and the Washington and Lee Generals pry the lid off Georgetown's local boxing season in Ryan Gymnasium. The program of seven bouts will open at 8:30 o'clock.

Cordovano sometime this week will depart for New York City where he will take up his duties as head line coach under Lou Little at Columbia University. He is one of four former Georgetown players or coaches who recently were apointed to assist Little in football coaching at the Morningside Heights institution.

In spite of a knockout at the hands of Woodward, of Army, last Saturday at West Point, Cordovano last night felt no ill effects, and he is expected to prove a worthy opponent for the Washington and Lee heavyweight. The Generals' heavyweight has not as yet been named but will be Day, Richardson or Crenshaw.

Both Georgetown and Washington and Lee met defeat by a 4-3 count last Saturday, the Hilltoppers bowing to Army when the Cadets claimed a forfeit in the featherweight class, and the Generals falling before Catholic University. Georgetown has yet to win a team decision, having lost to West Virginia, 4-3, on February 1.

Joe Villanova, a novice, will fight in the bantamweight bout tonight and Mike Tardugno will move up to the featherweight class. Capt. Fish, intercollegiate welter champion, and Buddy Bordeau, South Atlantic light-heavy champion, also will represent Georgetown.

Bordeau won his bout against Army in decisive fashion. His record, which covers competition in amateur as well as collegiate circles, now reads 22 victories and 3 defeats. All but three of his victories have been scored via the knockout route. He started boxing less than a year ago, capturing the Georgetown intramural light heavyweight title in his initial effort.

Birdie Beats Sarazen by One Stroke

By DILLON L. GRAHAM.

PENSACOLA, Fla., Feb. 16 (A.P.).—Playing the final round in three under par and sinking a 25-foot putt on the final green for a birdie, Johnny Farrell, slender St. Augustine, Fla., professional posted a 287 today to win the second annual $3,500 greater Pensacola open golf tournament.

As he made his drive for the final hole, Farrell needed only par to tie Sarazen and a birdie to win. He was on the green in two shots in this 398-yard par-4 hole. With a magic touch of his putter, Farrell sank the lengthy shot on the rolling green. He equaled par on his first round, was over on both his second and third and was three under on the final round today. His card for the match was 71—74—68.

Sarazen had finished the last round in 70, which added to his 72 on the morning round and his 146 on the previous day, gave him the 288. Farrell's winning score was 13 above that with which Horton Smith won the tournament last year and three under par figures for the four rounds.

Mehlhorn Falters; Finishes 6th.

Four strokes behind Sarazen and five away from the leader were Whiffy Cox, of Brooklyn, and Ferman Barron, of Port Chester, N. Y., with Barron, who was tied with "Wild Bill" Mehlhorn, unattached, yesterday for the leadership at the end of the 36 holes play, took 149 today and dropped from the preferred position. Mehlhorn also faltered today, taking a 151 and fell back into sixth place with 294, one stroke behind Tony Manero, of New York, who captured fifth place money.

Ed Dudley, of Wilmington, Del. had a 295, while two veterans, Craig Wood, of Bloomfield, N. J., and Harry Cooper, unattached, were deadlocked for eighth place with 296s.

The veterans who finished in the money today were forced to play through the first 36 holes in a rainstorm with a cold wind off Pensacola Bay sweeping across the course. Many of the field could not surmount the barriers and quit. But the ones who remained in the chase found today perfect for golf and the scores which soared, yesterday were near par figures in the final round.

Guy Yaste, Pensacola, won the loving cup given the amateur making low scores, by turning in a 331, one better than the offering of Lee Schneider, of Oshkosh, Wis.

Woman Driver Second In Utah Dog Derby

Ogden, Utah, Feb. 16 (A.P.).—Earl Kimball, of Reno, Nev., won the Wasatch dog derby today from a field of eleven starters. His time for the full course of 50.4 miles was 3 hours 42 minutes and 19 seconds, believed to be a new world's record for the distance.

Thula Greelan, Idaho woman musher driving for a San Francisco commercial concern, was second with a total elapsed time 3:52:14, and only 43 seconds behind her was Roy Stover, Sacramento, winner of the Tahoe-Sierra Derby last month. His time was 3:52:57.

Fourth was Pete Riley, of Franklin County, Idaho, driving for his wife, "Whistlin' Lyd" Hutchinson, in 4:05:18, and Delbert Groom, youthful Idaho musher, driving for a Sacramento business house, was fifth in 4:06:02.

EAGLES DEFEAT PATERSON IN THRILLER, 31-30

Allen's Foul Shot Brings Victory

Joe Sweeney Outplays Grody; Crowd Fills Armory Hall.

THE Skinker Bros. Eagles were offered a franchise in the American Basket Ball League last fall, but Manager Bernie Peacock had to turn the offer down because of lack of a suitable playing floor and a dearth of cash, but his club demonstrated to a capacity audience in the Silver Spring Armory yesterday that they are of a pro league caliber by defeating the Paterson Pros, 31 to 30.

Outplayed, 19 to 12, for the first 20 minutes, the Eagles made a rapid comeback and tied the count at 30-30 as the rival passing machines opened the final minute of play. Duke Allen, former Maryland star, sank a foul shot for the deciding point.

Joe Sweeney, the Skinker speedboy, carried on in usual style despite the fact that Bob Grody, former Washington pro, guarded him. Sweeney outscored Grody, 11 to 6. Both teams kept their regulars in action throughout the battle.

It takes three years to prepare the tobaccos that make OLD GOLD a smoother cigarette . . . The throat-scratch begins to leave when its BETTER TOBACCOS are allowed full time to mellow and ripen . . . the irritation goes when they are completely freed from dust and impurities . . . The roughness disappears when they are blended to honey-smoothness, with no artificial treatment added . . . Three years to make your throat say "O.K." and your taste say "100%" . . . But it's worth it to OLD GOLD, and to you.

After Dinner Spit is a horrid word, but it is worse on the end of your cigar

Of course the spitter earns your disgust . . . his filthy habit is revolting. Why not feel the same way about the old-fashioned cigar . . . the cigar rolled by dirty fingers and tipped with spit? Remember, more than half of all cigars made in this country are still made by hand, and therefore subject to the risk of spit!

Certified Cremo protects you against this abomination! Every tobacco leaf entering the clean, sunny Certified Cremo factories is scientifically treated by methods developed by the United States Government during the war. And its purity is safeguarded along every step of the way by amazing inventions that foil, wrap and tip the cigars without the possibility of spit!

Try a Certified Cremo—see how wonderfully good it is! Made of the choicest, tenderest leaves that the crop affords, we claim Certified Cremo's quality is tastier than that of any other cigar. Don't let its 5c price stand in your way. Your physician has in mind a cigar like Certified Cremo when he recommends a mild smoke in place of heavy brands.

Crush-proof . . . immaculate . . . foil-wrapped . . . Certified Cremo is the kind of cigar the late Vice-President Marshall undoubtedly was thinking of when he said: "What this country needs is a good 5c cigar!"

Concord and Marlboro Booters Lose at Baltimore

Special to The Washington Post.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 16.—Two Washington soccer teams were beaten in games played here this afternoon, Bethlehem Steel crushing the Marlboro Club, 9 to 0, while the Triangle Soccer Club upset the dope by downing the Concords, of the Capital City, 3 to 2.

Marlboro's defense cracked after fifteen minutes of play and from then on the result was never in doubt, with M. Beutgen starring for the Steel booters.

In the other game, Concord was looked upon as the favorite, and it did outscore the Triangles from the field, 2 to 1. But Joe Benesch, captain and center half back of the Triangles, drove two penalty shots past Henry Heise, stellar goalie of the Concords, to give the Potomac division champions their winning margin. Sherry, outside right forward, shot the field goal for the Triangles.

FEW FIGHTS OF MERIT LISTED

Week Offers Little in Way of Outstanding Bouts.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16 (A.P.).—Pending settlement of the Jack Sharkey-Phil Scott dispute at Miami, February 27, the boxing business goes into a partial eclipse. The schedule for the coming week reveals no outstanding combats in any sector of the widespread front.

Jackie Fields, welterweight champion, will trade punches with Young Corbett, Fresno southpaw, in a ten-round nontitular bout at San Francisco Saturday night in one high spot and Primo Carnera meets John O. Erickson, of Chicago, in his sixth American appearance at Oklahoma City tomorrow night. The battle is for ten rounds but there appears to be some doubt about it going that far. Charlie White, old-time lightweight star, attempts a comeback in a six-round bout at the Chicago Coliseum Friday night, meeting Henry Perlick, Kalamazoo lightweight.

Other bouts on the national schedule include:

Tuesday—At Portland, Oreg., Young Firpo, Burke, Idaho, vs. Del Fontaine, Winnipeg, middleweights, ten rounds. At Seattle, Tony Fuente, Los Angeles, vs. Harry Dillon, Winnipeg, heavyweights, six rounds. At Los Angeles, Les Kennedy, Long Beach, vs. Dynamite Jackson, Los Angeles Negro, heavyweights, ten rounds.

ALEXANDRIA PLANS WASHINGTON PARADE

Historic Organizations Will Take Part in Birthday Celebration.

RADIO FANS WILL HEAR

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The historic City of Alexandria, the home town of George Washington, is making elaborate preparations to celebrate his birthday with ceremonies befitting the occasion.

For more than a quarter of a century the George Washington Birthday Association has functioned in Alexandria and in all these years, with the exception of the World War period, each alternate year has witnessed a huge military and civic parade, reviewed, on several occasions, by the President of the United States, the governor of Virginia, members of both houses of Congress, the Diplomatic Corps, and many other distinguished men.

This year will be no exception. The association has sent out invitations, far and near, to organizations to participate. At least three military organizations bearing names that have been linked with the military history of the country almost since its inception, are expected to display to the distinguished visitors their brilliant uniforms and their treasured colors. These are the Richmond Light Infantry Blues Battalion, Virginia's pride; the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Boston, whose age rivals that of the organization of the same name of London, and the Governor's Foot Guards of New Haven, whose record is hardly less illustrious than the others.

The point at which each member of each organization will execute the command "eyes left," in salute to Washington's successor in the Presidency of the United States, will be on a street which bears the name of the first President. Just before reaching this point, the head of the parade will have passed, on its left, Christ Church, where Washington paid his devotion to his Deity and where his pew is preserved and is visited by many thousands of persons each year; on its right, Gadsby's Tavern, where Washington, as a young colonel of militia, had his headquarters while he was organizing and drilling his command for the Great Meadows campaign, and, still farther on its right, the Carlyle House, home of John Carlyle, commissary general of the Virginia forces in the Braddock campaign, in which the meeting of the Royal Governors of the Colonies was held, in 1755. It was in this house that Washington was tendered, and accepted, a commission as major in the British army. Jefferson was often a guest here, as were Franklin, Burr, Chief Justice Marshall, Charles Carroll, of Carrollton, and John Paul Jones.

The grand marshal of the parade will be Maj. Gen. Fred W. Sladen, commanding general of the Third Corps Area, with headquarters in Baltimore. The chief of staff will be Lieut. Col. Lewis Evans, U. S. Signal Corps Reserve, and the assistant chief of staff Charles W. King, of Alexandria. The officers of the George Washington Birthday Association, which will stage the celebration, are Harry D. Kirk, president; Martin E. Greene, secretary, and J. William May, treasurer.

Two "first time ever done" events will feature the George Washington Birthday program on a coast-to-coast hook-up.

From a specially-built compartment of the reviewing stand in which President Hoover reviews the parade, Ted Husing, chief announcer of the Columbia System, will review the event. The time will be from 2:30 to 4 o'clock, E. S. T.

The second "first time" feature of the day will be a word-picture trip through George Washington's home at Mount Vernon, Va., under the personal supervision of Harrison H. Dodge, superintendent and official lecturer delegated for this task by the Mount Vernon Ladies Association of the Union, by special permission of the regent, Mrs. Alice H. Richards.

In the past as many as from 100,000 to 150,000 persons have thronged the streets of Alexandria to witness this event.

Twelve churches and 20 different organizations were represented at a recent meeting at the George Mason Hotel to arrange for the annual observation of the International Day of Prayer, March 7.

The group elected officers in charge of preparations, as follows: Mrs. J. C. Winterwerp, of Grace Episcopal Church, intercessor; Mrs. George T. Klipstein, of St. Paul's Church, president; Mrs. Lewis Evans, of the First Baptist Church, first vice president; Mrs. E. E. Carver, of the M. E. Church South, second vice president; Mrs. Tyson Janney, of the M. E. Church South, secretary; Mrs. E. M. Delaney, of the Second Presbyterian Church, assistant secretary.

A special rifle match, open to members of Campany A, of the Alexandria High School Cadets, will be held about April 15, to compete for the Moncure Military Medal, which has been offered by Principal Henry T. Moncure, of the Alexandria High School, for marksmanship.

Col. Clarence Deems, jr., military instructor at the high school, has offered silver and bronze medals to the second and third highest scores in this event.

The conditions are identical with the intercollegiate matches, ten shots prone and ten shots standing. The match is open to any cadet in the school who is eligible to athletic competition. The entries will close February 26, at noon.

The announcement in yesterday's Post that the total amount so far contributed for the restoration of Gen. Robert E. Lee's birthplace at Stratford was $2,089.70 was an error, the correct amount contributed up to noon on February 15 having been $3,089.70. The drive for funds for this purpose will be continued throughout the present week, and Mrs. Robert M. Reese, local chairman, has expressed the hope that local contributors will enable the committee to reach its goal of not less than $4,000 before the end of the week.

Two Flee Convict Camp As Gale Hits Blue Ridge

Special to The Washington Post.

Culpeper, Va., Feb. 16.—Two convicts escaped from the convict camp in the mountains of Green County Friday night, according to reports received here today.

A small cyclone or tornado struck the camp and wrecked the dining room. The canvas walls of the main building were torn away, and in the excitement the prisoners made a successful getaway. Guards and citizens have been searching both slopes of the Blue Ridge for them, but so far have been unable to find any trace of them. This makes three prisoners who have made successful breaks from the camp in the last ten days.

FARMERS IN VIRGINIA AWAIT STATE RELIEF

Program Is Expected to Be Adopted by Present Legislature.

WOULD RECLAIM LANDS

Special to The Washington Post.

Richmond, Va., Feb. 16.—Old Dominion farmers are awaiting, with fond hopes, the results of Virginia's own farm relief program which is to be adopted by the present session of the General Assembly as a Statewide experiment in rehabilitating the agricultural industry.

This program includes the strengthening of the cooperative marketing laws, provisions for the cooperative purchase of farm supplies, plans for planting marginal and unprofitable lands in forests and pastures and inauguration of State-wide soil and crop surveys in an effort to guard against overproduction.

Prepared by the Agricultural Commission, which made a study of Virginia agriculture during the administration of Gov. Harry Byrd, the bills are intended to put the various State agencies into a system of helping the farmer market his crop, buy his supplies and to give him all available information, that he will know what to raise with profit. Dr. Julian A. Burruss, president of Virginia Polytechnic Institute, was chairman of the commission which included G. F. Holsinger, president of the Virginia Farm Bureau Federation as a representative of the farmers' cooperatives of the State.

The most important of the eight or nine agricultural relief bills contemplated are as follows:

Extending the cooperative marketing and purchasing act so that producers and consumers organizations may do business with nonmembers to the extent of 50 per cent of the total business;

Directing the State Bureau of Markets to establish standard grades for all kinds of farm products and brand these products under the supervision of the U. S. Department of Agriculture;

Directing the Virginia Polytechnic Institute experts to make a soil survey of Virginia for the purpose of aiding farmers in determining the crops most adaptable to their lands, especially if they must change ther crops to meet changing agricultural conditions;

Directing the appointment of a commission to report to the 1932 Legislature on a plan by which farmers may be given State-aid in the planting of unprofitable and unfertile tracts in forests, these lands to be exempt from taxation until the forests become profitable;

Providing that lands and lots sold by the State in default of taxes shall go to the State for utilization as forests and game preserves rather than to individual owners;

A joint resolution calling upon Congress to take steps to prevent overproduction of farm products, to pass legislation to suppress fraudulent dealers; to ascertain ways and means of providing more funds for rural education and highway construction.

GAS BLAST DAMAGES BANK IN BALTIMORE

FIRE QUICKLY QUELLED

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 16 (A.P.).—The interior of the Mercantile Savings Bank Building in downtown Baltimore was damaged today by an explosion of an accumulation of gas in the cellar. Five large windows, on the ground floor, were shattered and bits of glass were hurled into the next block, cutting several persons, mostly firemen.

The blast also damaged a typewriting office on the ground floor, an insurance office and apartment on the second floor, another insurance office on the third floor and tore elevator doors from their hinges. Partitions throughout the building were knocked down.

The damage was estimated at $100,000 by officials of the bank, who said their records were not harmed and the institution would be reopened at once.

Officials were unable to say whether the explosion was caused by coal or illuminating gas. Investigators of the gas company, however, said no leaks in their pipes in the building were evident.

The explosion was preceded by fire that had gained headway in the basement and was discovered by a patrolman who notified a fire company nearby. As the apparatus was responding the explosion occurred. The fire raced to the top of the building but was quickly extinguished.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Kaiser and their son, who occupied the apartment on the second floor, were carried down on ladders by firemen. Mr. Kaiser was struck in the forearm by a piece of glass and an artery was severed. He was taken to a hospital for treatment.

Duel Blamed for Death Of Pair; Man Is Freed

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Feb. 16.—Vernon Stump, 20, held since February 5 for questioning in connection with the Borror garage tragedy at Ridgeley, opposite this city, where A. Walton Borror, half-owner, and Paul Morris, of this city, were found shot to death, was released early last night, following the verdict of the coroner's jury that the men came to their death by each other's hands in a pistol duel following an attempt to rob the garage by Morris.

Stump had been involved with Morris in a larceny charge, in 1928, but the authorities were unable to shake his story that he had not seen Morris since that time. Investigators state they have not entirely abandoned the theory that a third person was involved in the tragedy.

Prominent Petersburg Merchant Falls Dead

Petersburg, Va., Feb. 16.—Milton I. Reinach, one of the oldest shoe merchants in Petersburg, died very suddenly this morning at his home from a heart attack. He had finished putting on his shoes and had gone to the bathroom, where he fell to the floor dead.

He was a native of Petersburg, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Isadore Reinach, and about 60 years old. He had succeeded his late father and brother in the shoe business. He was a member of several civic organizations. The deceased is survived by his widow and one daughter. He also leaves two sisters and one brother, who lives in New York City.

HOME BETTERMENT DUE TO REFORMERS

NEW PROJECT IN OFFING

More than seven years ago, the women of Montgomery County, Md., rose in their wrath and demanded better living conditions in the county home. Thus dawned a movement which has brought results much more far reaching than Mrs. H. J. Finley, of Rockville, and the devoted women who battled for a better county home dreamed.

The fervor of their desire for a county home which would provide comfort for the last years of the county's unfortunates has spread until Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland has felt the time propitious for an investigation into the possibility of erecting a central almshouse to serve all of Western Maryland and to provide comforts and necessities that the individual county homes can not afford.

Their efforts also have resulted in the improvement of the Montgomery County home in such a way that Miss Lavinia Engle, president of the Maryland League of Women Voters and prominent Baltimore social service worker, declared in a speech several weeks ago that it is "one of the two or three county almshouses in the State that are not positively revolting."

At the time of the change, seven years ago, five county organizations agreed to send a representative each to serve on a visiting committee which would oversee the conduct of the home management and assist the county commissioner in charge.

The home was managed by a board of trustees of which Mrs. John Brewer, of Rockville, was the only woman. Mrs. Brewer aided in the movement for a better management and was a member of the first visiting committee, representing the Rockville Union Bible Class. Two of the other five members of the present committee are original members. They are Mrs. James L. Bogley, representing the county W. C. T. U., and Mrs. Josiah Waters Jones, of the county Social Service League. The two members who later were appointed are Mrs. Edward L. Stacy, representing the county Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. John A. Wheeler, representing the Montgomery County Chapter of the American Red Cross. Commissioner Lacy Shaw was appointed in charge of the home at about the same time the committee began functioning and the members of the committee are loud in their praise of the cooperation he has given them.

The committee visits the home on the first Wednesday of each month and individually at other times in order to acquaint its members with conditions.

Commissioner Shaw has been appointed a member of the governor's committee to inquire into the combined almshouse plan. If the project is found feasible the next session of the State Legislature probably will be asked to authorize a central almshouse for western Maryland and a similar plan for the Eastern Shore. This would permit the provision of suitable hospital facilities as well as a modern and more comfortable home for the unfortunates of the entire State.

Maryland U. Alumni Organize at Cumberland

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Feb. 16.—A permanent organization of the University of Maryland Alumni in the Cumberland area was effected at the second annual meeting and banquet at the Fort Cumberland Hotel last night.

Dr. Joseph P. Franklin, formerly of Baltimore County, and deputy State health officer, was chosen president. Other officers named were Dr. Arthur P. Dixon, Horace H. Whitworth, A. M. Lichtenstein and Ralph McHenry, vice presidents; Lewis M. Wilson, secretary, and J. Wesley P. Somerville, treasurer. A. Taylor Smith, of the Allegany County Bar, was toastmaster. Dr. Raymond A. Pearson, president of the university; Vice President H. C. Byrd, State Senator William A. Gunter and J. Milton Patterson, member of the Maryland House of Delegates, spoke.

COUNTY SEWERAGE BOND PLAN IS HIT

AIR PROGRAM PLANNED

BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Attacking the proposal, as announced yesterday, calling for a bond issue of $3,658,985 for the installation of a modern sewerage system to take care of the future needs of Arlington County, as outlined in a report submitted by the county engineer to the county board of supervisors, H. C. Saffell declared the proposal preposterous.

Mr. Saffell said that until a project of such size, as is proposed, is studied and planned by competent, expert engineers of wide experience, and not until there has been brought about a change in the county form of government, should such a plan be considered by the taxpayers of Arlington County.

Recalling the plans that preceded the voting of the bond issue for $750,000 about four years ago for the installation of the county water system, Mr. Saffell said: "Through my personal efforts I was able to enlist the services of Asa Phillips, an expert engineer of wide experience, who came into the county and provided the preliminary surveys. This was largely responsible for the passage of the bill, introduced by Representative R. Walton Moore, which made it possible for Arlington County to get its water from the Federal Government. A man of the ability of Mr. Phillips should be called in on this sewerage project."

"With all the detail work completed, the bond issue was voted upon and carried by the largest majority of any bond issue ever proposed in Arlington County. After its passage the county employed Mr. Phillips at a salary of $7,500 a year to have full charge of the installation of the project and I do not think that any one can say that the system was not installed in accordance with proper engineering practice," said Mr. Saffell.

"Arlington County, a Part of the Greater Washington Metropolitan Area Overlooking the Nation's Capital; Its Present and Future Advantages and Opportunities," will be outlined in an address over the air, Station WJSV, Mount Vernon Hills, Va., by H. L. Kirby, director of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce, in a program to be given under its auspices Wednesday afternoon from 5 to 6 o'clock.

Mr. Kirby, a resident of the county whose home overlooks the Capital, is the president of the Wyoming-Montana Co. and the Wyoming-Montana Railroad and during the World War was the president of the Kiroy Coal, Iron & Marine Co., of New York, carrying on an export business, shipping thousands of tons of coal and iron to foreign ports for use in the war.

The program will include musical numbers given by the glee clubs of the Washington Lee Junior and Senior High School under the direction of Miss Madeline Whitlock, accompanied by Mrs. M. Mallott; a musical reading by Miss Maxien Cardwell, entitled, "It Takes a Heap o' Living in a House to Make It Home."

C. A. Keefer, member of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce, will be master of ceremonies and the official announcer.

Tomorrow night, the scheduled time for the monthly meeting of the Ashton Heights Citizens Association, will be known as "An Evening With the County Board of Supervisors," according to an announcement made last night by the president, George M. Yeatman.

President Yeatman stated that it is planned to give to the citizens of the community first-hand information on the present and future plans for the development of the county as they will be discussed by the supervisors.

All residents, whether members of the association or not, are invited to attend the meeting, which will be held at 8 o'clock in the Ashton Heights Women's Clubhouse on Clarendon avenue.

The meeting of the Arlington-Fairfax Volunteer Firemen's Association, announced to be held tomorrow night at Vienna, has been postponed until Tuesday night, February 25, when it will meet at the Ballston Firemen's hall at 8 o'clock.

---

There will be a meeting of the executive committee of the Lyon Park Citizens Association tomorrow night at the home of the president, Arthur Orr, South Spruce street, at 8 o'clock.

---

There will be a meeting of the ladies aid society, of the Calvary Methodist Protestant Church, in the chapel tomorrow afternoon.

---

Mrs. James Fuller Hayes has been reelected president of the First Presbyterian Church Community Club at Ballston. Other officers are Mrs. Randolph W. Montgomery, vice president; Mrs. Florence Ward, secretary, and Mrs. Norman German, treasurer.

THE NEW WEEK'S BILLS

METROPOLITAN

"NO, NO, NANETTE." First National dialogue, song and dance production, adapted from the musical comedy by Frank Mandel, Otto Harbeck and Vincent Youmans, with Alexander Gray and Bernice Claire featured, supported by Lucien Littlefield, Louise Fazenda, Lilyan Tashman and Bert Roach. Directed by Clarence Badger. Reviewed Saturday afternoon.

By NELSON B. BELL

Pretending to nothing beyond the sumptuous picturization of a successful musical comedy, this lavish production, I dare say, will take immediate rank in the estimation of the Capital's theatergoers with the most diverting of the screen's light musical entertainments. Based on a premise that is purely farcical, the story gallops along in an utterly irresponsible manner to a filmsy, but agreeable, climax, with many tuneful interruptions along the way, much hilarity in both lines and situations and as effective a utilization of Technicolor's natural tints as has so far been disclosed.

There is, at the outset, promise of richly comic developments in the idea that a wealthy Bible publisher might have a sirenic protege in both Boston and Chicago, and might even be wheedled into backing a musical show in which the prima donna is the author's best beloved. This promise is prolifigately fulfilled. The producers have been fortunate in successfully evading the scorn and contumely that might ordinarily attach to just another backstage plot by plastering their opus thickly with laughs. They come with almost the fortunate persistence that made "Gold Diggers of Broadway" a model of no less than maudlin merriment.

The surreptitious revue scenes are all executed in natural color and are more than remotely reminiscent of "Gold Diggers" by reason of the large number of specialty teams that are introduced during the gorgeous act finales of "Up in the Air's" Atlantic City premiere. These kaleidoscopic intervals are as difficult for the eye to apprehend completely as a three-ring circus.

In the role of Tom Trainor, whose sweetheart succeeds in having his musical comedy produced by Mr. James Smith, publisher of Holy Writ, through a ruse, Alexander Gray sings much more effectively than he did in support of Marilyn Miller in "Sally." Bernice Claire, as Nanette, brings a new voice and a vivacious personality to the silver sheet. The major comedy honors, however, are neatly garnered by a group of players who have been much more intimately and more protractedly identified with pictures.

Lucien Littlefield, in the role of Jimmie Smith, reveals a wholly new facet of his ability as a character comedian. Louise Fazenda, as his wife, is happily afforded opportunity to be first the dowdy sort of frump she does so well, and later a woman of radiant loveliness, such as might be expected by any one who is privileged to know her personally. Lilyan Tashman impersonates a strictly modern sophisticate in a delightfully satirical vein, and Bert Roach, her husband, gets away with nothing! A less conspicuous, but no less pungent, performance is contributed by ZaSu Pitts, whose portrayal of a discontented housemaid is deliciously droll. Mildred Harris and Joceylyn Lee complete the admirable cast.

If it were necessary to pick the song hits from the score, I presume "Tea For Two" and "King of the Air" would run a dead heat. And for spectacular effect, the airplane finale is especially novel.

A composite sound and silent newsreel, a Vitaphone recessional, organ interludes and Rex Beach's personal word of indorsement of his "Son of the Gods," as interpreted for the screen by Richard Barthelmess, are brief auxiliaries of a fast and feverish frolic.

RIALTO

"WOMAN TO WOMAN." A Tiffany-Stahl presentation of a play by Michael Morton, adapted for the screen by Nicholas Fodor, featuring Betty Compson and George Barraud. Directed by Victor Saville. Reviewed Saturday afternoon by W. A. Whitney

The mental torment and physical anguish of a man torn between two great loves—that of his wife and his son's mother—forms the basis of Betty Compson's latest starring vehicle.

Lola, a Parisian cabaret dancer, falls in love with a young English officer on leave from the front. He is suddenly recalled and is subsequently wounded in such a way as to leave in his mind a blank, save for his professional knowledge. He marries again and during a theatrical performance in which Lola, now Mme. Deloryse, is starred, he regains his memory when she sings the song which served as their introduction. His efforts to do justice to all concerned form the basis of the powerful and logically developed plot.

Miss Compson, who, it is said, created the role of Lola in the original stage presentation of the Morton play in London depicts the Perisian dancer excellently and carries her many emotional sequences with conviction. Juliette Compton, in the role of the wife, is likewise splendid and her nature is brought in admirable contrast to Miss Compson.

The part of the husband and father is essayed by George Barraud in a fine manner and he handles the unusually delicate situations with realism.

Three songs — "Sunshine of My Heart," "The Parisian Doll" and "A Toi"—are supposed to be sung by Miss Compson, but a ghost voice was probably used, although none the less clear and charming. The theatrical scenes are splendid and work well into the movement of the story. Especially attractive is the flower ballet, in which Miss Compson takes the spotlight as the premiere danseuse.

At the beginning of the picture Miss Compson assumes a decidedly French accent, which is too obviously "put on," but she fortunately forgets to be French as the picture progresses and is all the more effective in her part.

A Universal comedy, "Up and Down Stairs," directed by Harry Edward, a piece of passing nonsense, a Krazy Kat cartoon, "Farm Relief," notable only for the excruciatingly funny musical effects in the accompaniment; a Van Buren song sketch, "The Trumpeter," sung by James Stanley, with atmospheric prologue and interludes arranged by Grantland Rice, and a release of the Universal News complete the screen subjects.

"DEVIL-MAY-CARE." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer singing, dancing and talking picture from the story of "La Bataille des Dames," by Eugene Scribe, starring Ramon Novarro. Directed by Sidney Franklin. Reviewed Sunday night (second week) by J. F. Brady.

Ramon Novarro continues to thrill capacity audiences as his latest starring picture goes into its second week. In fine voice, with plenty of songs to fit his romantic mood, this dashing, handsome swordsman of Napoleon's guard woos his way through a maze of near-executions, to the heart and hand of a stanch royalist while he remains true to his Napoleonic allegiance.

"Devil-May-Care" titles the character of this young loyalist who dares anything to be near his love. In this character Navarro has indeed plenty of opportunity to exhibit his remarkable skill as a swordsman, as a bareback rider, as a songster (one of those sweet voices the ladies love), and as a lover, and to each he does ample credit.

Supporting him is Dorothy Jordon playing the character of the maid, Leonie, who at times rises to true dramatic heights, being especially good in resisting the constant chatter of Navarro—as "Charles, the footman," and then again when her love turns to hate at the disclosure that he is "Armand," the loyalist. Marion Harris, as the Countess, who loves and protects Armand, does credit to her work.

The story revolves around the exile of Napoleon to Elba, the continued secret support by many of the loyalists who transmit word of mouth messages of their attempt to return him to France.

"Our Gang" furnish a good comedy, the Hearst Metrotone News has a number of interesting items and the orchestra renders the usual overture.

This is the sort of thing that used to be done by the late Wallie Reid, with Richard Arlen inheriting the principal honors, supported charmingly by Mary Brian and with Tully Marshall and Charles Sellon combining their talents in a vague sort of approximation of what was formerly individually visualized by the late Theodore Roberts. Sam Hardy and Francis MacDonald are added to lend the tale something of the hazardous zip of a Wallingford story. This they efficiently and impressively do.

The spirited action, with its electric overtone of wise-crackery, centers in the small-time exploits of a band of motor racing racketeers. It is their custom to invade the candlelight circuit with Daredevil Lou Larrigan as a nonbeatable race driver and build him up into a sure shot. Then along comes "Suicide" Danny McGhan, against whom the natives lay their last dimes, to win the great match race. Then the grifters move on the next county fair and do it all over again. But when they get to Carfax, a monkey wrench is tossed into the smooth-running machinery of their cross-country clean-up. Lou falls in love with the daughter of the president of the chamber of commerce and refuses to be a party to shaking her dad down for any such sum as $25,000. He informs Mr. McGhan and his backers that he will have to win the race on the level to win it at all, or else!

Thus is the stage set for as exciting an auto race as these weary eyes have ever seen this side of Indianapolis. Paramount has exercised the good judgment to devote sufficient footage to the race to make it look like a race—and an intensely thrilling one, at that. How the 25-mile grind actually is run in the last 50 yards is the big kick of the picture.

The part in which Richard Arlen finds himself was judiciously selected as an adequate medium for his expanding talents. He looks, acts and talks like a race driver and makes love like a pretty nice young fella. Opposite him, Mary Brian fortifies the belief that she is making more rapid strides in the perfection of voice and its nicely shaded uses than any other young actress before the cameras and microphones. The others in the cast do their jobs expertly.

Eddie Sutherland's direction is particularly adept. His use of totally dark scenes with the voices coming through—as was first done by Harold Lloyd in "Welcome Danger"—is a useful trick, employed in this instance for comic rather than melodramatic effect. Many amusing touches not essential to the movement of the plot nevertheless lend it an added sprightliness.

On the stage Loew's "Blue Garden" revue brings Allan Rogers back for a single week as itinerant master of ceremonies, although straight from a sick bed and with the voice rendered hors de combat by the flu. It was his hope to be singing again by today or tomorrow. As a substitute, Billy Rupprecht, of the Palace Syncopators, played "Sweeter Than Sweet" and "St. James' Infirmary Blues" as trumpet solos. Others introduced by Mr. Rogers included Dodd and Rush, dancers who appeared singly and as a team; Kay and Sayre, two clever male unison steppers, assisted by a self-possessed Scotch terrier; Les Ghezzis, sensational acrobats, equilibrists and upside-down dancers, and the Chester Hale Girls in varied routine.

The bill is completed by the Hearst Metrotone News, a "Krazy Kat" cartoon comedy, "Spookeasy," that is extraordinary resourceful, the M-G-M News, orchestra and organ.

EARLE

"THE GREAT DIVIDE." First National Vitaphone talking picture, alleged to be adapted from the play by William Vaughn Moody. Cast headed by Dorothy Mackaill, Ian Keith and Myrna Loy. Directed by Reginald Parker. Reviewed Sunday afternoon by C. Ransom.

Many jokes have been built on the bewilderment of authors at finding their brain children warped out of recognition in the films. William Vaughn Moody, if he were still alive, could hardly have his dignity as professor and poet much ruffled on seeing the picture at the Earle, because his famous play has not been warped at all; it has simply been wiped. No joke could possibly carry the process so far. Aside from the fact that it deals with a man and a woman out West, this production reveals not a character, not an incident, not a single motive or purpose or turn of plot that in any way even suggests "The Great Divide."

The hero is called Stephen Ghent, the heroine Ruth Jordan, as they were in the Moody classic. The opening title boldly announces the name of the play and the author, but you watch in vain for any other trace of it. Spurlos versenkt! This is really an amazing piece of impertinence toward a dead playwright, and somebody ought to be scolded about it.

With the smoke cleared away we may turn to the well-acted and reasonably original Western yarn that is actually unfolded on the screen. It might have started with somebody wondering what the reaction would be if a "modern" maid of the frivolous East and an up-to-date Westerner encountered each other on the great divide, instead of their prototypes of Moody's generation. Instead of the bold bad assailant of the original play, who was salvaged through love for a conventional girl from New England, Stephen Ghent now appears, in the unrubbed person of Ian Keith, as a sort of dude rancher transferred to the mines, strong, handsome, wealthy and well-beloved. In a party arriving from the East to buy his mine is Ruth Jordan, the daughter of his dead partner. She is a slangy, brazen minx, petter and tippler, and Steve, after first falling in love, feels bound to subdue or reform her. They meet at a Mexican fiesta that gives occasion for plenty of incidental gaiety and song. He pretends to be a Mexican caballero and in that guise invades the private car and carries off his not unwilling victim, who admits it would be hard for him to give her a thrill. At his home in the mountains a pursuing posse comes looking for Steve, but Ruth says she wasn't kidnaped. That's about all.

But there is also Myrna Loy, in the part of a Mexican girl who yearns after Steve just terribly and tries to upset the proceedings. And Ian Keith or his double does some handsome tenor singing. The miners in those parts are tuneful, too.

Little Jack Little adds a lot to the entertainment, meanwhiles, with his radio songs and piano stunts. He has a microphone on his piano and his gentle voice issues from a radio set on the other side of the stage, just to show how it is done. A clever and likable chap is Little Jack Little.

There are some unusually well selected news pictures. There is another short reel, remarkably bright and amusing, devoted to a ventriloquist and his dummy, who has more sense than Otto in "The Great Gabbo."

FOX

"CITY GIRL." Fox combination silent and dialogue film, with synchronized orchestral accompaniment, featuring Charles Farrell and Mary Duncan, supported by David Torrence and Edith Yorke. Adapted by Elliott Lester from his stage play, "The Mud Turtle." Directed by F. W. Murnau. Reviewed Sunday afternoon.

Although listed for national release as of February 16, 1930, and from every viewpoint vastly superior to "The River," the last joint vehicle for the same stars, this genre drama adheres to the obsolescent form of silent early sequences, employing subtitles and synchronized orchestral accompaniment, and a concluding half in dialogue, with appropriate sound effects. During the supposedly silent portion it even goes so far along the wrong path as to introduce a tenor theme song when the scene is a busy Chicago thoroughfare. These, however, represent the sum total of the serious objections I am able to launch against a play that, despite other minor shortcomings, possesses considerable power and an atmospheric authenticity that is undeniable.

This no doubt is needlessly laudatory comment upon the intrinsic worth of the dramatic material that has been employed by F. W. Murnau in fashioning his screen recital, since Elliott Lester's play of "The Mud Turtle" achieved some measure of success in its original form and later was condensed into a vaudeville sketch that was both vigorous and vivid. The picture, I believe, was first called "Wheat."

The story is of a Chicago waitress who marries the son of a Minnesota wheat grower, in the Midwest metropolis to market the year's crop, only to meet with brutal misjudgment from the boy's narrow-visioned and penurious Scotch father when she arrives at the squalid prairie home that anything but realizes the roseate visions of her rapturous anticipation. Once out in the open, the play drops the petty urban strifes of the cafeterias and gets down to the basic matters of principle, honesty and the need of successfully combatting the prodigious forces of nature. Not in the current mode or mood, perhaps, but none the less vital on that account.

Charles Farrell, in the role of the son, it seems to me, does a more convincing bit of portraiture than Mary Duncan does as the waitress-bride, although neither can be charged with any measure of inefficiency. At that, it is only on the farm that Miss Duncan seems to lose something of her authority and to permit her "city girl" to become suddenly rustic.

David Torrence, the father, and Edith Yorke, "Ma" Tustine, are believable, and Dawn O'Day, Marjorie Beebe, Helen Lynch, George MacFarlane, Ivan Linow and Dick Alexander, boss reaper, contribute illuminating bits in the more important of the contributory roles.

The Fanchon and Marco "Jazz Cinderella" revue struck me yesterday afternoon as dragging almost to the point of dying on its feet. Alexander Callam, back as master of ceremonies after a truant week in Philadelphia, imbued the proceedings with some life by an excellent rendition of the "Song of the Rangers," from "Rio Rita," but seemed unable to impart any great pep to Hugo, Dorothy and Virginia, dancers; Billy Randall, who combines violining with Russian dancing; May Usher, a Yiddish dialect comedienne, whom the audience seemed to enjoy hugely; James Gaylord, barytone, or Moore and Pal, a comedy acrobatic act, that perhaps loses a bit by being so well known and having been in view so long. The Sunkist Beauties, of course, help to fill the eye. I mean fill it!

An unusually interesting Fox Movietone News, featuring both Col. House, being interviewed by George Sylvester Viereck, and Admiral Billard, commandant of the United States Coast Guard; James A. Fitzpatrick's "Movie Horoscope;" a rowdy but funny Jack White talking comedy, "The Madhouse," featuring Eddie Lambert and Monte Collins, and Mr. Brusiloff's overture of Friml hits—from "Katinka" down to date—are the diverting subsidiaries.

RKO-KEITH

Deviating from the song-and-dance pictures of its past programs, RKO-Keith's presents this week an admirable screen play of marriage and step-relations. "All the King's Men" is well adapted for screen presentation and "The Second Wife" follows the traditional stage technique even to the extent of using subtitles to indicate the three major divisions of the drama—acts, if you please.

The story centers in the problem of whether the love of a second wife about to become a mother is stronger than the love of a son by the first wife. This proposition confronts Conrad Nagel and he solves it to the entire satisfaction of all and in such a way as to make the role one of the most natural and convincing which he has had.

The part of Walter Fairchild is that of an average man subject to situations not uncommon in everyday life, and Mr. Nagel portrays that average man and his normal and usual reactions to given events. He moves throughout the picture with a convincing realism that is enhanced by the equally realistic portrayal by Lila Lee, as the second wife. Miss Lee, charming and delightful as ever, has a difficult part and one that might easily have been overacted and become maudlin, but she ever holds herself within rational bounds.

Supporting Mr. Nagel and Miss Lee are Hugh Huntley, as the would-be husband and near home-wrecker; Mary Carr, as Mrs. Rhodes, the motherly housekeeper, and Freddie Burke Frederick, as Junior, the stepson. They all imbue their roles with a conviction that here is life and not a piece of dramaturgy for mere mechanical entertainment.

The five characters are all that are needed for the entire development of the plot
